Hearings Pursuant to Advertisement in the "City Record" of March 20, 1902.

For the construction of bridges over the railroad tracks, with approaches at Westchester avenue, German place, St. Ann's avenue, East One Hundred and Forty-ninth street and Eagle avenue, Robbins avenue, Concord avenue and St. Mary's street, Wales avenue, Southern Boulevard and Whitlock avenue, over the tracks of the Port Morris Branch of the New York and Harlem Railroad, and over the tracks of the New York and Harlem Railroad at Two Hundred and Thirty-third street and One Hundred and Sixty-seventh street, and over the tracks of the New York, New Haven and Hartford Railroad at Longwood, Lafayette and Leggett avenues and Tiffany street.

Four plans of the proposed bridge crossings were submitted by President Haffen, with written reports of the Chief Engineer of the Borough, as follows:

No. 1.

Bridge Crossings over the Port Morris Branch of the New York and Harlem Railroad. March 20, 1902.

Hon. LOUIS F. HAFFEN, President:

Dear Sir—I transmit herewith a map showing the line of the Port Morris Branch of the New York and Harlem Railroad, with certain information as to the grades at the various streets and avenues crossing the same between its junction with the main line at One Hundred and Sixty-fifth street and the East river. This branch railroad was covered in the agreement between the Department of Public Parks and the New York and Harlem Railroad Company under the provisions of chapter 721 of the Laws of 1887, authorizing the said Department to agree with the New York and Harlem Railroad Company upon plans for the depression of the tracks and changing grades of the railroads of said company in the Twenty-third and Twenty-fourth Wards; said agreement was executed under date of July 9, 1889, but so far as this Port Morris Branch is concerned the agreement only included the portion between One Hundred and Sixty-fifth street and One Hundred and Fifty-sixth street; bridges were built in conformity to a map filed March 15, 1889, in the Register's Office, at the following streets: East One Hundred and Sixty-third street, East One Hundred and Sixty-second street and Elton avenue, East One Hundred and Sixty-first street and Washington avenue, Third avenue and at East One Hundred and Fifty-sixth street. On sections 1 and 2 of the final maps and profiles of the Twenty-third Ward certain grades are shown both for the railroad and for the crossing streets or avenues.

These grades were fixed after consultation with the Engineer of the railroad and after several public hearings. These grades were as follows:

	Present Grade of Railroad Tracks above High Water.	Future Grade of Railroad Tracks above High Water.	Depression of the Tracks in Feet.	Elevation of the Overhead Crossing above High Water.
Westchester avenue	16.3	8.0	8.3	26.25
St. Ann's avenue	19.0	8.5	11.5	26.75
East One Hundred and Forty-ninth street, near Eagle avenue.....	24.0	8.9	15.1	27.25
Robbins avenue.....	24.7	16.5	8.2	34.75
Concord avenue and Morris street...	20.1	14.0	6.1	32.5
Wales avenue	17.7	12.0	5.7	30.25
Southern Boulevard	14.8	9.75	5.05	28.0
Whitlock avenue	12.0	8.34	3.70	26.6

Easterly of Whitlock avenue, the Port Morris Branch is located on railroad property and does not intersect any streets.

I presume that chapter 754 of the Laws of 1897, known as the Grade Crossing Act, supersedes in some degree, if not entirely, chapter 721 of the Laws of 1887, and if so, it will probably be necessary to petition the Board of Railroad Commissioners, as provided in the Grade Crossing Act, for the further depression of tracks and construction of bridges and approaches on this branch railroad.

The urgency of this improvement is very great and definite steps to bring about the necessary work thereon should be taken as soon as possible on account of the fact that where the avenue and street grades are changed for the approaches, etc., building operations are almost entirely prevented.

Respectfully,

(Signed) JOSIAH A. BRIGGS,
Chief Engineer of the Borough of The Bronx.

No. 2.

Bridge Crossings of the New York and Harlem Railroad.

The depression of the steam railroad tracks and the abolition of all grade crossings is one of the most important questions affecting the Borough of The Bronx at the present time.

The first work of this description undertaken in this section was the depression of the New York and Harlem Railroad, which was done under the provisions of chapter 721 of the Laws of 1887.

