
IN THE MATTER OF an application submitted by the NYC Department of Citywide Administrative Services (DCAS), pursuant to Section 197-c of the New York City Charter, for the disposition of one city-owned property located at 1 Clinton Street, aka 280 Cadman Plaza West (Block 239, Lot 16), Community District 2, Borough of Brooklyn, pursuant to zoning.

This application (C 150399 PPK) was filed on June 4, 2015 by the NYC Department of Citywide Administrative Services (DCAS) to facilitate the development of a new Brooklyn Heights Branch Public Library in the base of a new mixed-use development, located at 1 Clinton Street, aka 280 Cadman Plaza West, Community District 2, Borough of Brooklyn.

RELATED ACTIONS

In addition to the proposed disposition which is the subject of this report (C 150399 PPK), implementation of this proposal also requires action by the City Planning Commission on the following applications, which are being considered concurrently with this application:

C 150400 PPK Acquisition of property for use as a new branch library by the NYC Department of Citywide Administrative Services (DCAS) and the Brooklyn Public Library (BPL).

M 860392(A) ZSK Modification of a previously-approved special permit by Cadman Associates, LLC c/o Hudson Companies, to update the zoning lot boundaries for Block 239, Lots 1, 3, and 16.

BACKGROUND

Approval is sought for the following actions: the disposition of city-owned property by DCAS; the acquisition of property by DCAS and BPL; and the modification of a previously-approved bulk and height special permit pursuant to ZR Section 74-721 by Hudson Companies, in order to facilitate a new mixed-use development, including an approximately 21,500 square foot public library and approximately 280,357 square feet of residential, retail, and community facility space in Downtown Brooklyn, Community District 2.

In 1985, the NYC City Planning Commission (CPC) considered a special permit (C 860033 ZSK) pursuant to ZR Section 74-721 to allow for height and setback modifications of One Pierrepont Plaza (Block 239, Lot 1), a 19-story, 375-foot office tower on a zoning lot that also included the 2-story Brooklyn Public Library (Block 239, Lot 16). During public review, community concerns were raised about access to light and air along Clinton and Pierrepont Streets, the application was modified (C 860033(A) ZSK) and then withdrawn, and a new special permit application (C 860392 ZSK) was approved by the Commission to allow for an increase in the height of the building from 375 feet to 397 feet (+22 feet), a reduction of building setback encroachments by establishing 15-foot setbacks at the base of the 7th floor, and an increase in total floor area from 591,784 square feet to 601,079 square feet (+9,295 square feet). Subsequently, the site was included within the Special Downtown Brooklyn District (SDBD) as part of the 2004 Downtown Brooklyn Rezoning (C 040171 ZMK) and mapped with a C6-4 zoning district which brought One Pierrepont Plaza's height and setback closer to zoning compliance as it relates to base heights, setbacks, and maximum heights.

The exiting library (Block 239, Lot 16) contains both the Brooklyn Heights branch library and a Business and Career Library, approximately 13,600 square feet and 15,000 square feet of publically accessible space, respectively; and combined, total approximately 32,431 gross square feet above- and below-grade. In addition, there is approximately 26,715 square feet of below-grade space, originally designed as a fallout shelter, which is currently used for mechanicals, utility space, and storage, and is completely inaccessible to the public. The Brooklyn Public Library has stated that the Brooklyn Heights branch has more than $9.2 million of unfunded capital needs including a non-functioning HVAC system, significant roof and bulkhead repairs, and out of date elevators and mechanicals. The lack of an operable air-conditioning system forces shortened summer hours, and the facility cannot act as a cooling center as many other libraries and public facilities do. The Brooklyn Public Library has stated that it already has plans to relocate the 15,000 square foot Business and Career Library to the approximately 350,000 square foot Central Library at Grand Army Plaza, regardless of whether the proposed development occurs, because the library believes that the Grand Army Plaza facility's more central location would better serve job seekers and entrepreneurs throughout Brooklyn and better leverage existing programming at the Central branch. This is part of a larger reorganization of the Central Library which has already set aside expense funds to pay for the relocation, and future redesign and construction of the Grand Army branch.

The proposed project site (Block 239, Lots 1, 3, and 16) is currently improved with three buildings: Lot 1 consists of One Pierrepont Plaza, a 19-story, 601,079 square-foot commercial office building; Lot 3 consists of a 6-story, approximately 23,232 square-foot building used by the St. Ann's private school; and Lot 16 which is the development site and consists of a 2-story Brooklyn Heights branch public library, built in 1962. As part of that proposed project, the entirety of Block 239 (Lots 1, 3, and 16) are proposed to be merged into a single zoning lot to facilitate the transfer of approximately 16,667 square feet of unused development rights from the St. Ann's School (Lot 3) to the proposed development site (Lot 16). The development rights transfer would increase the Inclusionary Housing bonus potential of the proposed development site. The total lot area of the enlarged zoning lot would be approximately 76,626 square feet.

Once the branch library is relocated to an interim location, Hudson Companies would demolish the existing library to develop a new Brooklyn Heights branch library in a 21,500 gross square feet, ground-floor condominium unit, within a mixed-use, 36-story, 415-foot high, 294,907 square-foot building on Lot 16. The building would also include 630 square feet of new retail space and 19,800 square feet of community facility space in addition to the library branch. The proposed building would also contain 139 market-rate dwelling units totaling 277,981 square feet of space, and approximately 45 below-grade accessory parking spaces.

