Executive Summary

This report was prepared in compliance with the requirements of Local Law 45 (LL45) of 2018. LL45, which was passed in January 2018, requires the Department of Citywide Administrative Services (DCAS), to report on annual electricity and fossil fuel usage, real-time metering, and assessments of or improvements made to the envelopes of covered facilities for four years from the effective date of the law. This is the second of the four reports.

LL45 defines a covered facility as a facility where the city pays for at least one electricity account which had a peak demand of at least 300 kilowatts (kW) over the past fiscal year (fiscal year 2019). There are 759 covered facilities as of the end of fiscal year 2019 that meet this requirement. A subset of those, representing 601 facilities in total, are owned by the city (the remainder are leased spaces where the city has limited to no control over the energy usage of the building). Per the requirements of LL45, for all covered facilities, this report identifies (a) their electricity usage over the past fiscal year and change in usage over the last five years; (b) if they have equipment that allows electricity to be measured and reported in near real-time, referred to as real-time meters (RTM);¹ and (c) if they do not, whether such equipment is appropriate and practicable,² and the expected installation timeline. Reporting the change in electricity usage for all covered facilities enables a comparison of the change for each facility to the overall change for all facilities. For city-owned covered facilities, the report also includes the facilities' fossil fuel and steam usage over the past fiscal year,³ the change in fossil fuel and steam usage over the last five fiscal years, and if their facility envelopes have been subject to an assessment within the last year.

For this report, DCAS utilized utility billing data for electricity, natural gas, and steam usage and city agency-reported usage and purchasing records for heating fuel oil, and agency surveys or site inspections for information on covered facilities' RTM-appropriate and practicable status. The report draws upon several data sources to identify facility envelope assessment status.

Over the past five fiscal years, total electricity usage has decreased almost one and a half percent for covered facilities as a whole, and fossil fuel and steam usage has decreased by almost seven percent for

² In this report, RTM installation was not deemed “appropriate and practicable” if a covered facility’s electricity utility meter room was inaccessible or if the Agency/Organization was planning on relocating from the covered facility within the next four years, as reported in the initial Agency survey.

³ Fossil fuels include heating fuel oil and natural gas. District steam also is presented as it is produced by the burning of fossil fuels locally.

city-owned covered facilities.⁴ Considering only those facilities that have been in service for the five previous fiscal years examined, electricity usage as a whole decreased almost three and two-thirds percent, and fossil fuel and steam usage also decreased by over seven percent. At the facility level, fifty-six percent of all covered facilities decreased electricity usage over the past five fiscal years, while 44 percent of covered facilities increased their usage.

Over half of the 759 covered facilities already have electricity RTM installed, and RTM installation may be appropriate and practicable for an additional 29 percent of covered facilities. Thus, 85 percent of covered facilities either have RTMs installed or are viable for future installations. No city-owned covered facilities underwent facility envelope assessments in fiscal year 2019.

Table 1 has a breakdown of all covered facilities, with agency and city-ownership designation. Section 1 and appendix A have information on covered facilities' electricity usage, and section 2 and appendix B have information on RTM status. For city-owned covered facilities, section 3 and appendix C have information on fossil fuel usage, and section 4 and appendix D have information on facility envelope status.

⁴ For leased facilities, costs for heat and hot water are the responsibility of the landlord and not the tenant, i.e. the City of New York, hence the exclusion of leased facilities from fossil fuel consumption reporting.

Section 1. Electricity Usage

Context and Data Collection

Methodology

LL45 requires DCAS to report on electricity usage over the past fiscal year and the change in usage over the last five fiscal years for covered facilities. Data about electricity usage is drawn from monthly utility billing information. In this report, electricity usage consists of both grid electricity and onsite solar generation. Electricity usage data from fiscal years 2015 through 2019 were available for this report.