This work extended from the Harlem river to the Gun Hill road at Williamsbridge station. By agreement with the Department of Public Parks, which Department had jurisdiction over all streets, etc., in the Twenty-third and Twenty-fourth Wards of The City of New York, it was provided that all streets between the limits named, except One Hundred and Thirty-eighth street, should cross over the railroad. Bridges were built by the railroad company at One Hundred and Forty-fourth street, One Hundred and Forty-ninth street, One Hundred and Fifty-sixth street, One Hundred and Fifty-eighth street, One Hundred and Sixty-first street, One Hundred and Sixty-second street, One Hundred and Sixty-fifth street, One Hundred and Sixty-eighth street, One Hundred and Sixty-ninth street, One Hundred and Seventieth street, Wendover avenue, One Hundred and Seventy-third street, One Hundred and Seventy-fifth street, One Hundred and Seventy-sixth street (foot bridge), One Hundred and Seventy-seventh street, One Hundred and Seventy-eighth street (foot bridge), One Hundred and Seventy-ninth street (foot bridge), One Hundred and Eightieth street, One Hundred and Eighty-third street, One Hundred and Eighty-seventh street, Welch street (foot bridge), Pelham avenue, Southern Boulevard and Gun Hill road.

The agreement provided for a bridge at Scott avenue, now Woodlawn road, but that was never built.

The railroad company was obliged to construct additional bridges, when directed so to do by The City of New York, at existing streets or at streets thereafter laid out.

The crossings which require attention on this line are the following:

East One Hundred and Forty-ninth Street—Should be widened from 60 feet to 100 feet to conform to the new width of said street, the regulating and paving of which is contemplated as soon as the Rapid Transit tunnel thereon is completed.

East One Hundred and Sixty-first Street—This street has been widened from 60 feet to 100 feet in width, and the bridge should be made 100 feet wide. The street will be regulated and graded in a short time to the new width. The present bridge is too narrow to accommodate the trolley tracks and the other traffic as well.

East One Hundred and Sixty-seventh Street—At this street a foot bridge should be built, the grades of Park avenue being such that a vehicle bridge could not be built there unless the grade of Park avenue were changed. This is out of the question on account of the extensive building improvements which would be affected and the great damage involved.

St. Paul's Place—This street has been regulated and graded up to the railroad at both sides, and there is no connection across. On account of the grades of Park avenue it will be impossible to build more than a foot bridge at this point. This should be done without delay.

East One Hundred and Seventy-first Street—A foot bridge should be located at this street for the same reasons that prevail at St. Paul's place.

East One Hundred and Seventy-fourth Street—Should be a foot bridge.

East One Hundred and Eighty-first Street—Requires a foot bridge.

East One Hundred and Eighty-second Street—Also requires a foot bridge.

East One Hundred and Eighty-fifth Street—Should also be provided with a foot bridge when Park avenue regulating and grading is completed.

East One Hundred and Eighty-ninth Street—This street was laid out under authority of chapter 211 of the Laws of 1897, and the law provided that the railroad should be bridged at the expense of the city. Plans and specifications were prepared in 1901 for this bridge, and the matter is now before the Board of Estimate and Apportionment awaiting the authorization of the necessary expenditure and the setting aside the funds therefor. This street was regulated and graded last year, except at the railroad, and the grading cannot be utilized until this bridge is constructed. The importance of this crossing can be understood when it is known that a large number of the school children who live east of the railroad and near this locality have to travel a long distance either north or south in going to and from school. The school is located at the corner of this street and Webster avenue.

Welch Street—This bridge is a foot bridge, but it should be changed to a traffic bridge and the necessary change made in the grades of Park avenue on each side to permit such a result.

Pelham Avenue—The bridge at this location should be extended south to the south line of old Kingsbridge road. If it were possible it would make a great improvement in the conditions at that point to move the station to the north side of Pelham avenue and do away with the dingy and unsanitary condition on the platforms under the bridge. A large part of the drainage from the bridge runs down the face of the abutments and over the platform, which makes it all very unattractive and really disagreeable.

Moshulu Parkway—This crossing comes within the limits of the Park or Parkway, and is therefore under the jurisdiction of the Department of Parks. The only way to connect with the Botanical Garden drive from the west at present is by crossing the Southern Boulevard bridge over the New York and Harlem Railroad. This condition should be remedied as soon as possible so that parties driving through Moshulu Parkway from Van Cortlandt Park may cross directly without passing outside of the Park system.