Hudson Companies also proposes to develop 43,786 square feet of housing affordable at between 60% and 80% of Area Median Income (AMI) off-site, pursuant to Section 23-951 of the NYC Zoning Resolution for R10 districts in non-Inclusionary Housing designated areas. The applicants are also proposing to develop an additional 37,111 square feet of housing affordable between 100% and 165% of AMI, for a total of 80,897 square feet of affordable housing across two buildings located at 911-917 Atlantic Avenue and 1041-1047 Fulton Street, within the Clinton Hill neighborhood of Community District 2.

The proposed project site (Block 239, Lots 1, 3, and 16) and surrounding blocks are within a C6-4 zoning district, located within the Special Downtown Brooklyn District (SDBD). C6-4 districts allow high-density commercial, residential, and community facility development, with a maximum Floor Area Ratio (FAR) of between 10.00-12.00, depending on participation in the Inclusionary Housing program or for the provision of public urban design elements such as plazas or arcades. C6-4 tower regulations require a setback of 10 or 15 feet after a height of 85 feet, depending on street width, and there is no maximum building height.

The proposed project site is located in Downtown Brooklyn, the borough's Central Business District, is adjacent to the predominately residential Brooklyn Heights neighborhood to the west, and a large swath of public parkland connecting Downtown Brooklyn to DUMBO and Brooklyn Bridge Park. To the north along Cadman Plaza West, Brooklyn Heights is mapped with an R8 zoning district (6.02 FAR) and a C1-5 commercial overlay (2.0 FAR), and consist of "height-factor" residential towers with scattered commercial and retail uses rising between 35-280 feet in height. Immediately adjacent to the proposed project site along Clinton Street and within the C6-4 district, residential and community facility buildings rise between 80-140 feet in height. Blocks further to the west are mapped with an R7-1 (3.44 FAR) and a Limited Height District (LH-1) which caps maximum building heights to 50 feet. The Brooklyn Heights Historic District (1965) is also designated over the vast majority of Brooklyn Heights. To the south and west, within the SDBD, C5-2A (10.00 FAR, R10A equivalent) and the Borough Hall Historic Skyscraper District (2011), C5-4 (up to 12.00 FAR) and C6-4.5 (up to 12.00 FAR) zoning districts are mapped and have no maximum height limits. Uses in this area are consistent with their location within a Central Business District and include high density residential, office, retail, as well as civic and educational institutions. The immediate area is well-served by transit, including access to subway lines at the Clark Street 2, 3, Borough Hall 2, 3, 4, 5, and the Court Street N, R lines, all within 2-3 blocks. The B 25, 26, 38, 41, and 52 bus routes run along Cadman Plaza West and Adams Street.

To facilitate continuous library service during construction of the proposed development, the applicants would relocate the branch library to a temporary facility at 95 Remsen Street (Block 249, Lot 16), approximately 2 ½ blocks from the library's existing location. 95 Remsen Street contains a 7,500 square foot social hall utilized by Our Lady of Lebanon Church, and has ADA accessible restrooms and a full commercial kitchen. The applicants estimate a one-week relocation period to facilitate the transport of books and supplies during which no branch library services would be available. To facilitate the proposed project, the following actions are requested:

Disposition (C 150399 PPK)

DCAS intends to dispose of the proposed project site to the NYC Land Development Corporation, which intends to transfer the site to the NYC Economic Development Corporation (EDC), which will transfer the site to Hudson Companies for development purposes.

Acquisition (C 150400 POK)

DCAS and BPL propose to acquire a condominium unit within the new development, constructed by Hudson Companies, which would include approximately 14,550 zoning square feet (21,500 gross square feet) of floor area including the building's first floor, mezzanine, and cellar. The applicants propose to include an auditorium, adult reading room, teen lounge, and children's reading room. It is anticipated that the branch library would have a staff of 10 and serve approximately 200,000-300,000 patrons annually. The BPL condominium unit would also include two dedicated parking spaces in the parking garage. The branch library is anticipated to operate between 10am to 6pm Monday and Friday, 10am to 8pm Tuesday, Wednesday, Thursday, and Saturday, and 10am to 5pm on Sundays.

Modification of a previously approved special permit (M 860392(A) ZSK)

Hudson Companies is proposing to modify a previously-approved special permit. While the proposed development on Lot 16 conforms to zoning and would be considered as-of-right, it is part of a zoning lot which includes One Pierrepont Plaza (Lot 1) which received a special permit for height and setback waivers, and therefore, the previously-approved special permit materials must be modified and updated to reflect the proposed development.

ENVIRONMENTAL REVIEW

The subject application (C 150399 PPK), in conjunction with the related actions (C 150400 PPK and M860392 (A) ZSK), was reviewed pursuant to the Rules of Procedure for City Environmental Quality Review (CEQR) Executive Order No. 91 of 1977, and the State Environmental Quality Review Act (SEQRA) set forth in Volume 6 of the New York Code of Rules and Regulations (NYCRR), Section 617.00. The designated CEQR number is 15DME005K. The lead agency is the Deputy Mayor's Office for Housing and Economic Development (DME).

On June 11, 2015, an Environmental Assessment Statement (EAS) was issued which describes and analyzes the Proposed Actions. After a study of the potential impacts of the proposed actions, a Negative Declaration was issued on June 12, 2015. A Revised EAS and Negative Declaration were issued on July 16, 2015 to reflect minor corrections to the EAS form and Project Description. A Technical Memorandum was issued on October 29, 2015 to describe and analyze potential modifications to the building program and design at one of the two off-site affordable housing development sites (1041-1047 Fulton Street). The Technical Memorandum concluded that the proposed modification of the building program for the off-site affordable housing development would not result in any significant adverse impacts that were not already identified in the EAS.