Electricity Usage Overview

- See table 2 for the summary of electricity usage data.
- Total electricity usage has decreased almost one and a half percent over the past five fiscal years for all covered facilities.⁵ With respect to facilities that have been in service for all five fiscal years reviewed (736 facilities), electricity usage decreased almost two and two-thirds percent, a drop that is better than what would be expected based on weather alone.⁶
- Fifty-six percent (426 facilities) of covered facilities decreased electricity usage over the past five fiscal years, 24 percent (183 facilities) increased their usage by up to 10 percent, eleven percent (80 facilities) increased their electricity usage between 11 to 24 percent, six percent (48 facilities) of covered facilities increased their usage 25 or more percent, and three percent (22 facilities) of covered facilities did not have electricity data over all five fiscal years (figure 1).

- Where there was an increase in electricity usage at covered facilities, contributing factors may include weather, facility occupancy rates, hours of operation, functional changes, additions in square footage and plug load; such data was not available for this report.
- Appendix A lists each facility's Fiscal Year 2019 electricity usage and change in usage over the past five fiscal years.

⁵ Usage data in the report has not been weather-normalized.

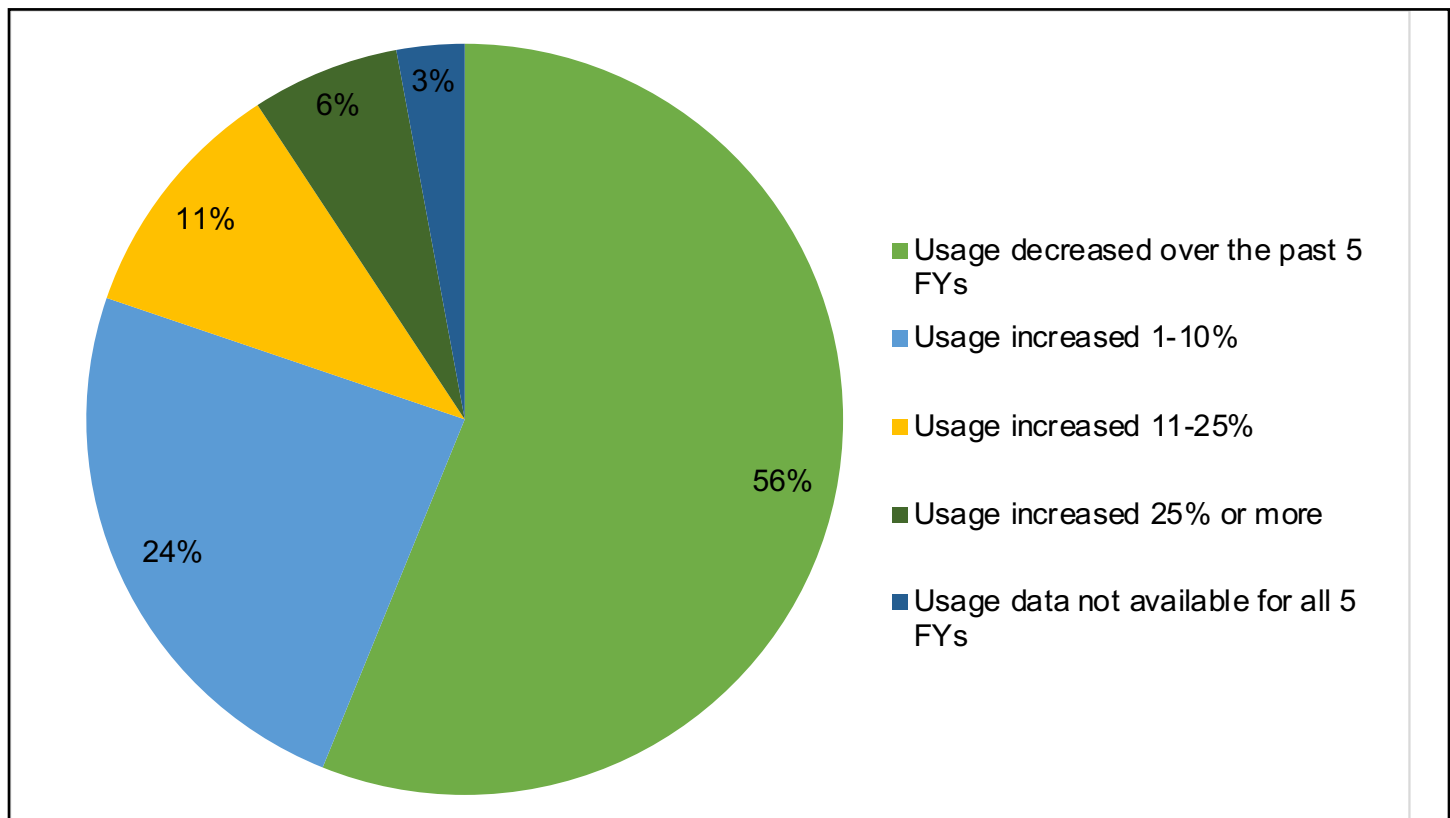

⁶ The average of monthly temperatures was higher in FY19 than FY15 by 2.6%, while Degree Days (DD) dropped 3%. DD is a measure that applies to weather-sensitive building energy usage; FY19 had a warmer summer and colder winter than FY15. Weighting DD change for total building energy use corresponds to a 1.6% overall drop in this weather indicator.

Section 2. Real-Time Metering Status

Context and Data Collection

Methodology

LL45 requires DCAS to report on RTM status in covered facilities -- specifically, which covered facilities have RTMs; whether RTM installation would be practicable and appropriate in those lacking RTMs; and if installation is appropriate and practicable, in which fiscal year RTMs will be installed. Generally, RTMs are monitoring devices that automatically relay energy usage data from a utility meter to a local centralized