No. 417.

AN ORDINANCE regulating the sprinkling of the streets, lanes and highways of The City of New York.

Be it Ordained by the Board of Aldermen as follows:

Section 1. All persons and corporations engaged in sprinkling the paved streets, lanes or highways of The City of New York shall be required to contract with the Commissioner of Water Supply, Gas and Electricity for the purchase and sale of the water necessary therefor, and obtain the approval of the President of the Borough to such contract, but in no case shall there be contracted for or used more water than shall be sufficient to thoroughly lay the dust on such streets, lanes and highways.

Every street railroad corporation in the boroughs of Richmond and Queens shall sprinkle the pavement between its tracks and rails when and as often as directed so to do by the Superintendent of Highways. Water shall be furnished for this purpose free of charge by The City of New York.

Sec. 2. All ordinances and parts of ordinances inconsistent with the provisions of the foregoing section are hereby repealed.

Adopted by the Board of Aldermen June 28, 1904.

Approved by the Mayor July 25, 1904.

City of New York—Office of the Mayor, }
July 25, 1904.

Memorandum to accompany an ordinance passed by the Board of Aldermen on June 28, 1904, and approved by me on July 25, 1904, entitled

"AN ORDINANCE regulating the sprinkling of the streets, lanes and highways of The City of New York."

In view of the general misapprehension concerning the scope and effect of this ordinance, I now state the grounds on which I base my approval of it. They are these:

First—I am advised that there now exists no proper legal authority under which the sprinkling of the streets in this city can be done, and this ordinance is designed to and does accomplish the purpose of providing for such authority. That such authority should exist and such work should be done seems clear to me. My opinion, however, is based, not simply upon my own views, but upon the opinion of the Board of Health, a copy of which is hereto annexed, and upon the opinions of individuals, partnerships and corporations numbering in all some four hundred, who have duly petitioned that this ordinance be approved.

Second—I am advised that this ordinance in no way either does or purports to do anything that can be construed as interfering with the powers now held and exercised by the Street Cleaning Department, and that it can in no way stand as the cause for any action which would in any way interfere with the present practice of the Street Cleaning Department in flushing the streets of this city. From the above it is manifest that these two conclusions must be reached:

1. The Street Cleaning Department is left wholly free to continue as heretofore in carrying forward the work of cleansing the streets; and

2. There is provided here simply an additional legal method of endeavoring to do away with the accumulation of dust with which the city is afflicted during the spring, summer and autumn months.

(Signed) GEO. B. McCLELLAN, Mayor.

City of New York—Department of Health,
Office of the Commissioner of Health,
July 19, 1904.

Hon. GEORGE B. McCLELLAN, Mayor of The City of New York, City Hall, New York:

Sir—In reply to your communication of July 11, relative to a resolution passed by the Board of Aldermen relating to sprinkling of the streets, I have the honor to report as follows:

The Advisory Board of Physicians of the Board of Health met Monday afternoon at 3 p. m., and your communication and the resolution of the Board of Aldermen were placed before them. After some discussion, the following preamble and resolutions were adopted:

Whereas, The presence of large quantities of dust in the air of the streets is a distinct menace to the health of the city;

Resolved, That thorough sprinkling of the streets and highways of the city is of undoubted value in fixing the dust and thus diminishing the amount floating in the air;

Resolved, That sprinkling or flushing the streets should in all instances precede sweeping the streets;

Resolved, That the thorough flushing of the streets is, in the opinion of the Advisory Board, the best manner of cleaning;

Resolved, That an abundant supply of salt water for use in flushing the streets would, in the opinion of the Advisory Board, be of great value.

It would seem to me, in view of the above and from my own knowledge of the effect of dust in assisting in the production of respiratory diseases, that the more the streets are sprinkled and the more the dust is laid and removed, the less will be the death rate due to this form of disease. I therefore believe that anything tending to keep down the dust is a benefit to the citizens.

I am,

Respectfully yours,

THOMAS DARLINGTON, President.

ART COMMISSION.

MINUTES OF MEETING OF ART COMMISSION, HELD AT ITS OFFICE, ROOM 21, CITY HALL, ON TUESDAY, JULY 12, 1904, AT 4 O'CLOCK P. M.