Woodlawn Road (Scott Avenue)—This bridge was called for in the agreement between the Park Department and the New York and Harlem Railroad Company, but the company declined to build it until some provision was made for an approach in the park. If the Park Department will not permit the erection of a highway bridge there, a foot bridge should be provided for the convenience of the many residents in that locality.

Two Hundred and Fifth Street—This street is proposed on the street system of the territory east of the Bronx river and it is intended to connect that section at the north line of Bronx park with Webster avenue by means of a bridge over the Bronx river and the railroad. This improvement would afford great benefit to the thickly settled section south of Gun Hill Road, east of the Bronx river.

Two Hundred and Tenth Street—A bridge was intended to be built here under the agreement with the Park Department; but it was finally left out. It is shown, however, as an overgrade crossing for vehicles on the final maps of the boroughs and is needed for the reason that the Gun Hill Road bridge is not sufficient to carry the traffic of this locality.

Gun Hill Road—A bridge was built at this crossing under the agreement above referred to, but only to a width of 50 feet. The width of this thoroughfare will be changed to 100 feet. A double track trolley line crossing on this bridge, it is quite evident that the bridge is entirely inadequate for the traffic which it has to accommodate. This should be widened to the new width of the street.

Eighth, or East Two Hundred and Twenty-second Street—Under chapter 378 of the Laws of 1897, for the construction of a bridge and approaches at this point extending from Webster avenue to Bronx terrace, east of the Bronx river. This matter was initiated under Mr. Haffen when he was Commissioner of Street Improvements of the Twenty-third and Twenty-fourth Wards, and general plans were prepared under his direction in 1897, and were submitted to and approved by the then Board of Estimate and Apportionment. The consolidation under the Greater New York Charter turned this work over to the late Department of Bridges. Plans were prepared by that Department, but no contract has yet been let for this work.

This improvement will receive immediate attention as soon as the lands necessary therefor are taken, and the funds are provided by the Board of Estimate.

A proceeding to acquire title to East Two Hundred and Twenty-second street east of the Bronx river is under way, but that opening will be of little service without the bridge across the Bronx river and the Harlem Railroad.

East Two Hundred and Thirty-third Street—This is the most northerly crossing of the New York and Harlem Railroad in the city, west of the Bronx river; and it can truthfully be said that it is one of the most dangerous. The valley at this point is narrow and the grades on either side of the railroad are very steep. The grading of Webster avenue made it necessary to practically grade the approach on that side which terminates near the railroad with a steep slope. To reach the station and cross the tracks it is therefore necessary to make a detour to the north down a steep grade to the level of the track. The obstructions prevent a view of the track either way and the crossing is made with great risk. On the east of the track the conditions are the same as always. Two Hundred and Thirty-third street is a very important cross street and connects Pelham park with Van Cortlandt park near the north line of the city. There is a trolley track east of the Bronx river over which no doubt will be extended to the west to connect with the Webster avenue line if the crossing were properly improved.

It was proposed by the Board of Public Improvements in 1901 to construct a viaduct on the east of the track on a gradually rising grade from the railroad to Second street, about 600 feet in length in all. This viaduct was intended to be located in the centre of Two Hundred and Thirty-third street and be 70 feet wide, and it was proposed to leave the old street below the same, which was to be widened on each side, for communication or for access to property on the old grade. This would necessitate a long detour for all traffic from the railroad station and for all heavy freight crossing by the New York and New Haven Railroad for the section west of the track; the grades would be very steep and this plan is without doubt impracticable.

The cost of the structure would be very heavy and the damages to property, which would have not frontage on the main line of traffic, would be great.

It would seem better to make Two Hundred and Thirty-third street a uniform width of 100 feet from Webster avenue to its easterly terminus and construct a bridge across the railroad. A solid approach should be built with a stone bridge across the Bronx river. The grade at Bronx terrace would have to be raised about 9 feet; this could be done without difficulty and there would not be one-third the expense that would be entailed by the viaduct plan.

March 24, 1902.

Respectfully submitted,

Chief Engineer of the Borough of The Bronx.

No. 3.

Grade Crossings on the Harlem River Branch of the New York, New Haven and Hartford Railroad.

This company should be required to make provision for the proposed elevated structure south of East One Hundred and Forty-first street, which is intended to carry their tracks over One Hundred and Forty-first street and all streets and avenues southwest of that point to the Harlem river.