portal at regular, near real-time intervals. Since early 2015, DCAS has installed RTM at over 460 facilities; 31 are facilities with steam or gas RTM installed or had peak demand less than 300 kW in fiscal year 2019. Given sufficient resources, the city also has set a goal of installing such devices at enough facilities to cover 80 percent of municipal demand. This would include all covered facilities where RTMs are practicable and appropriate plus additional facilities that do not meet the criteria of covered facilities in this report.

DCAS initially focused RTM installation efforts to support the Demand Response (DR) Program; more recently, DCAS has focused on expanding RTM installations to support enrollment in the Load Management (LM) Program. Through the DR program, facilities reduce electric load during short-term periods of peak demand to preserve grid reliability and limit the use of the most expensive and often dirtiest power plants. Through the newer LM program, DCAS helps participating facilities identify additional time blocks in which they can reduce energy usage, instead of just during periods of peak demand. Through the LM program, DCAS trains building operators to identify operational changes⁷ to their buildings that support efficient long-term energy management. In general, RTMs improve performance during DR events by providing near-real-time information on the amount of load that has been shed. For the LM program, electricity usage patterns provided through RTMs are one important basis for both identifying potential savings periods and assessing the impacts of operational changes.

Last year, DCAS surveyed agencies to evaluate whether RTMs would be appropriate and practicable in covered facilities that do not yet have them. Since that survey, DCAS has conducted site surveys at most covered facilities to determine the appropriateness and practicality of RTM installations. A small percentage of covered facilities still require a site inspection to determine whether RTM is appropriate and practicable.

⁷ Changes may include, but not be limited to, adjusting heating and cooling setpoints; identifying and addressing simultaneous heating and cooling; and adjusting the operations schedule to perform functions during periods of lower overall energy demand.