UNIFORM LAND USE REVIEW

This application (C 150399 PPK) was certified as complete by the Department of City Planning on June 6, 2015, and with the related actions, was duly referred to Brooklyn Community Board 2 and to the Borough President, in accordance with Title 62 of the Rules of the City of New York, Section 2-02 (b).

Community Board Public Hearing

Community Board 2 held a public hearing on this application on June 17, 2015 and on July 15, 2015, by a vote of 25 in favor, 14 opposed, with 4 abstentions, adopted a resolution recommending approval with the following conditions:

1. after the library has been fully constructed and outfitted, a reserve fund of at least $2,000,000 be established for future capital repairs at the Brooklyn Heights branch library;

2. the new branch have the same usable floor space as the existing branch; and
3. a memorandum of understanding and a Community Benefits Agreement (CBA) be executed as part of the project.

In summary, the CBA required assurances that there would be safeguards to ensure: that proceeds will be spent on libraries, a well-maintained branch library going forward, uninterrupted library service in Brooklyn Heights, prompt completion of the project, quality affordable housing units in CB 2, and local, safe construction jobs.

Borough President Public Hearing

This application was considered by the Borough President of Brooklyn, who held a public hearing on August 18, 2015 and issued a recommendation to disapprove the application on September 8, 2015, subject to the following conditions:

Agency status of public libraries

1. The City needs to establish a municipal library system under Mayoral control, placed with the Deputy Mayor overseeing the public school system, to ensure synchronized agendas and supportive programming. This should be accomplished by converting each library system into municipal agency status and then ultimately, subject to a cost benefit analysis study, consolidating the agency that was the Brooklyn Public Library (BPL) with the rest of the City's library systems into unified agency status, as the means to responsibly fund Library Expense and Capital Budget through tax levy and bonding authority of the City - not through one time sale of municipal property.

Utilization of unused development rights

2. Excess municipal development rights shall not be primarily sold when there is a need for such rights to address area municipal needs as follow:
 - a. Brooklyn Heights branch library needs to be provided with approximately 30,000 sf (not 21,500 sf as proposed);
 - b. The Business Library needs to be maintained with approximately 8,500 sf in this location as part of the approximately 30,000 sf to retain its accessibility to a majority of Brooklyn residents, including mobility-impaired disabled individuals; and,
 - c. Community School District 13 classroom space needs to be provided with appropriate floor area to develop public school seats (space for 10-12 classrooms as well as gymnasium and multi-purpose spaces need be accommodated), possibly as an annex of PS 8, funded by the Department of Education/School Construction

Authority (DOE/SCA), with classroom utilization developed in consultation with Community Education Council 13, Community Board 2 and Local Elected Officials.

3. Affordable Housing needs to be provided on site according to the floor area generated by Inclusionary Housing Zoning Floor Area Bonus (approximately 40,000 sf designated as permanent affordable housing).

Use of City proceeds from the sale of excess development rights

4. Use of sales proceeds, generated through the utilization of excess air rights from 280 Cadman Plaza West via disposition, should be determined, for any combination of necessary city facilities (such as to fund to BPL or its successor City Library agency for capital upgrades, provision of school seats, and/or the development of affordable housing, etc.), pursuant to consultation between the City, the affected Community Board and Local Elected Officials;
5. Designation of Brooklyn library branches receiving any allocation of any sales proceeds, and/or any subsequent revenue stream, from an eventual disposition of these City-owned excess development rights, need to be determined pursuant to consultation between the Brooklyn Public Library or its successor City agency with the delegation of Brooklyn's Local Elected officials, to determine Capital funded improvement priorities.

Disposition requirements for use of remaining air rights

6. A Regulatory Agreement or Land Disposition Agreement between the Department of Citywide Administrative Services, Economic Development Corporation and the Brooklyn Public Library, or its successor City Library agency, needs to mandate the following:
 - a. The provision of public school space, according to DOE and/or SCA entering into a funding arrangement (condominium or long-term lease) with the designated developer, prior to any effective date of disposition of the City's excess air-rights property;
 - b. Additional interim library branch space, subject to availability, needs to be obtained by the selected developer based on market-based competitive offers as a means to secure Brooklyn Heights retail storefronts, office spaces and/or community facility spaces that become vacant or otherwise available, any time prior to the date of construction and one year prior to the estimated development completion, until at least 20,000 sf of cumulative interim library space is secured;
 - c. The City receives a percentage of the revenue from any potential price increase revision to the Offering Plan, from the developer's sale of the units, allocating such funding directly to BPL or its successor City Library agency;
 - d. The City receives 25 percent of the net proceeds, above all construction and soft costs, from the sale of floor area (housing units at the uppermost floors) resulting from the integration of St. Ann's excess development rights into the redevelopment (an action that is made possible as a result of the zoning lot merger facilitated by the discretionary modification of the existing special permit by the City Planning Commission), allocating such funding directly to BPL or its successor City Library agency; and
 - e. The developer be required to retain Brooklyn-based contractors and subcontractors, especially those that are designated LBEs consistent with section 6-108.1 of the City's Administrative Code, and MWBE and LBE establishments, as a means to meet or exceed standards per Local Law 1 (not less than 20 percent participation), as well as to coordinate the monitoring of such participation by an appropriate designated City monitoring agency.

7. Additional Affordable Housing

- a. Permanent affordability for all affordable housing units;
- b. Provision of predominantly family size housing units through significant modification of the number of affordable housing units and bedroom distribution that reflects the demands of the community, rather than merely maximizing the number of housing units through smaller unit sizes.

8. Off-Site Development

- a. Provision of ground floor retail for the off-site development fronting Fulton Street, consistent with the standards of the Zoning Resolution's Special Enhanced Commercial District.