One Hundred and Forty-ninth Street (Bungay Street)—This street was acquired by the city to a width of 80 feet on August 20, 1884; but nothing has been done to improve it between the Southern Boulevard and the Harlem river, except the construction of a sewer which benefits only the upper section of the watershed.

A connection with the East river at this point would be of great benefit to the East Morrisania section and the street should be improved at as early a day as possible. The railroad is to be crossed by means of a bridge and provisions for the construction thereof should be made at once.

Leggett Avenue—This avenue is not yet regulated to the established grades and lines, but there is a portion of the avenue in use and a dangerous grade crossing maintained.

The final maps provide for a bridge at this avenue, which should be constructed as soon as possible, so that the avenue may be regulated and graded for its whole length to the East river.

Longwood Avenue—This avenue has been regulated and graded with the exception of the portion occupied by the railroad tracks. There is an old grade crossing at this point which is still maintained by the railroad company and which is exceedingly dangerous. The property owners on Longwood avenue will be assessed for the improvement and the fact that the railroad is not bridged prevents them from enjoying the full benefits of the grading improvement.

Lafayette Avenue—A contract is now in progress for regulating, etc., this avenue, but when completed there will be no way to cross the railroad until the bridge is built, and the owners along the lines cannot secure the full benefit of the improvement.

This bridge should be provided for at once.

Tiffany Street—This street has been regulated and graded for some time, but there is no crossing at the railroad, and the benefit of this improvement is to a large degree neutralized. This is also an urgent case.

There are several other avenues which according to the final maps are to cross the railroad by means of a bridge, viz.: Hunt's Point road, Craven, Barretto, Faile, Bryant, Longfellow and Whittier streets, but there is no immediate necessity for their construction, they not having been improved in any way.

Westchester Avenue—This thoroughfare should have an overgrade crossing as soon as possible. A plan was prepared in 1897 by the railroad and approved, I believe, in 1898 by the then Highway Commissioner. Nothing further has been done. A bill has been introduced in the Legislature providing for this improvement.

Until the railroad is bridged the contract for regulating, grading, etc., Westchester avenue, from the Southern Boulevard to the Bronx river, cannot be completed as proposed.

At many of the crossings and, indeed, a large part of the whole line of the railroad west of the Bronx river, the roadbed is too high to give such headroom as is necessary for bridges built according to the grades shown on the general maps. It will therefore be necessary to lower the whole line to the new grade.

March 24, 1902.

Respectfully submitted,
(Signed) JOSIAH A. BRIGGS,
Chief Engineer of the Borough of The Bronx.

No. 4.

The main line of the New York Central and Hudson River Railroad requires some attention in the way of bridges.

Mott Avenue—This bridge was built at the time the railroad was constructed, and met all requirements until now. Mott avenue has been widened to 80 feet, and the bridge does not fit the existing conditions, and should be rebuilt upon the new lines and grades of Mott avenue.

Depot Street, Highbridge—At this street there should be an overhead crossing for the street. The crossing is now on grade and it is exceedingly dangerous on account of the fact that there are two railroads there, the Central and Putnam. There is considerable heavy traffic to and from the dock.

One Hundred and Seventy-seventh Street (Morris Heights)—The crossing at this street is at grade, and owing to the large business carried on along the water front and the heavy traffic from the docks there is great risk in crossing.

Some arrangements should be made to carry the street over the railroad at once. It can be done without great difficulty and with moderately easy grades.

Fordham road—Some steps should be taken to provide an overhead crossing at or near this street. It is perfectly feasible, and if done a considerable improvement will be accomplished in the grades which at present are very steep for the heavy traffic of this street from the dock.

The line north of this point is under consideration for a change of position from its present location at Kingsbridge to the north side of the Ship Canal. This work will do away with several grade crossings and make travel more safe.

On the New York and Putnam Branch a bridge with approaches should be provided for at the crossing of track at Van Cortlandt Station in Van Cortlandt Park.

Respectfully,
(Signed) JOSIAH A. BRIGGS,
Chief Engineer of the Borough of The Bronx.

March 25, 1902.

To Hon. Louis F. Haffen, President of the Borough of The Bronx.

On motion of Alderman Behrmann the question of Two Hundred and Thirty-third street crossing was first taken up.

Report of Chief Engineer Briggs in the above matter was read by the Secretary, as follows:

March 27, 1902.