Present—President Warner, presiding; Commissioners Bigelow, Crimmins, Farragut and Marshall, and Hon. George E. Best, Commissioner of Bridges, in respect to the designs for the Manhattan Bridge.

On communications from Commissioners Beckwith, Healy and Rhinelander, explaining their absence, it was excused.

Minutes of meeting of June 23 were read and approved.

The President's report was presented, stating that the following submissions had been referred to committees since the last meeting, June 23:

Submission 256.

Hall of Records, Sculptures—Commissioners Proctor, Chairman; Farragut and Crimmins. Appointed July 11, 1904.

Submission 249.

On motion and at the request of the Committee on Manhattan Bridge, a hearing was granted the representatives of the Municipal Art Society and the Fine Arts Federation.

Whereupon, Mr. Calvin Tomkins, on behalf of the Municipal Art Society, then submitted the following communication:

To the Art Commission of The City of New York:

Gentlemen—Referring to the proposed changes in the plans of the Manhattan Bridge, the Municipal Art Society recently wrote his Honor the Mayor in substance as follows:

The Society too well appreciates the responsibility left upon the Bridge Commissioner by the present lack of system in such respects to question or attempt to weigh the consideration upon which he is acting. The situation, however, is so typical in the waste of public money, the sacrifice of public convenience, the disfigurement of our city and the pressure of rival private interests involved, that we feel the occasion proper respectfully to urge as we do:

(1) Unless conclusive reason to the contrary be promptly shown under every safeguard of open procedure and the plans already approved definitely condemned, that the execution of these plans be at once undertaken at the earliest practicable date; and

(2) That, either following procedure afforded by other cities or by such substitution therefor as local conditions may require, such a system of procedure be provided for the selection of site, planning and erection of structures to be built at public expense as shall secure the most practical and creditable results consistent with economy and promptness.

On behalf of this Society I wish now to reiterate our position in this matter. The Manhattan Bridge will when completed probably be the most expensive bridge structure spanning the East river.

Under the last City administration the Mayor appointed an expert Bridge Commission to report on the engineering features involved in a change of plans for this bridge. A summary of this report was submitted to your Honorable Body, in order to enable it to act intelligently in the premises, and presumably your favorable action was in part based upon such report.

Plans for the "aesthetic features" of a different type of bridge are now submitted to you unaccompanied by any engineering report similar to the above referred to, and we understand you are asked to act without expert advice. Under the circumstances we believe that any action on your part in reference to this matter would now be precipitate and unwise. Further, we believe that it would be ineffectual, since the submission made to you would be incomplete, comprehending as it does only the "aesthetic features" of the bridge. As a consequence, the authority of the Bridge Commissioner to enter into or carry out any contract based upon it would be open to challenge, and thus lead to vexatious complications and delays to the disadvantage of the City.

The Manhattan Bridge as finally constructed should be planned so as to receive any amount of traffic that may pass over it, without limitation except as to facilitation of travel; i. e., it should constitute a highway between the two boroughs, and for transit purposes it should have the same stability as a city street. The former bridge plans, we are advised, provided for such efficiency. It is doubtful, however, if the new plans submitted to you accomplish this end, and we are sustained in this opinion by good engineering authority.

Is it well to leave this question of stability open when the facts can readily be determined by resorting to an impartial engineering commission to be appointed by his Honor the Mayor, in accordance with the procedure previously resorted to by the City? We ask the question at this juncture to relieve the Municipal Art Society of responsibility in a matter of great public importance.

Respectfully submitted,

MUNICIPAL ART SOCIETY,

Calvin Tomkins, President.

Stevens Institute, Hoboken, N. J., July 9, 1904.

Mr. CALVIN TOMKINS, President, Municipal Art Society:

Dear Sir—In response to your request for an opinion from me on the recently published plans of the Manhattan Bridge, I am constrained to say that I cannot give an unqualified opinion upon plans incomplete.

Having, however, read the report of the Commission of experts appointed by Mayor Low to examine and pass upon the first plans for this bridge, I have no hesitation in saying that the same four questions therein discussed should be the basis for a similar examination of the new plans.