And that the City Council incorporates such stipulations into the eventual Regulatory Agreement and/or Land Disposition Agreement prior to granting its approval of any subsequent attempt to dispose of identified excess development rights.

Additionally, Air right use strategies for off-site libraries that were considered for disbursement of fund by the Brooklyn Public Library

1. For library branches that BPL discloses as its intent to benefit from a share of the sales proceeds, BPL or its successor City Library agency shall facilitate, with the assistance of appropriate City agencies, the utilizing of unused development (air) rights from existing underbuilt library lots as follows :
 - a. For the Washington Irving Library branch air rights transfer:
 - i. Attempts to transfer development rights, by BPL or its successor City Library agency, must be deferred until the City Council adopts a community-wide rezoning proposal for this section of Bushwick;
 - ii. That BPL or its successor City Library agency should first explore with the City the development right transfer to the adjacent Bushwick Educational Complex as the receiving site;
 - iii. That BPL or its successor City Library agency should pursue designation as a landmark building in order to promote added flexibility of receiving sites;
 - iv. That the Department of City Planning should explore a more flexible approach to development rights transfers involving Carnegie libraries, with or without historic district or individual landmark designation, along library fronting "wide" or widest street corridors up to 1,000 feet.
 - b. For the Pacific Library branch air rights transfer, BPL or its successor City Library agency should explore with the City the development right transfer to the adjacent building leased to the City's Human Resources Administration and/or

- the Atlantic Yards site (occupied by PC Richards and Model's) across the street; and,
- c. For the Walt Whitman Library branch air rights transfer, BPL or its successor City Library agency should explore with the City the development rights transfer to the adjacent yard area section of PS 67.

Additional measures for Community School District 13 public schools

1. That the Department of Education/School Construction Authority should establish a task force inclusive of Community Education Councils 13 and 15, Community Boards 2 and 6, and Local Elected Officials to develop a funding and site identification plan to solve the public school seat shortage in Downtown Brooklyn and neighboring communities.

City Planning Commission Public Hearing

On September 9, 2015 (Calendar No. 2), the City Planning Commission scheduled September 22, 2015, for a public hearing on this application (C 150399 PPK). The hearing was duly held on September 22, 2015 (Calendar No. 9). There were a total of 52 speakers at the hearing, 29 speakers in favor of the application and 23 speakers against the application.

A team presentation was made by some of the applicants and their representatives (BPL, Hudson Companies, and Marvel Architects) who discussed the $300 million unmet capital needs across the entire Brooklyn Public Library system, and highlighted that it receives $15 million from the City annually for the entire system. BPL stated that this only allows for emergency repairs, which are often the most expensive, without being able to conduct preventive capital improvements. Specifically, the applicants stated that the Brooklyn Heights branch has over $9 million in deferred maintenance, not including capital improvements needed to make the space a more useful and efficient branch and upgrade the space with cutting-edge technology to help bridge the digital divide. BPL explained that this is one of its most valuable locations and they would like to build a new library here, proposing one of the largest in the system, and in-turn help fund other branches across the system with the additional residential redevelopment proceeds. The new library would not be responsible for the proposed HVAC systems, in-perpetuity, thus reducing ongoing operating costs and shifting responsibility of service, maintenance, and efficiency obligations to the residential condominiums. During site construction, the applicants would relocate the library to an interim location. Hudson Companies stated that it had been extremely difficult to find ground-floor space for such a limited amount of time in this area; however they had secured a space and would retrofit this interim location as soon as possible. To help plan for the proposed new library space, the applicants conducted four community workshops and canvassed all library card-holders, across age groups, to better understand what library users are looking for in a new, 21st-century library, and designed a shell and potential interior designs based on these inputs.

In addition, Hudson Companies is proposing to develop 114 dwelling units in Community District 2, affordable at between 60% and 165% AMI without any public subsidies. These units would be marketed by Brooklyn Ecumenical Cooperative (BEC) and Pratt Area Community Council (PACC) with a local preference, and following HireNYC hiring standards for the planning and construction of the proposed development project and off-site affordable buildings, maintaining at least 20% MWBE's and 55% Brooklyn resident contractors. The applicants also stated that Hudson Companies would pay $52 million up-front, prior to relocating the library, and therefore in the event of a default at any time during the redevelopment process, BPL would already have received these proceeds. Hudson Companies stated that BPL would also be receiving a $13 million new library shell for free as part of the proposed development. The buildings containing the affordable units would need to have received a Certificate of Occupancy before the market-rate units could be approved for occupancy by the Department of Buildings, and the applicant team expects a final completion of all aspects of the project in 2019.

The applicant team also explained that the current Brooklyn Heights branch library contains approximately 15,000 square feet, while the new library would contain approximately 21,500 square feet with about 18,500 square feet of usable space as a result of more efficient use of space. The Business and Career library is also proposed to be relocated regardless of this proposal. The Business and Career library, which currently occupies an additional approximately 15,000 square feet, was already planned to relocate to the Grand Army Plaza Central Library with the intent for it to be used by burgeoning entrepreneurs and job seekers. This new location will have improved access to complementary services and facilities including the Workforce1 Career Center and the Information Commons, which include a training lab, open workspaces, break-out rooms, and extensive programming. This is part of a larger reorganization of the Central Library which has already set aside funds to pay for the relocation, and future redesign and construction at the Grand Army branch.

A representative from the Brooklyn Chamber of Commerce spoke in favor of the application, stating that the project would redevelop an underutilized space in Downtown Brooklyn to help other libraries across the system and create new housing opportunities including affordable units. He stated that after polling their Chamber membership, they are supportive of the Business and Career library moving to the Central branch at Grand Army Plaza, especially with its proposed focus on small entrepreneurs and freelancers.