Hon. LOUIS F. HAFFEN, President:

Dear Sir—I beg to submit herewith two sketches or plans showing the Two Hundred and Thirty-third street crossing of the New York and Harlem Railroad and approaches.

In the first plan I have attempted to show the crossing as contemplated in the maps of the street system east of the Bronx river, prepared under the Board of Public Improvements, where it is proposed to continue the old street east of the Harlem river on slightly changed grades, but to a width of 150 feet, for a distance of about 500 feet east of the Bronx river. This lower street is intended for the use of the property fronting upon Two Hundred and Thirty-third street, and it was then proposed to carry the through traffic from the west side to the east side, by means of a viaduct extending from the west side of the Harlem river to Second street. This proposition, if carried out, would cause great damage to the property which was located on the lower level for the reason that it would get no benefit from the through traffic and could only get out of the pocket that they would be in by a circuitous route, on which there is a grade of over 14 per cent. I have made a rough estimate of the cost of this proposed viaduct and find that it will be approximately as follows:

Cost of the viaduct and approaches.....	$240,061 00
Extra land to be taken (over 100 feet in width).....	40,000 00
Probable damage to buildings.....	20,000 00
Damage on account of change of grade.....	30,000 00

$330,061 00

I also submit a sketch or plan showing the said crossing in which I propose to bridge over the Harlem Railroad tracks with a solid approach east and west thereof.

In this it will be necessary to build an arch over the Bronx river to carry this approach across.

The grades on this sketch will be seen to be moderate and I have proposed a change of the present proposed grades as shown by the blue line between the railroad and Second street and by the broken red line at other points between Webster avenue and the old White Plains road on Fourth avenue. This plan will necessitate the taking of a very small amount of land west of the Bronx river, and the 100 feet already proposed east of the Bronx river. I estimate that the cost of this improvement will be approximately as follows:

Cost of bridges, approaches, etc.....	$122,359 00
Cost of additional land.....	3,000 00
Damage on account of change of grade.....	10,000 00

Total $135,359 00

It will be seen that this suggested change will cost very little more than one-third of the Viaduct plan, and there is no doubt in my mind that this plan will meet all requirements of the case fully as well if not better than the other plan, and taking into consideration the many improvements required in this borough and the difficulty of getting them authorized and the funds appropriated, it will be seen that a little economy in a matter of this kind, when equally good results otherwise can be obtained by it, is a good thing and ought to be encouraged.

Respectfully,
(Signed) JOSIAH A. BRIGGS,
Chief Engineer of the Borough of The Bronx.

W. A. Cameron, Fred. Schrader, William Nelson, C. H. Edgar, representing the Cemetery Association and the Associates Land Company, and J. B. Powers, Myron C. Burton and others, representing the Taxpayers' Association of Woodlawn, appeared in opposition to the Viaduct plan as it was proposed on the street system east of the Bronx river, but favored the bridge with solid approaches across the railroad tracks.

On motion of Alderman Behrmann, it was

Resolved, That the general plan, as proposed, with bridges over the railroad and solid approaches thereto be adopted by the Boards in joint meeting, and that the plan submitted be referred back to the Chief Engineer for his further report on the changes advisable, or necessary to be made, in the lines or the grades of the intersecting streets and avenues in connection therewith.

On motion of Alderman Peck, it was

Resolved, That this Board favors the abolition of all grade crossings, and the depression of the tracks of the Port Morris Branch Railroad, as shown on map, dated March 20, 1902, and request the Corporation Counsel to advise in detail as to the steps necessary to secure the above improvement, viz.: The abolishment of the grade crossings, depression of the tracks, and securing overgrade crossings, as shown on said map.

For the Construction of Bridges over the Depression of the New York, New Haven and Hartford Railroad.

Mr. Charlton, representing Henry W. Taft, counsel for the railroad company, appeared before the Board, not in opposition to the plan, but asked for time in which to look into the matter further, and to confer with this Board.

Charles H. Patrick, treasurer of the East Bay Land and Improvement Company; H. Duffy, Albert E. Davis, president of the North Side Board of Trade; Patrick Geelan and Anthony McOwen appeared in opposition to granting any further delay.

Laid over until advised by the Corporation Counsel just how to proceed in the matter.

One Hundred and Sixty-seventh street crossing, which had been referred to Alderman Harnischfeger, laid over, as he was not ready to report on same.

On motion, the session adjourned.

HENRY A. GUMBLETON, Secretary.
