HEALTH DEPARTMENT OF THE
CITY OF NEW YORK,
BUREAU OF VITAL STATISTICS,
August 18, 1874.

To the Secretary of the Board of Health:

SIR—

In the week that ended on Saturday, the 15th inst., there were 722 deaths reported in this city. The number of deaths verified as occurring in the week ending August 8th was 691. Though there was a slight increase in the total mortality, there was a decrease of infantile deaths, and of those from diarrhoeal diseases. Both have the same significance, and by this decrease about 30 infants under two years of age were saved. There were 84 deaths caused by phthisis, 26 by diphtheria, 10 by scarlatina, and 12 by small-pox last week, or an increase of mortality by these four diseases, which is greater than the difference in the apparent mortality of the two successive weeks.

Only one death, from small-pox, occurred last week in a city dwelling; eleven of the twelve fatal cases of this disease were in the hospital on Blackwell's Island. The following is a brief summary of the whole number: In the hospital there died one native of Germany, aged 25 years; three of Ireland, aged 24, 28, and 30 years, respectively; one of England, aged 24, and seven native-born children, aged 2 months and 8 months; two aged 5 years; two aged 2, and one aged 6 years, respectively. The one case within the city was an infant of two months, that died in the rookery at 31 Baxter street. The fact, that in this city there is in the tenement houses, alone, a monthly increase of two thousand by birth, and about as many more, by immigration, from abroad, accounts for such occasional increase of this contagious pest, which demands the more effective measures for maintaining a perpetual system of public vaccination, as now ordered by the Health Department, under the new law.

The records of causes of death show that the tenement-house districts and the badly drained quarters suffer from the evils of local impurities. The death-rate of such localities has for six weeks been twice as great as in the well drained and well housed quarters of the city. The records for the First, Sixth, Eleventh, Twentieth, and Twenty-third Wards the past month prove this, and the death-rate in children under two years of age in all the tenement districts shows the true cause of the generally excessive death-rate in summer.

The following summary shows that in the past eight weeks of midsummer the infants under one year old suffered 48.99 per cent. of the total mortality, and the children under five years suffered 60.90 per cent. of the total:

Average Humidity.	54	65	69	59	56	64	61	62
Mean Temperature.	73.8	74.3	73.0	75.9	74.8	73.7	68.2	73.5
Total Deaths.	476	452	700	873	751	744	691	722	5,499
Deaths of Children under Five Years of Age.	216	238	359	582	590	484	444	436	3,349
Deaths of Children under One Year of Age.	140	150	242	437	448	372	320	301	2,419
Deaths from Zymotic Diseases.	161	163	276	481	487	402	362	351	2,683
Week ending	June 27	July 4	" 11	" 18	" 25	August 1	" 8	" 15	Total

The gradual increase of mortality as the summer weeks passed on occurred only among young children, and this increase continued until last week, though the temperature continued at the standard below where it was at the beginning of the period. During the past eight weeks there died 3,349 children under five years of age, or 418 per week, while of persons over five years of age only 143 died per week. The last census found 111,205, or 11.8 per cent. of the city population under five years old, and 88.2 per cent. was over five years of age.* These records for eight weeks show that in every 1,000 deaths 609 were children under five years of age, yet only 118 of every 1,000 city inhabitants are of this tender age, in which the rate of mortality has for eight weeks been at the rate of 268.8 in the 1,000 at that age, yearly, while the entire population over five years of age was losing at the rate of 8.12 per 1,000 annually of the latter ages.

Respectfully submitted,
ELISHA HARRIS, M.D.,
Registrar of Vital Statistics.

* The present total population of the city being estimated at 1,040,000, the present child population under five years of age being (according to census) 11.8 per cent. of the total, is estimated at 122,720. That portion of the population which is five years of age and over, constitutes 88.2 per cent. of the total. These ratios are given to show how the perils of childhood stand in contrast with the very small death-rate in the population that has past the fifth year of life in this city.