The City Councilmember representing District 39 also spoke in favor of the application. While deferring to local residents and the local City Councilmember representing District 33, he described the core rationale of the applicant's proposal: taking the monetary value of unused air rights above the Brooklyn Heights branch and helping improve the broader library system to meet their deferred capital needs. He also stated that the library was going to be permanently preserved and that in this situation, the sale versus a long-term lease would help meet the large, urgent capital needs of the larger library system.

Community residents of Brooklyn Heights and Sunset Park as well as librarians and library trustees affiliated with BPL spoke in favor of the proposal. They stated that the project would support much-needed improvements to both the local branch, including enhanced HVAC which would prevent branch closures, impressive and world-class library design standards, as well as help reinvest in branches throughout the system that are in disrepair and are not able to provide the best quality programming and newest technologies. They stated that libraries are not just about books, but also the science, technology, research, and arts programming that brings in the broader public. After interviews with librarians and clerical staff about what makes a useful, modern, and flexible space, and recognizing that Marvel Architects also designed the NYPL Mulberry branch library, they believe that the proposed Brooklyn Heights branch library will be a much better, flexible, efficient, and inspiring space, especially for the young adult age groups. They also stated that when libraries are generally renovated or under construction, it is uncommon that an interim library space is also provided, usually just a book mobile, and that the proposed interim location is a beneficial and proximate benefit.

The Brooklyn Heights Association (BHA) spoke in favor of the proposal citing the well-designed library space and exterior facades, improved HVAC system, and a publicly-accessible auditorium, with vehicular access and loading on Cadman Plaza West. BHA also stated that they appreciate the well-designed off-site affordable units and support the generation of proceeds from the site as they will benefit many users across the library system and create a state-of-the-art library in their own neighborhood.

Brooklyn Ecumenical Cooperatives (BEC), a civic organization and local affordable housing developer partnering with Hudson Companies, spoke in favor of the proposal and Hudson Companies' ability to provide affordable housing without public subsidy.

The Center for an Urban Future spoke in favor of the proposal and described the year-old report they developed re-evaluating the library system. Specifically they believe that this proposal helps meet the goals of generating much-needed system capital and will create a larger and improved community library for the Brooklyn Heights community. While they call on the City to increase operational and capital support for the public library systems, given the state of disrepair and the sheer urgent capital needs, they acknowledge there is no realistic possibility of bringing the libraries into the future without additional and significant capital support. They support the sale versus long term lease of this specific location due to its relative high value in the library portfolio and that it allows the improvement of the existing library without dislocating it.

The Downtown Brooklyn Partnership spoke in favor of the proposal. They said the project consists of a well thought-out plan that would facilitate reinvestment in the local library branch and renovations to local branches around the borough. The plan would also provide 114 affordable housing units across a wide spectrum of incomes and have a trusted managing and marketing partner, PACC. The representative also stated that the project would be complementary to the Brooklyn Strand planning process of more than 40-acres of public plazas and park spaces, helping activate Cadman Plaza West. They believe the relocation of the Business and Career library to the Grand Army Plaza central branch is appropriate and there would be little impact on Downtown Brooklyn's existing office users.

The Fifth Avenue Committee, a local civic group and affordable housing developer, and Sunset Park residents spoke in favor of the proposal due to the supporting benefits the proposal plays in the future redevelopment proposed for the Sunset Park branch library. The proceeds generated by the disposition of the Brooklyn Heights branch library would allow the Sunset Park branch library to expand and produce 100% affordable housing units on-site. The further stated that without the proceeds generated by the Brooklyn Heights branch library redevelopment, that proposal would likely become infeasible.

Fulton Area Business (FAB) Alliance, a Business Improvement District along Fulton Street, spoke in favor of the proposal on condition that the off-site affordable housing proposed along Fulton Street (1041 Fulton Street) be required to have ground-floor retail space. They acknowledged the role that the proposed Zoning for Quality and Affordability text amendment could play in helping expand the building's envelope, and also recommended the mapping of an Enhanced Commercial Corridor along Fulton Street, similar to Brooklyn's Fourth Avenue corridor.

NYC EDC clarified the role they played in this process in that they provided real estate services to BPL and helped form and review the Request for Proposals (RFP) process under BPL's guidance. They stated that it was a highly successful RFP and one of the most competitive in recent history, with 14 responses in total, all from qualified developers. EDC and BPL went through a process of shortlisting the applicant pool based on the quality of the responses and began the negotiating process with all of the shortlisted respondents at the same time, giving each applicant team an opportunity to improve their responses. The RFP requested an as-of-right building, maximizing return and housing affordability, both AMI's and quantity of units, and was neutral on the proposed ownership structure, such as sale versus long-term lease. EDC developed a contract of sale with the applicant team to set up the appraisal process, purchase price, and additional terms such as the library condominium unit, affordable housing count, interim library space, and HVAC responsibilities, among others, and whose items were also weighted as part of the RFP considerations. At closing, there would be an appraisal conducted, and the developer would pay the negotiated purchase price or the updated appraisal value, whichever is higher.

Citizens Defending Libraries, a local civic organization, spoke against the proposal describing the large number of signed petitions they had collected and that underfunding libraries is not a reason to sell-off library assets. They stated that the proceeds generated by the sale of the property are too low. They also stated that the library space is being reduced from 63,000 square feet to 21,000 square feet, with only 15,000 square feet above-grade. They also suggested that there is no confirmed design for the library space and that the programming should be designed before the physical space. The Brooklyn Heights branch library's role as a central library should include on-site book storage which has not been included in the proposed development. They further explained that, in their opinion, BPL's estimates of fit-out are too low and that they should increase these estimates from $10-12 million to $17 million, reducing the total proceeds available to the broader library system. They also stated that there should be a full accounting of the redesign and construction costs associated with the relocating the Business and Career library to the Grand Army branch.