These questions are:

(1) Are the plans in accordance with the advance knowledge of suspension bridge designing with a view to economy of construction, provision for temperature stresses, rigidity under concentrated loads and resistance to wind pressure; also as regards quality of steel and its protection against corrosion?

(2) Will the strength, stability and carrying capacity of the bridge be adequate for any congestion of traffic that may occur on the railroad tracks, roadways and promenades?

(3) Will the structure as designed be fireproof?

(4) Do the plans permit of speedy erection of the superstructure after the completion of the anchorages and tower foundations?

It seems to me that these questions are of the very first importance, and I cannot see how the architectural features can be considered properly in advance of a complete and satisfactory solution of them.

The engineering features have an important relation to the architectural appearance of the bridge, and an open investigation of them should certainly precede any consideration of the aesthetic features of the bridge. Any subsequent "doctoring" of the former being almost sure to result in obvious disagreements with the latter.

This is particularly true of a suspension bridge crossing the East river which must be designed to sustain without failure heavy traffic for generations to come. The Brooklyn Bridge has shown that if such structure be wanting in rigidity and strength its life will be short, and it is commonly known among engineers that this bridge will want rebuilding in a few years.

The principal weakness in the Brooklyn Bridge is in the so-called stiffening trusses, whose office is to prevent a wave motion of the floor. To correct this fault these trusses in the Williamsburg Bridge were made forty feet high, and to this the unsightly appearance of the bridge is ascribed.

In the last design of the Manhattan Bridge as published, the stiffening trusses appear to have substantially the same height as the Brooklyn Bridge, or not much over half the height of those in the Williamsburg Bridge. This has an important bearing upon the serviceableness, stability and carrying capacity of the bridge under the vast and dense traffic which is expected to move across it, and no bridge is up to modern requirements whose design does not provide sufficient stiffness to prevent an injurious change if formed with different positions and arrangements of the moving load.

It must therefore be clear that before the Municipal Art Commission attempts to form any judgment as to the aesthetic features of the bridge, it should have before it a report from a commission of independent engineering experts on the four questions quoted above.

And, if modifications in the design should be required for engineering reasons, they should be fully agreed upon and approved by the Commission, as was done with the first design before its submission to the Art Commission for final judgment.

The investigation should cover the entire structure, including anchorages, towers and suspended frame-work and a complete strain sheet. Otherwise, it may happen that a design may be submitted to the Art Commission which is inadequate for the traffic and insecure in its construction, the architectural appearance of which, however, may be pleasing.

The accident with the Brooklyn Bridge three years ago, when a number of suspension rods broke, and a part of the bridge within a few hours might have dropped into the river, is an emphatic indication of the care required in the design of such a bridge, and the admissibility of submitting the plans to the criticism of the board of independent experts.

Yours very truly,

J. BURKETT WEBB.

New York, July 11, 1904.

Mr. CALVIN TOMKINS, President, Municipal Art Society, N. Y.:

Dear Sir—You have called upon me for general engineering advice relating to the plans of the proposed Manhattan Bridge across the East river, and in connection with the presentation of certain matters bearing upon them to the Art Commission of The City of New York. As but a few days have been at my disposal I have had no opportunity to give detailed consideration to the engineering features of these plans. I have, however, carefully examined the general views of the structure lately published in the current engineering journals.

It is my purpose, therefore, to advise you rather as to what seems to me to be the best procedure under the present conditions and in the interests of the City than to express any criticisms of the plans.

The proposed Manhattan Bridge is of the stiffened suspension type, having a central span of 1,475 feet and two side spans of 725 feet each, much of the same general character as the Brooklyn Bridge, except that the towers are of steel frame-work instead of masonry. The cables are to be of steel wire and the stiffening trusses are to be of uniform depth, the lower cords running along the roadway and lower railway tracks. The structure is to carry four trolley tracks, four elevated railways, one 34-foot roadway and two sidewalks, as provided in the previous plans.