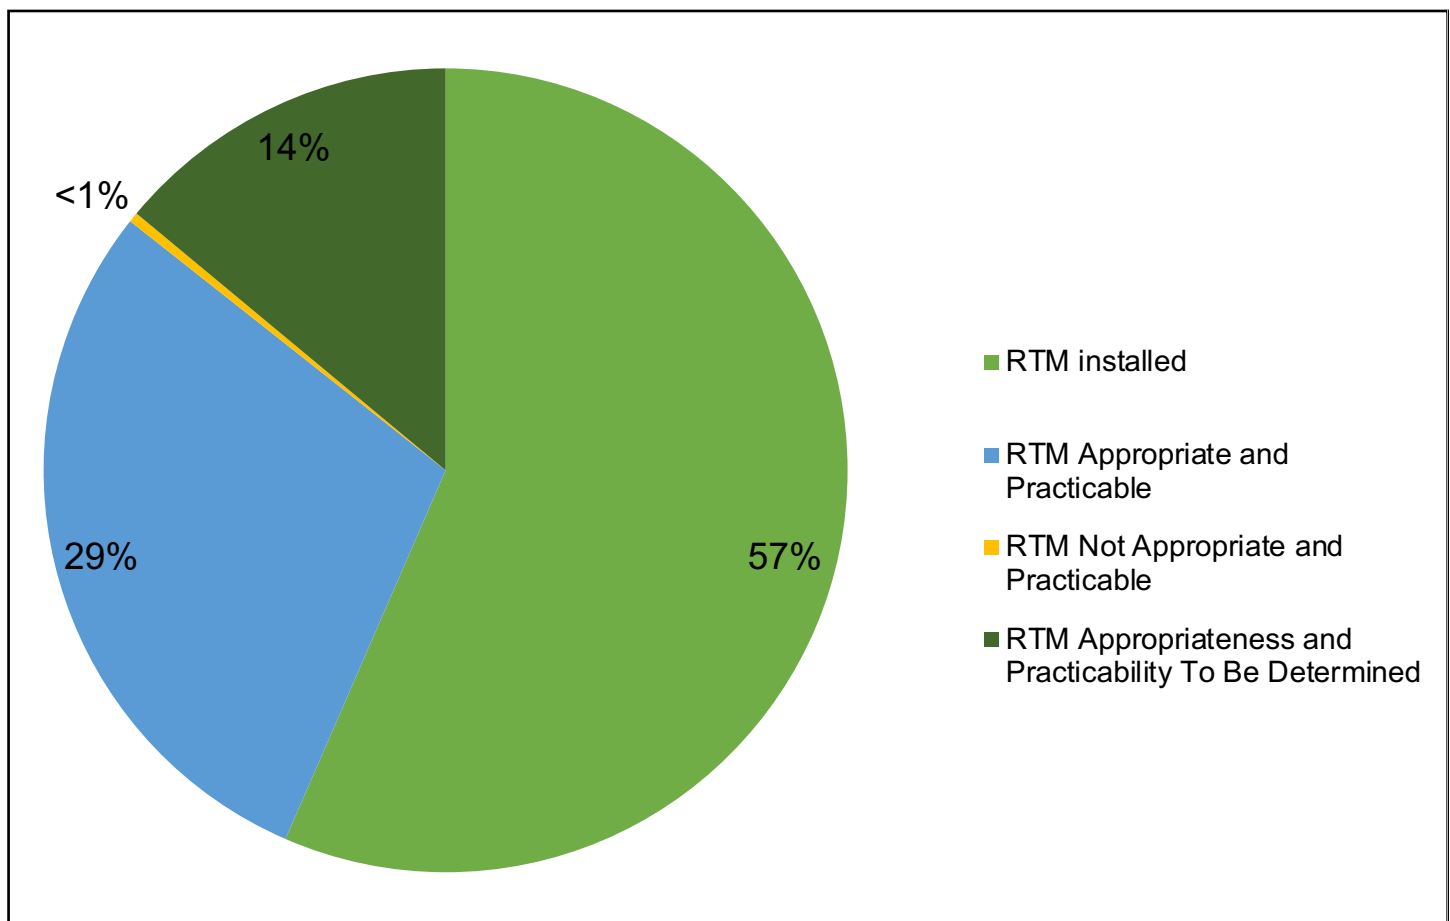

Real-Time Metering Overview

- Of the 759 covered facilities, 57 percent (429 facilities) of covered facilities already have electricity RTM installed. This leaves a balance of 330 facilities, or nearly 44 percent, that currently do not have installations (figure 2).
- RTM is appropriate and practicable for another 221 facilities (29 percent of all covered facilities). Less than one percent (three facilities) of all covered facilities indicated that RTM is not appropriate nor practicable. The remaining 14 percent (106 facilities) of all covered facilities will require a site inspection, so both the appropriateness and practicability of RTM and the potential schedule for installation can be determined. These site inspections will be scheduled in 2020 and should be completed by the end of the year. Installations are preceding at a pace of approximately 100 facilities a year. Therefore, depending on the results of site surveys and as of current building usage, RTM installations where appropriate and practicable are expected to be completed late in 2023 or early 2024.