Other community residents spoke against the proposal, stating that the City should not be selling public lands as it is a finite resource and that any capital investment in library branches should be funded by the public, not by private development. Additionally, residents stated that this proposed development is too large and will generate too many school children for an already overburdened PS 8 elementary school, located in Brooklyn Heights. Some speakers were also against the relocation of the Business and Career library in that they said it supports the local business district, the court users, and the many new startups in DUMBO and the entrepreneurs of Fulton Mall, suggesting that the current location is better accessible to more Brooklyn residents than the Grand Army branch. Regarding Hudson Companies' role as landlord of the off-site affordable housing related to this proposal, some residents were concerned about open and unresolved violations at other existing affordable developments in the city that Hudson Companies oversees, and want to see a stronger, binding commitment to ongoing maintenance and tenant protections in Hudson Companies' affordable developments. Some speakers in opposition also stated that there is no guarantee that proceeds generated by the sale would actually go into the BPL system and be reserved for capital needs.

BuildUp NYC, an alliance of local labor unions, spoke against the proposal under the condition that the applicants enter into an enforceable, binding agreement to use union labor during construction and for building maintenance, and that Hudson Companies protect the public asset of library space. They also questioned the sales price and the sale of land versus long-term leasing of city-owned property, believe that the affordable units are too expensive, that the bedroom count will include too many studio and 1-bedroom units, and that these would all be located off-site, increasing income inequity. They also stated that there is a lack of school seats in the broader community, and that while all of the new residential permits themselves do not trigger a school, combined they merit new schools. In addition, the John Street (aka Farragut) substation had electrical issues recently, and they stated that they are concerned about an inadequate power grid for new developments under construction in the area.

Local residents also spoke against the proposal suggesting that it was mishandled at the Community Board committee hearing, which extended over two committee sessions that produced two different Land Use committee votes, regardless of the full board vote to approve the application with conditions.

There were no other speakers, and the hearing was closed.

CONSIDERATION

The City Planning Commission believes that the application for the disposition of city-owned property, and the related applications for acquisition of property and modification of a previously approved special permit, are appropriate.

Approval of the proposed actions would facilitate the development of a new, enlarged 21,500 square foot, state-of-the-art Brooklyn Heights branch library, in a more efficient, flexible, and modern facility to serve the surrounding community. The proceeds generated by the disposition and utilization of otherwise unused development rights would allow significant capital improvements across the Brooklyn Public Library system to address some of the more than $300 million in urgent, deferred maintenance needs. Ground-floor retail space would help activate the sidewalk and complement the library use. The proposed development would also utilize the Inclusionary Housing provisions of the Zoning Resolution and result in the development of a total of 80,877 square feet of sorely-needed affordable housing off-site in Community District 2 without public subsidy. The proposed mixed-use building, which would include the public library on the ground floor, small-scale retail, community facility space, and residential units on upper floors, would be consistent with surrounding uses within Brooklyn's Central Business District and conform to zoning, enhancing and invigorating this area of Cadman Plaza West. The immediate area is well-served by transit, including access to multiple subway lines and bus routes, and proximate to local residential neighborhoods and nearby parks and open space.

The disposition of the subject property would allow the City to realize the value of its real estate for significant public benefit. The proceeds of the disposition sale would buttress the finances of the Brooklyn Public Library and allow it to outfit a new branch library at the same location and would significantly address heretofore unfunded, critical capital repairs in libraries throughout Brooklyn in economically less-fortunate communities. Furthermore, the disposition of the site coupled with the Inclusionary Housing program bonus would facilitate affordable housing in excess of zoning requirements, without scarce public subsidies and within the same community district along transit and shopping corridors.

Disposition and redevelopment of City property is not unprecedented, nor would the redevelopment of a public library and its relocation within a private development. New York Public Library's East 58th Street library branch and Riverside branch are but two examples of the sale and redevelopment of library space. In addition, the City has also created private condominiums within public buildings such as at 210 Joralemon Street in Downtown Brooklyn.

The acquisition of space would allow the branch library to relocate back to the subject site in superior and larger space than it previously occupied, constructed by the developer as part of the proposed mixed-use building at no cost to the library, and to its own specifications. The Commission notes that the proposed redeveloped library would consist of a new 21,500 square foot shell with approximately 18,500 square feet of publically-accessible space, which would be a net increase from the existing branch. This space would be spread across approximately 15,000 square feet on the ground floor and mezzanine, and an additional approximately 6,500 square feet within the cellar. Furthermore, the HVAC system of the new branch library would be integrated with that of the mixed-use building and would no longer be the responsibility of the library which would free the library of this financial operational obligation. This was an issue raised as part of ongoing maintenance concerns for the existing Brooklyn Heights branch and its inoperability forced summer operating hour closures.

The current library consists of both a Brooklyn Heights branch library and a Business and Career library with approximately 13,600 square feet and 15,000 square feet of publically accessible space, respectively. Together, these facilities contain approximately 32,431 gross square feet above- and below-grade. In addition, there is an approximately 26,715 square feet of below-grade space, originally designed as a fallout shelter, currently used for mechanicals, utility space, and storage, and is completely inaccessible to the public. BPL has stated that it plans to relocate the approximately 15,000 square foot Business and Career library to the Grand Army Plaza central branch, regardless of the proposed actions, and had already set aside funds for Business and Career library relocation and redesign of the Grand Army central branch. The relocated Business and Career library would be better situated to leverage an existing Information Commons, and other training and workforce programming opportunities at the central branch.