Question has been raised regarding the stiffness of the structure in view of the apparently small depth of the stiffening truss, under heavy moving loads, changes of temperature and high winds, and in regard to other features of stability and strength. It is reasonable to assume that such matters have received due consideration in the design of the bridge, but for the reasons already stated I have been unable to make the requisite examinations for definitely answering these questions. On the other hand it is only proper to state that in the design of such a great structure where the loads are a number of railways, roadway and sidewalks must be treated simultaneously, and yet where it is at least highly improbable that all will be loaded concurrently to their full capacities, there is legitimate room for difference in judgment as to the proper total or individual loads to be assumed in computations and as to the unit stresses to be used in conjunction with them. These and a number of other similar elements are of the greatest importance in the proper design of the structure from an engineering point of view, and the aesthetic treatment of the design is so closely interwoven with the main engineering features that it should not be separated from the latter.

In view of the great magnitude of this work and of the importance of the City that it be done in such a manner as to secure the highest excellence in design and execution, I recommend you to urge the Mayor to submit this design to the examination of a board of engineers, equally eminent and qualified as that which passed upon previous plans of the same bridge. In making this recommendation there is no reflection whatever on the engineering organization of the Department of Bridges, of whose professional skill and ability I entertain no doubt, nor is it intended to trench upon the legitimate right of any administration to revise reasonably the plans for public works to which it happens to fall heir. It is my judgment, however, that in the design and construction of so great a public work as this bridge, monumental in character, the technical work of the Department should be supplemented by deliberate and careful study of the best professional talent available. There is nothing new in such a procedure; it has already been followed in treating a prior set of designs for this bridge and for the Blackwell's Island Bridge, and it is frequently followed in Europe for great public works. It is practically the only conclusive assurance that can be given to the public that all reasonable means have been exhausted to secure the best possible results.

In placing the plans before such a board I believe the desired ends can efficiently be attained by submitting the same set of questions as were answered by the board of which the late Mr. George S. Morison was chairman. These questions are:

(1) Are the plans, including those of anchorage, in accordance with advanced knowledge of suspension bridge designing, with a view to economy of construction, provision for temperature stresses, rigidity under concentrated loads, and resistance to wind pressure; also as regards quality of steels and its protection against corrosion?

(2) Will the strength, stability and carrying capacity of the bridge be adequate for any congestion of traffic that may occur on the railroad tracks, roadways and promenades?

(3) Will the structure, as designed, be fireproof?

(4) Do the plans permit of speedy erection of the superstructure, after the completion of the anchorages and tower foundations?

By this, or an equivalent procedure, it can be conclusively determined, in the interests of the City, whether the accepted plans embody excellence, or whether they will enable the bridge to be built economically and in the shortest time.

Respectfully,

WILLIAM H. BURR, Consulting Engineer.

The communication was received and ordered placed on file.

On behalf of the Municipal Art Society and the Fine Arts Federation, Mr. Tomkins then requested that they be accorded a further hearing if the plans were not acted upon at this meeting.

The Committee on Manhattan Bridge reported that it had asked the Commissioner of Bridges to prepare and submit to the Art Commission a complete model of one of the two towers.

The committee further reported that it had requested the Commissioner of Bridges to furnish and file such definite statement as he might see fit for the reasons for the rejection of the plans formerly approved by the Art Commission and for the substitution of new ones therefor, and also for the extent to which the plans now before the Art Commission have so far been adopted, as, subject to the approval of the Art Commission, presumably to be carried into effect.

Commissioner Best then presented the following communication, which was received and ordered placed on file:

July 11, 1904.

To the Honorable the Art Commission of The City of New York, City Hall, New York City:

Gentlemen—I am in receipt of a letter from the Assistant Secretary of the Commission, dated July 7, 1904, and reading as follows:

"I am directed by the committee having in charge the designs of the Manhattan Bridge to request you to furnish and file at the meeting of the commission next Tuesday afternoon, at four o'clock, such definite statement as you may see fit for the reasons for the rejection of the plans formerly approved by the Art Commission, and for the substitution of new ones therefor; and also of the extent to which the plans now before the Art Commission have so far been adopted as, subject to the approval of the Art Commission, presumably to be carried into effect."