- Appendix B includes the RTM status of each of the covered facilities for which electricity usage is reported.

Section 3. Fossil Fuel and Steam Usage

Context and Data Collection Methodology

LL45 requires DCAS to report on fossil fuel use for the last fiscal year and change in usage over the last five fiscal years for city-owned covered facilities (626 facilities). In this report, fossil fuels are defined as heating fuel oil (fuel oil numbers 2, 4, 6) and natural gas. District steam usage is included in this report because it is produced from fossil fuel usage within New York City. Fossil fuels and steam primarily are used for heat and hot water in covered facilities. To curb criteria air pollutants,⁸ the city mandated the phasing out of heavy heating fuels (i.e., fuel oils Nos. 4 and 6) and has pursued efforts to switch facilities to natural gas and use oil as emergency back-up. Heavy fuel oil phase-out has reduced city CO₂e emissions by almost one million tons and PM_{2.5} emissions by 65 percent since 2011.⁹ Several covered facilities, such as schools and hospitals, still rely on fuel oil no. 2 to heat some of their covered facilities. New York City requires all fuel oil to be ultra-low sulfur with a minimum biodiesel content of five percent; this results in fuel oil no. 2 having 95 percent fewer PM_{2.5} emissions than those of now-phased out fuel oil no. 6. As such, Fuel oil no. 2 has a similar emission profile to that of natural gas.

Data on natural gas and district steam usage come from monthly utility billing information. For heating oil, city agencies are responsible for tracking their oil usage and for reporting usage to DCAS. In this report, fiscal years 2014 through 2018 data are reported, since fiscal year 2018 is the last year for which full heating oil data currently is available.

Fossil Fuel and Steam Usage Overview

- See table 3 for the fossil fuel and steam usage data summary for all covered facilities.
- Over the past five fiscal years, overall fossil fuel and steam usage has decreased by almost seven percent; heating fuel oil usage has decreased 29 percent, reflecting the phasing out of Nos. 4 and 6 heavy fuel oils, while natural gas usage has increased by six percent. Overall fossil fuel usage has decreased by over six percent. Steam usage has decreased by almost eight percent.
- For facilities with fossil fuel or steam usage data for all five fiscal years (595 facilities), overall fossil fuel and steam usage decreased by over 11 percent between fiscal years 2014 and 2018.
- See appendix C for the table of fossil fuel usage and steam data.

⁸ Criteria air pollutants, as defined by the US Environmental Protection Agency, refer to ground-level ozone, fine particulate matter (PM_{2.5}), carbon monoxide, lead, sulfur dioxide, and nitrogen dioxide.

Section 4. Facility Envelope Assessment Status

Context and Data Sources

LL45 requires DCAS to report on whether city-owned covered facilities have undergone facility envelope assessments and if any improvements to a facility's envelope¹⁰ has been commenced, continued, or completed during the previous fiscal year. This report interprets the terms "envelope assessment" and "envelope improvement" to refer to envelope thermal performance; defined as the capacity of a building's envelope to prevent undesired energy transfers between a building's interior environment and the exterior. Envelope thermal performance is a critical component to energy efficiency, as it serves to both reduce energy loss from inside a building and temper influences from adverse external weather conditions on the building's interior environment – thereby reducing the amount of energy needed to maintain comfortable interior conditions.

Information on electricity usage, fossil fuel usage, and RTM installation status is collected by DCAS and its partner agencies. However, there is no comprehensive collection of information on statuses of envelope assessments or improvements across covered facilities. While DCAS has access to a range of data sources about aspects of facilities' envelopes, the wide majority of them will not provide the kind of information about envelope thermal performance that is useful for LL45 reporting compliance.