The Commission recognizes the concerns raised by Community Board 2 and their request for the creation of a memorandum of understanding and a community benefits agreement (CBA). The Commission acknowledges that the vast majority of the requests described specifically in Community Board 2's CBA are already part of Brooklyn Public Library's memorandum of understanding (MOU) with the NYC Office of Management and Budget and the sales terms set by BPL and EDC with Hudson Companies, the proposed developer. The Commission acknowledges the terms of the sales agreement including a purchase price of at least $52 million up front and the maintenance of the branch library's HVAC system as part of the residential condominiums above the new library by the developer. This agreement is intended to free up public library square footage and also introducing operational cost savings over time. The affordable units would have to be completed prior to any market-rate development and would be designed by the same architect as the market-rate units. The interim library site would be located in close proximity to the current site and be retrofitted prior to the temporary closure of the branch library during its reconstruction.

In response to comments brought up at the public hearing related to the Community Board 2 land use committee deliberation and recommendation, the Commission notes that the full board voted 25 in favor, 14 opposed, with 4 abstentions, to approve the proposal with conditions. Regarding Community Board 2's condition related to a reserve fund for ongoing maintenance, the Commission notes that BPL determines its capital needs on an ongoing basis. In this regard, the Commission acknowledges that the branch's new HVAC system would be located outside of the library and maintained at full-cost to the market-rate residential condominiums above, significantly reducing the library's future maintenance costs.

The Commission acknowledges the multiple benefits of the proposed project and that the provision of off-site affordable housing would yield much needed affordable housing square footage, in excess of zoning requirements. The applicants are proposing to develop two off-site affordable buildings located at 911-917 Atlantic Avenue and 1041-1047 Fulton Street with a total of 80,877 square feet, developed in partnership with BEC and marketed with a local preference by BEC and PACC. These units would be part of a regulatory agreement with HPD and would be constructed and maintained without public subsidy. Of the total affordable square footage, approximately 43,786 square feet would be required by zoning to be permanently affordable at ranges between 60-80% of AMI's, with the remaining approximately 37,111 square feet at ranges between 100-165% AMI's to be regulated for 40 years by HPD. The Commission encourages the applicant to continue to examine permanent affordability within both off-site buildings.

The Commission is pleased that the applicants have committed to providing ground-floor retail space within the 1041-1047 Fulton Street development, per their request, to activate the streetscape of this retail corridor. Ground-floor retail along Fulton Street would strengthen this growing retail corridor and would be a meaningful mixed-use addition to the neighborhood. Provisions for additional ground-floor height proposed as part of a Department of City Planning amendment to the Zoning Resolution currently in public review (N 160049 ZRY), would assist in the economic viability of this space and would be secured as part of HPD's regulatory agreement.

Based on testimony provided during the public hearing, and in response to concerns raised by the Community Board and the Borough President, the applicants stated that they intend to adhere to EDC's HireNYC program which focuses on local hiring, local and targeted job fairs, awarding M/WBE construction contracts, and will work with NYC Department of Small Business Services' Workforce1 initiative to help ensure local and equitable job productions during construction and through the life of the project.

Regarding the Brooklyn Borough President's condition that the City establish a municipal library system and consolidate BPL with the rest of the City's library systems, the Commission notes that this is outside the purview of the proposed actions. Based on testimony from the Brooklyn Public Library, the Brooklyn Chamber of Commerce, and the Downtown Brooklyn Partnership, the Commission believes that the previously-planned relocation of the approximately 15,000 square foot Business and Career library would better meet the evolving needs of the Borough's aspiring entrepreneurs and leverage existing workforce development and training opportunities already located at the Grand Army Plaza central branch location. The Business and Career library historically served the large legal, court, and accounting businesses in Downtown Brooklyn prior to the invention of the internet, but as technology has evolved, the Business and Career Library has shifted to supporting job seekers all over Brooklyn. The Central branch has longer hours than any other branch in the system and, most importantly, patrons of the relocated Business and Career library will have access to the many other services and facilities available at Grand Army Plaza including its workforce development services, break-out rooms, a training lab with extensive programming, and the latest technology and workforce resources. BPL has stated that since this is part of a planned, larger reorganization of the Central branch, they have already been setting aside capital funds for the relocation, future design, and reconstruction of facilities at Grand Army Plaza.

Regarding the Borough President's condition that a P.S. 8 elementary school annex be located within the new building, the Commission notes that the Department of Education (DOE) and the School Construction Authority (SCA) are currently in a public review process for a school zone redistricting to shift the school-seat catchment area for the under-enrolled P.S. 307 in nearby Vinegar Hill, thus helping relieve current and projected elementary seat overcrowding at P.S. 8. The irregular parcel shape and small size of the subject site, as well as the already complex programming of the proposed building, would make incorporating a school annex physically impractical. The SCA utilizes a number of best-practices when determining annex locations including a minimum gross square footage of approximately 22,000-25,000 square feet of interior space, an outdoor play area, dedicated entrance lobby, stair and elevator core, and, if located across multiple floors, each floor would need to set-aside additional space for restrooms and circulation space. Furthermore, if a school has multiple annexes, such as P.S. 8 and its already existing Middle School annex, this would present additional challenges and complexity for management, servicing and staffing across the school. Introducing an elementary school to this site would involve significant project redesign, would add multiple stories and height to the proposed development, significantly reduce the proceeds generated by this disposition and thus hinder BPL's ability to support urgent capital needs across its library system, a foremost goal of this proposal.