"May I add that you are a member of the commission for the consideration of these designs, and they will probably be considered at the meeting of the commission next Tuesday afternoon, July 12, at 4 P. M., in this office."

The Manhattan Bridge was authorized by the Board of Public Improvements in 1899, and its construction was approved by the Municipal Assembly and the Mayor in January, 1900, "in accordance with plans prepared under the direction of the Commissioner of Bridges and filed in the office of the Bridge Department on November 29, 1899." These plans provided for the construction of a wire cable suspension bridge similar to the bridge covered by the plans now before the Art Commission, and were never, so far as I can ascertain, officially rejected pursuant to law, although about November 16, 1903, they were submitted by the Commissioner of Bridges to the Art Commission, and thereafter were withdrawn from its consideration without any action having been taken thereon.

I am, I believe, in duty bound to adhere to the terms of the original authorization of this structure and to the type of a wire cable suspension bridge originally adopted, unless the interests of the City should seem to me to require some other type of construction, in which case, the approval of the Board of Estimate, the Board of Aldermen and the Mayor, and of the Art Commission would have to be obtained to sanction the change.

In response to a request from the Bridge Commissioner on this subject, the Corporation Counsel rendered an opinion on January 30, 1902, in part as follows: "I do not think these plans can be changed without the authorization of the Board of Aldermen. I think it would be safer and better if you desire to modify the plans in any material respect to get the authorization of both the Board of Estimate and Apportionment and of the Board of Aldermen."

On assuming office I directed my Engineers to revise the original plans of the Manhattan Bridge, with a view of securing the approval of the Art Commission, as required by the amended Charter, and retained architects, who had not been in any way connected with previous plans for the bridge, to give architectural expression to the design, in order to make it a pleasing as well as a useful structure.

General plans and detailed specifications had been prepared during 1902-3 for a structure radically different in type from those of the original design and involving the use of eye-bar chains instead of wire cables. These plans had been carefully prepared from the aesthetic standpoint, and received the approval of the Art Commission on March 10, 1903.

In January, 1904, four years had elapsed since the authorization of this structure; during the corresponding period on the Williamsburg Bridge the anchorages had been made ready for the cables, the steel towers and end spans had been built and all the major contracts, excepting that for the suspended span, had been let; and this, notwithstanding the fact that serious delays and hindrances had occurred, arising chiefly from want of funds and labor troubles. While the Williamsburg Bridge was seriously delayed in construction it was actually built within the time prescribed in its original charter, and such delays as did occur were in no wise attributable to the design selected, and do not detract from its value as a standard from which to estimate the probable time for the completion of similar work.

The Manhattan Bridge is to-day more important and more necessary to Brooklyn than either of the earlier bridges over the East river were when built. I cannot hope to have it completed during my term of office, but I can, at least, take such action as will expedite the work upon it and assure its early completion; the question, then, of greatest importance presented to me was this: Which type of bridge can be most quickly completed? It is now known with a great degree of certainty how long it will require to build a wire cable suspension bridge, for the City has already built two such bridges, and is in a position to profit by the experience gained in their construction. On the other hand, nothing definite is known as to how long it will require to build a large eye-bar chain bridge. No structure of the eye-bar type, approaching this in magnitude, has ever been built; the material of which the bars must be made has never been used in bridge construction, and the bars themselves are of dimensions far beyond any which have ever been made. A large portion of the delay in building the Brooklyn Bridge was due to the want of knowledge at that time of the manufacture and use of steel, and a portion of the delay in the completion of the cables of the Williamsburg Bridge was due to inexperience in working the special steel required into wire of the dimension and length prescribed.

The size of the bars and pins required for an eye-bar chain is so large and the difficulties of erection of the rocking towers and the huge and unwieldy bars is so great that special and unusual machinery, apparatus and methods must be invented and used in the manufacture of the material, the shaping of the members and in their erection. The uncertainty as to how uneasily or in what time these things can be done makes it absolutely impossible to predict when such a bridge could be completed, but makes it certain that the wire cable bridge, of which we have positive knowledge, can be finished in very much less time.