Overall, the available data sources can be grouped by those from which limited indirect thermal envelope performance information may be inferred, and data sources that directly measure thermal performance. For this report, the indirect data sources used were local law 87 (LL87) energy audits. LL87 energy audits, which are conducted with DCAS's oversight for covered buildings 50,000 square feet and greater, describe the condition of the audited structure's envelope based on visual observation, as the law does not require a detailed or quantitative assessment of thermal performance. Sixty-two city-owned covered facilities had LL87 energy audits in fiscal year 2019.

For this report, the direct envelope data sources used were records from the DCAS Deep Energy Retrofit Program. Records from this program provide more detailed information about facilities' envelope thermal performance and other energy performance characteristics. The program funds studies that describe the condition and quantify the approximate thermal performance of the studied building's major envelope elements. Some of these studies also include thermographic imaging to identify areas of high heat transfer and air or water infiltration (Figure 3).

- The Deep Energy Retrofit (DER) Program was established by DCAS in 2018 in response to executive order 26 and targets existing buildings with high levels of GHG emissions.

¹⁰ The facility envelope is the physical barrier between a building's interior environment and the exterior.

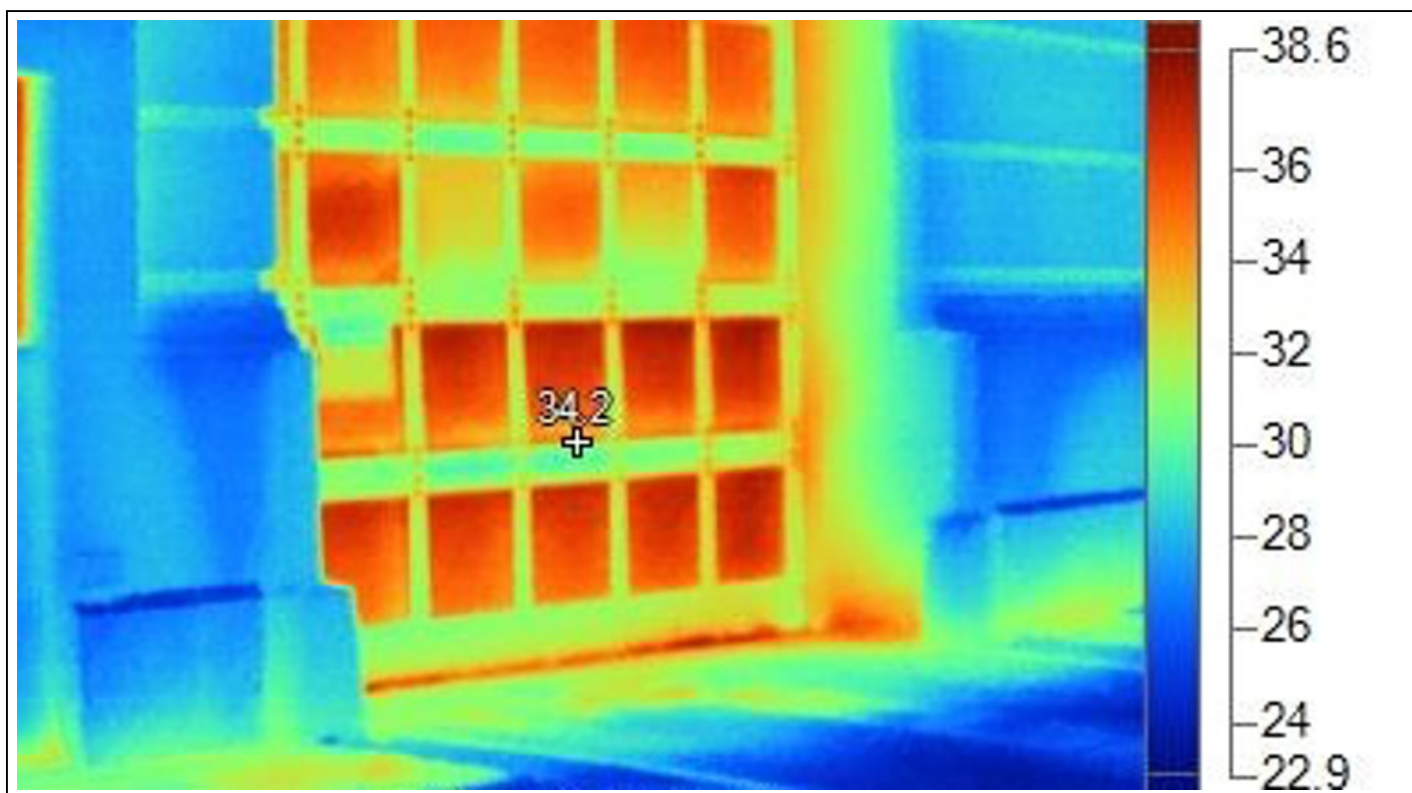

During FY19, DCAS has continued our efforts within this program, including drafting DER guidelines, which incorporates specific guidance on envelope assessments. The guidelines were identified as a crucial piece of documentation in order to anticipate the needs of partner agencies and in order to ensure the proper assessment of city facilities. In 2019, DCAS was actively working on nine DER assessments, four of which are covered under this local law. However, outside the parameters of local law 45, there are eight facility assessments currently in progress at various stages, along with other sites which are in pre-evaluation.

The Deep Energy Retrofit Program supports DCAS investments in major capital projects at the studied buildings. Lessons learned from such studies, such as the cost-effectiveness of triple-paned windows or the maximum insulation that can be applied to the interior of a masonry façade without risking freeze-thaw damage, will also be applied to other energy projects undertaken by DCAS. Studies of additional facilities are planned under both programs.

Appendix D includes envelope data. Only information on envelope assessments is available at this time.

The image shows heat loss through metal garage doors at an FDNY site which had previously been weather-stripped at the bottom. DCAS has conducted an initial energy audit at this building to further assess energy savings opportunities.

