MAYOR ADAMS LAUNCHES NEW PODCAST: ‘GET STUFF DONE-CAST’

NEW YORK – New York City Mayor Eric Adams today launched a new podcast — the ‘Get Stuff Done-Cast’ — a twice-monthly podcast where he will interview New Yorkers from all walks of life about the problems the city faces and the solutions to be found in the heart, hustle, humor, and heroics of the greatest city in the world. Mayor Adams also gave a sneak peek of today’s episode to New Yorkers who already signed up to receive direct communications from the city about new initiatives and policies, local events, and more. Episodes of the podcast will be available across podcast platforms including Spotify, Google Podcasts, Amazon Podcasts, Apple, and more.

“We vowed to build an administration that talks directly to — and hears directly from — the people we serve, and that’s exactly what the new ‘Get Stuff Done-Cast’ will help us do,” said Mayor Adams. “Sign up to hear directly from me and from New Yorkers from all walks of life on how we’re actually ‘Getting Stuff Done’ for our city.”

The podcast will be released twice monthly on Mondays. New Yorkers can sign up online to get podcast updates and hear directly from Mayor Adams about exclusive updates, major policies and initiatives, and local events.