Your attention has been called to the fact that the wire cable bridge may be less rigid than the eye-bar chain bridge; the Board of United States Army Engineers, who reported on plans for proposed bridges over the Hudson river, remarked that "the great distinction between the stable equilibrium of a suspension bridge which cannot break down from failure of any stiffening member and the unstable equilibrium of a truss arch or cantilever bridge in which the failure of a single member may involve the collapse of the entire bridge ought to receive full recognition in the adoption of unit stresses and safety factors"; and, again, "rigidity is in this case of much less importance than it is in most other kinds of bridges; indeed, it may be shown that a certain amount of flexibility is a positive advantage in suspension bridges—the Board does not doubt that, within narrow limits, a certain degree of flexibility is an advantage to the bridge." And the late George S. Morison wrote in referring to the changes in shape incident to changes in load in a suspension bridge: "These changes of shape play an important part in suspension bridges, and so long as they are kept within limits which do not disturb convenience of operation they are a source of strength instead of weakness." It is due to this fact that suspension bridges have successfully endured the most excessive loading, as in the case of the Niagara Bridge and the Brooklyn Bridge.

I have directed that the new plans shall provide for precisely the same loading and capacity as prescribed for the eye-bar chain design, and these can be more easily and economically provided for with wire than with chain cables. It is well known that steel reaches its greatest strength when drawn into wire; the wire drawing develops the strength and tests the material as well. Of course, no single eye-bar of the eight or ten thousand which would be required for a chain bridge could be tested as to its strength and afterwards used; actual tests of full-sized specimens would, therefore, all be vicarious and leave great uncertainty as to the actual condition of the steel in any bar used in the bridge. Pieces of wire from both ends of every one of the 30,000 wires used in the Williamsburg Bridge were tested by breaking, and the actual strength of every one of these wires is therefore definitely known.

The relation of the material for the two types of bridges is in other respects especially favorable to the wire cable. The Board of Army Engineers remarked: "The connections for a series of links (eye-bars) add 20 to 25 per cent. to the dead weight of the chain, while in the form of wire has a minimum strength more than double its maximum strength in the form of bars suitable for the construction of a suspension chain." As a matter of fact the material used for the eye-bar chain would weigh more than twice as much, would cost at least 50 per cent. more, and would then be only about half as strong as the wire for the cables.

It has been said that the Manhattan Bridge will be the most expensive of all the bridges over the East river. The increased loading beyond that prescribed for the Williamsburg Bridge and the addition of two elevated railway tracks will increase the cost materially over the estimates made for the original plans. It is now known that the estimated cost of about six and one-half million dollars for building the portion of the eye-bar chain bridge now under consideration must necessarily be increased to nearly ten million dollars. The wire cable bridge for the same construction will contain ten thousand tons less steel, and it now seems probable that the entire cost of the portion of the structure covered by the new plans will not exceed eight and one-half million dollars.

For the reasons above given, and others which time does not permit me to detail, I have had no hesitancy in rejecting the eye-bar chain type of construction for the Manhattan Bridge, and in substituting therefor a type of bridge which the City has built in two instances for even longer spans. It seems to me the part of prudence and in the line of safety, expedition and public interest to avoid indulgence in a colossal experiment, and to confine our efforts to the safe, sane ground of what may be termed for The City of New York, every day experience. No living soul can predict with any degree of certainty when an eye-bar chain bridge could be completed, but we can tell, accidents aside, within a fraction of a year, when the wire cable bridge can be opened to the public, and very accurately what it will cost.

I am well aware that a commission of celebrated engineers passed favorably upon the design for the eye-bar chain bridge, and I am far from denying that a structure of that type can be built at this site. This commission made no technical comparison between the two types of bridges and their incidental remark that a chain bridge could be built more rapidly and cheaply than a cable bridge must be regarded as a mere expression of personal preference, because there is absolutely no data in existence from which to determine with the remotest degree of accuracy what the cost of the chain bridge will be in either time or money.

The element of certainty against uncertainty, both as to cost, time and safety, seems to me conclusive; and now that the architects have given adequate expression, perhaps never before accomplished, to the airy lightness and elastic stability of the suspension bridge in the plans submitted for your approval, I feel sure that the City has it within reach to secure a strong, an efficient and a beautiful bridge at a reasonable cost and within a reasonable time.