Section 5. Conclusion

Over the past five fiscal years, total electricity usage has decreased slightly for covered facilities with 300 kW and greater peak demand during fiscal year 2019. When looking at the population of facilities that were in operation for all five years electricity usage decreased by almost three percent. Changes in building usage patterns may be masking greater energy efficiency gains. Over the same period, fossil fuel and steam usage has decreased by almost seven percent for city-owned covered facilities. Over the last five fiscal years, more than half of covered facilities either had no change in electricity usage or decreased electricity usage, a little over a third increased energy usage up to 24 percent and six percent increased its usage by 25 percent or more.

In comparison, overall city facility electricity usage has decreased by almost one and a half percent between fiscal years 2015 and 2019. Natural gas usage has increased by almost six percent and steam usage has decreased almost eight percent between fiscal years 2014 and 2018.

Over half of covered facilities already have electricity RTM installed, and an additional 29 percent have been identified as facilities where RTM is appropriate and practicable. Thus, in total, 85 percent of covered facilities either already have or may be suitable for electricity RTM installation. In fiscal year 2019, the LM program, which relies on building operators utilizing RTM data for city facilities – most of them covered facilities – to make operational changes, accounted for over 67,000 MMBTUs net energy savings which translates to approximately 3,700 metric tons of greenhouse gas emissions avoided and a savings of $1 million.

There are limited city information sources available that contain relevant data on envelope thermal performance assessments. However, based on the information available, no city-owned covered facilities underwent direct facility envelope assessments in fiscal year 2019, although additional covered facilities will receive assessments in fiscal year 2020.

Appendix A: Covered Facilities' Electricity Usage

This appendix includes electricity usage information between fiscal years 2015 through 2019 for city-owned and city-leased covered facilities which had peak demand of 300 kW or more in fiscal year 2019. The last column is color-coded by usage change. For the last column, white indicates the covered facility was not using electricity in all five fiscal years; green indicates that the covered facility experienced a reduction in energy usage over the last five fiscal years; yellow indicates that the covered facility experienced an increase in energy usage of zero to 10 percent; orange indicates an increase in energy usage of 11 to 24 percent, and red indicates an increase in energy usage of 25 percent or more.
