PLEASE NOTE: The New York City Commission for the United Nations, Consular Corps and Protocol compiles this directory of the 110 consulates general, consulates, honorary consulates general, honorary consulates, and various consular officers and employees in New York that have been accredited by the United States Department of State, from information provided by the consulates. This publication is intended for informational purposes only.

These listings are subject to change without notice at any time. The United States Department of State is the official accrediting body for consular personnel in this country. Status of any consular officer should be verified with the Office of Protocol, United States Department of State.

THE CITY OF NEW YORK
OFFICE OF THE MAYOR
NEW YORK, N. Y. 10007

August 2008

Dear Friends:

It is a great pleasure to present the 2008-2009 Register of Foreign Consulates and Associated Government Offices in New York, the "Red Book."

As a place where more than 200 languages are spoken and where people of every nationality stand beside one another with mutual respect, New York City relies on the international community of consular offices to help provide vital services to our residents and visitors. Through the New York City Commission for the United Nations, Consular Corps and Protocol, our Administration offers support and guidance to these 110 offices, and the "Red Book" is just one of the many resources the City Commission provides not only to consulates, but also to businesses, government agencies, and all of our City's residents.

The City of New York looks forward to working with the consular community as we foster even stronger relationships with cities and countries around the world.

Sincerely,

A handwritten signature in black ink that reads "Michael R. Bloomberg".

BRADFORD E. BILLET
Deputy Commissioner

August 2008

Dear Friends:

Over the past six years, the number of consulates in New York City -- including consulates general, consulates, honorary consulates general, and honorary consulates -- has expanded to 110. That makes New York City host to the largest consular and diplomatic community in the world. In promoting trade, tourism, and investment, the consulates make a significant contribution to the City's vibrant international culture.

As the official liaison to the consular community since 1962, the City Commission is honored to work closely with members of the Consular Corps as they represent their governments' interests here in New York City and abroad. We also strive to make our international colleagues aware of mutual issues and initiatives relevant to their countries by hosting briefings and summits that are not only informative, but opportunities for consuls general and consular officers to get to know us and one another.

The Register of Foreign Consulates and Associated Government Offices in New York, widely used by businesses, individuals, and government agencies, serves as a valuable resource to encourage communication and exchange.

We are pleased to offer you the updated 2008-2009 version of this important directory.

Sincerely,

Marjorie B. Tiven
Commissioner