The Greater New York Charter requires from your Honorable Body approval of the architectural or aesthetic features of structures of this kind. The same instrument imposes upon me the responsibility for the design and construction of such work, aided as I am by engineers of experience and skill. The studies of this problem, which have been made by these engineers, and my own knowledge of the facts and conditions of the case, convince me that an eye-bar chain bridge should not be built at this site and that a wire cable bridge is the only suitable one, and the only one for which I can undertake to be responsible.

The plans submitted to you cover the aesthetic features of the proposed bridge, the detail working drawings for the structure are now well under way, $10,000,000 are now available for the work, and I expect to award the contracts for the anchorages within sixty days and those for the steel structure within a few months after the general plans now before you have been made satisfactory to the Commission.

Many points must remain untouched in a communication of this character. Should it seem desirable to you to go into the subject more in detail, or should any other reasons seem to you to require it, I shall be glad to have the Engineers of the Department of Bridges and the architects appear before the Commission at any time.

Respectfully yours,
(Signed) GEO. E. BEST, Commissioner of Bridges.

The President reported that other communications from Hon. J. Edward Swannstrom, Hon. James McKeen on behalf of the Brooklyn League; Mr. Judson G. Wall, on behalf of the Prospect Heights Citizens' Association, and Hon. Gustav Lindenthal had been received and referred to the Committee on Manhattan Bridge plans.

The Committee on Manhattan Bridge further recommended that the Mayor be requested to secure the presentation to the Commission of such engineering data and details of the proposed bridge as may form a basis for full and complete action thereon by the Commission.

On motion, the whole matter was laid over until the next meeting, and the Assistant Secretary directed to forward to each member of the Commission a copy of all communications received and of the recommendation of the Committee.

Commissioner Best requested permission to withdraw the designs for the Manhattan Bridge now before the Commission until a model had been prepared, when they would again be submitted.

There being no objection, the permission was granted and the designs in question returned to Commissioner Best.

FOR THE RIGHT TO DUMP AND FILL-IN BEHIND THE BULKHEAD WALL RECENTLY BUILT AT THE NORTHERLY END OF THE CHLSEA SECTION ON THE NORTH RIVER, BOROUGH OF MANHATTAN.

TERMS AND CONDITIONS OF SALE.

The work to be done is to fill in with suitable material, as hereinafter described, the area behind the new bulkhead wall extending from a point 100 feet south of the southerly side of West Twenty-third street extended, southerly, a distance of about 1,035 feet, measured along the bulkhead wall, to a point on the northerly line of West Twentieth street extended.

The northerly limiting line of this contract will run parallel with West Twenty-third street, while the southerly limiting line will run at right angles to the bulkhead wall.

The filling will extend from the rear of the bulkhead wall or coping westerly a distance of about from 70 to 120 feet to the face or bank, which has been excavated in the recent dredging. For the length of wall extending along the southerly side of West Twenty-second street, and for a distance of about 400 feet, the filling will extend from the rear of the bulkhead wall northerly to the face or bank excavated in the recent dredging thereof.

The filling will be brought to a grade level with the top of the coping of the bulkhead wall and will extend inshore on a regular grade to the top of the ground at the adjacent or inshore bank.

It is estimated that the area outlining the above-described limits will create a basin to be filled in, under this agreement, whose cubical contents in net void space is equal to 50,000 cubic yards.

Bidders will state in writing a lump sum price, which they agree to pay for the privilege of filling in the area between about West Twentieth and West Twenty-third streets, as above more fully described, and being the basin calling for the filling of a void space estimated at about 50,000 cubic yards.

Should the Commissioner of Docks deem it to the best interest of the City, he may extend the southerly limit of this fill southerly a distance of about 400 feet to a point about 105 north of the northerly side of West Eighteenth street, the southerly line or limit to be at right angles to the bulkhead wall. Should the limits of the fill be extended southerly to this new line, a basin will be created in addition to the above-described basin, whose cubical contents in net void space will be equal to about 27,000 cubic yards. In the event of this extra filling being ordered by the Commissioner of Docks, it will be estimated at the same proportional rate as is received for the void space in the first section, whose southerly limit is about the northerly line of West Twentieth street, the prices on which the bids are to be tested.

