LAW DEPARTMENT.

The following opinion constitutes a portion of the proceedings of the Law Department for the week ending August 16th, 1873:

LAW DEPARTMENT,
OFFICE OF COUNSEL TO THE CORPORATION,
August 14th, 1873.
Hon. Andrew H. Green, Comptroller:

SIR: Your letter to the Counsel to the Corporation, asking his opinion as to the meaning of certain clauses of Section 34, of the Charter of 1873, was duly received. You refer to the following provisions, namely:

"The Chamberlain shall pay all warrants drawn on the treasury by the Comptroller and countersigned by the Mayor, and no money shall be paid out of the treasury except on the warrant of the Comptroller so countersigned."

"The Chamberlain shall not draw any moneys from said banks or trust companies, unless by checks subscribed by him as Chamberlain and countersigned by the Comptroller, and no moneys shall be paid by either of the said banks or trust companies on account of the treasury except upon such checks."

And you inquire whether the requirements of the latter of the two clauses quoted, are fulfilled by checks, on the designated depository banks subscribed by the Chamberlain and countersigned by the Comptroller, to the order of the bank, sufficient to pay all warrants referred to in the former of the two clauses, or whether the latter clause is intended to provide a method of transferring amounts from one depository bank to another.

I have carefully considered the questions submitted by you, and am of the opinion that the latter of the two clauses relates solely to the transfer of moneys from one bank to another, and to the case of possible payments required by law to be made by the Chamberlain. Section 29, of the Charter, contains a provision that "All payments by or on behalf of the Corporation shall be made through the proper disbursing officer of the Department of Finance, on vouchers to be filed in said Department, by means of warrants drawn on the Chamberlain by the Comptroller and countersigned by the Mayor." Section 33, subdivision 7, of the Charter, provides that one of the bureaus in the Finance Department shall be "A bureau for the reception of all moneys paid into the treasury of the city, and for the payment of money on warrants drawn by the Comptroller and countersigned by the Mayor; the chief officer of which shall be called the Chamberlain." Section 34 contains the provision above quoted from your letter.

Here are three express and explicit declarations, in so many different sections of the charter, to the effect, that after a claim against the corporation has been adjusted by the Finance Department, it shall be paid by a warrant drawn on the treasury by the Comptroller, and countersigned by the Mayor.

There is no authority given by the charter to the Comptroller and Chamberlain to draw checks for sums in gross to the order of the banks, or to the order of any person, and in my opinion, if such checks for money in gross sums should be drawn, and the bank or person to whose order the checks were payable, should fail, the Chamberlain and Comptroller might be held liable for the money lost.

There being no authority for drawing checks for such sums in gross, if no claim against the city can be paid except by checks subscribed by the Chamberlain, and countersigned by the Comptroller, it follows that the Comptroller and Mayor, must first draw a warrant on the Chamberlain, and then the Chamberlain and Comptroller must draw a check on one of the depository banks, before any creditor of the city can get his money.

This mode of payment would double the already sufficiently onerous duty of the Comptroller in signing warrants; would delay creditors in getting their just dues; and would be such a roundabout and red-tape manner of paying claims against the city, that I cannot believe the Legislature ever supposed such a construction would be put upon the law.

Different statutes relating to the same subject, and different parts of the same statute must always be read together, and made to harmonize, if possible, and I can see no way in which to harmonize the provisions of the charter above cited, except by construing the clause requiring moneys to be drawn from the depository banks by the joint checks of the chamberlain and comptroller, to refer to those cases in which it is the duty of the chamberlain to transfer money from one bank to another, or to pay some claim against the city.

He can not keep more than two millions of dollars in any one bank, and he and the Mayor and Chamberlain, may, by notice to the Comptroller, change the depository banks.

Section 1, of chapter 623, of the Laws of 1866, allowed the city moneys to be transferred from one bank to another, by the joint warrant of the Chamberlain and Comptroller. The clause in question of the charter of 1873, seems to me to have been intended for the same purpose, with the additional design, that, if the Chamberlain should be required by law to make any payments directly, he could not do so without the knowledge and approval of the Comptroller.

I am, sir, yours very respectfully,
GEORGE P. ANDREWS,
Assistant Counsel to the Corporation.

LAW DEPARTMENT,
OFFICE OF COUNSEL TO THE CORPORATION,
August 14th, 1873.
Hon. William Laimbeer, President Department of Public Charities and Correction:

SIR—The Counsel to the Corporation duly received your letter of the 8th instant, asking his instructions as to the forms necessary to be observed in carrying out the following provisions of section 91 of the charter of 1873, viz.:

"And all such contracts when given shall be given to the lowest bidder, the terms of whose contracts shall be settled by the Counsel to the Corporation, as an act of preliminary specification to the bid or proposal, and who shall give security for the faithful performance of the contract, and in the manner prescribed and required by ordinance; and the adequacy and sufficiency of this security shall, in addition to the justification and acknowledgement, be approved by the Comptroller."

The last clause of section 119, of the charter of 1873, provides, that "the ordinances of the Common Council of the City of New York, in force April 1st, 1870, and all ordinances passed and adopted since May 1st, 1870, and in force at the time of the passage of this act are hereby revived and continued in full force as city ordinances subject to modification, amendment or repeal by the Common Council of said city."

Article 2, of Chapter 7, of the revised ordinances of 1866, contains very full provisions as to the forms to be observed by all heads of departments, in reference to the making of contracts and those provisions, except in cases where they have become obsolete, on account of changes in the organization of the government of the city, and in cases where they are in conflict with