In each of the estimated amounts given the amount in cubic yards is arrived at without placing any allowance for shrinkage, settlement, swelling of the material or penetration into the mud.

The Department is not bound in any way by such estimate, and bidders must satisfy themselves of the actual quantity required to fill in the above-described area by examination of the premises or such other means as they may prefer, the intention of the Department being to fill in the whole of the said premises behind the bulkhead wall within the above-described limits, and no allowance will be made to the purchaser from the purchase price on account of any discrepancy which may be found between the above-estimated quantity and the actual amount of filling required. The purchaser will be required to place the filling in accordance with the following specifications:

All the filling shall, unless otherwise directed, be placed directly in the rear of the bulkhead wall and carried from the bulkhead wall toward the shore until the bank of same has been carried out at the finished grade for a distance of about 40 feet from the face of the bulkhead wall, at which time, if so directed by the Engineer, the filling may be commenced from the shore toward the crib.

All material must be dumped and filled in only in such manner, at such points and in such order of procedure and at such times and seasons as may, from time to time, be directed, and the work of filling in may be entirely suspended for such periods of time as may be directed. The purchaser shall have no claim for damage or for any allowance from the purchase money on account of such suspension of the work.

All directions shall be given by the Engineer, and wherever the word "Engineer" is used in these specifications it refers to and designates the Engineer-in-Chief of the Department of Docks and Ferries, or such officer or employee as may be designated by him.

Rip-rap stone coming directly on or against the bulkhead wall must be deposited carefully in such manner as will not injure the same.

All the filling, except as otherwise specified herein, shall be of ashes, cellar dirt, broken stone, etc., entirely free from garbage or any organic matter objectionable in the opinion of the Engineer.

At any section of the bulkhead wall the filling shall be brought up level with the under side of the backing log of the bulkhead wall at such section, and no higher, unless otherwise directed.

The filling shall be commenced within five days after the date of the receipt of a notification from the Engineer that the work, or any part of it, is ready to be begun, after which not less than 300 cubic yards per day shall be placed, and the whole amount of the filling called for to bring the above-described basin up to grade shall be completed within one hundred and seventy days from the date of the receipt of said notification. At the expiration of this time this agreement shall be considered closed unless a further extension of time shall be given by the Commissioner of Docks. If at any time during the progress of the work it shall be deemed necessary to order the suspension of the whole or any part of the filling the time for completing said filling shall be extended so much as may have been delayed by such suspension.

In case the purchaser at any time does not proceed with the work of filling in to the satisfaction of the Commissioner of Docks, the said Commissioner will at once terminate the privilege of filling in and proceed to have the remainder of the filling in done by other parties in such way and manner as he deems proper, and any loss which may result therefrom shall be charged against the principal and his surety.

The purchaser shall, during the work of filling in and at all times until the completion thereof, take all necessary precautions and place proper guards for the prevention of accidents, and put up and maintain at night sufficient lights, and he shall indemnify and save harmless The City of New York from all damages and costs to which it may be put by reason of injury to the person or property of another resulting from negligence or carelessness in the performance of the work or guarding the same, to which the surety is also bound.

No bid or estimate will be considered unless accompanied by a certified check drawn to the order of the Commissioner of Docks, or money to the amount of twenty-five per centum of the amount of the bid, which amount shall be applied in the case of the successful bidder to the first one-quarter of the amount of the filling to be deposited; twenty-five per centum to be paid when the first one-quarter of filling has been completed; twenty-five per centum additional when one-half the filling has been completed, and the balance, twenty-five per centum, when three-quarters of said filling has been completed.

A surety or guarantee company duly authorized by law to act as surety, to be approved by the Commissioner of Docks, will be required to enter into a bond or obligation jointly and severally with the purchaser in the sum of double the amount of the purchase price as security for the satisfactory performance of the said work, in accordance with the terms and conditions hereof.

Commissioner of Docks.