During the proposed site construction, the applicants would relocate the library to an interim location. This approximately 7,500 square foot interim library space would not only be completely retrofitted to accommodate the interim use, but would also increase summer operating hours due to its functioning HVAC system. BPL had previously stated that having an interim brick-and-mortar location is already a significant improvement as they are most commonly only able to provide a book-mobile during a library closure. The Borough President's request that additional interim library space be found would increase the amount of time it will take to redevelop the site and reduce the proceeds generated for BPL's capital needs. Further, the Borough President's condition that a portion of proceeds from the private zoning lot merger be directed to the city or BPL is out of the purview of the Commission and cannot be addressed through the proposed actions.

As one of the primary goals of this proposal is to generate much-needed capital funds for the Brooklyn Public Library system, the Commission is supportive of the reservation and dedication of these proceeds for urgent capital improvements for branch libraries in Brooklyn. As confirmed via letter from the NYC Office of Management and Budget received on October 30, 2015, any proceeds generated by the sale would be reserved and set-aside specifically for the Brooklyn Public Library within the Executive Capital Budget and as such, inclusion within the capital budget precludes these funds from being used for any operations or non-capital use, and that there should be no expectation of a decrease in baseline commitments to BPL's current funding stream.

Carl Weisbrod, Chairman
City Planning Commission
22 Reade Street
New York, New York 10007

Dear Chairman Weisbrod:

I am writing to inform you that Community Board 2 has reviewed and made a determination on "1 Clinton Street," which consists of three applications—C 150399 PPK, C 150400 PPK and M 860392(A) ZSK—submitted variously by the Department of Citywide Administrative Services, the Brooklyn Public Library (BPL) and Cadman Associates LLC, for the disposition of one city-owned property located at 280 Cadman Plaza West (Block 293, Lot 16) pursuant to zoning for the acquisition of a condominium unit within the property located at 280 Cadman Plaza West (Block 293, Lot 16) for an improved BPL branch library, and to modify a special permit for height and setback, previously approved under C 860392 ZSK, located at 300 and 280 Cadman Plaza West (Block 293, Lots 1 and 16), all in the Borough of Brooklyn, Community District 2.

The community board held a public hearing on these applications on June 17, 2015 in Room LC400 of the Dibner Building at the NYU Polytechnic School of Engineering, 5 MetroTech Center, Brooklyn, New York. Seventeen members of Community Board 2, or almost 35 percent of the 49 members at the time, attended the hearing. Over a two-and-a-half hour period, not quite 60 people testified, with nearly twice as many speakers opposed to the project as those testifying in favor (38:20).

The public hearing was held immediately prior to a regularly scheduled meeting of the community board's Land Use Committee, which discussed the applications following the conclusion of the hearing. Two motions were made on the applications but neither were approved by majority vote.

City Planning Commission

The committee adjourned without making a recommendation and reconvened on July 6, 2015 in Founders Hall, the auditorium of St. Francis College, 180 Remsen Street, Brooklyn, New York. No further testimony was taken at the second meeting of the Land Use Committee. Upon conclusion of its deliberation, the committee voted eight in favor, four opposed, no abstentions (8-4-0) to recommend Community Board 2 support the applications with the conditions that

1. after the library has been fully constructed and outfitted, a reserve fund of at least $2,000,000 be established for future capital repairs at the Brooklyn Heights branch library;
2. the new branch have the same usable floor space as the existing branch; and
3. a memorandum of understanding and a community benefits agreement be executed as part of the project.

I will elaborate on these three conditions.

Reserve Fund

Whether or not someone opposes or supports BPL's proposal, it is unquestionable that it will be disruptive to the patrons of the Brooklyn Heights branch and the Business & Career libraries. Community Board 2 recommends that a reserve fund be created from the proceeds of this transaction to be used for future capital repairs at the Brooklyn Heights branch library, limiting further interruptions of service.

Usable Space

In the June 17 presentation made by the BPL, the Economic Development Corporation (EDC), Hudson Companies—to which Cadman Associates LLC is affiliated—and Marvel Architects, the Land Use Committee was informed that the existing Brooklyn Heights branch library and the Business & Career Library encompass, respectively, about 15,000 and 12,000 square feet (SF) of space accessible to and for use by the public (see Slide 9 of the presentation).

BPL proposes that a 21,500 SF replacement branch library be created within a new building to be constructed by Hudson Companies, of which 18,500 SF would be "completely accessible to the public" (see Slide 11 of the presentation).

Present-day patrons of the Brooklyn Heights branch library and the Business & Career Library do not make a distinction between the two facilities. In particular, the business library's computer room, containing 20 desktop computers, is overwhelmingly used by the public as a general purpose amenity of what they consider the neighborhood library, a single institution.

Accordingly, the second condition, that the new branch have the same usable floor space as the existing branch, should be understood as a requirement for the replacement library to have approximately 27,000 SF of space accessible to the public.

Memorandum of Understanding and Community Benefits Agreement

Many representations were made to the community advisory committee (CAC) formed by BPL prior to the certification of its land use applications. For example, a former library vice president

Carl Weisbrod, Chairman
City Planning Commission
August 7, 2015

told the CAC in late-2013, prior to the change in mayoral administration, that BPL would not continue with the proposed project if it was not guaranteed that the sales proceeds would benefit the library system. This agreement, however, was not mentioned as part of the presentation to the community board on June 17.

District Manager Robert Perris asked BPL to prepare a summary of commitments made as part of the project. A copy of the abstract prepared by BPL in response is enclosed for your reference. Community Board 2 encourages the City Planning Commission to codify all commitments in its determination.

Minority Opinion

There were many reasons for the significant opposition to the applications. The issue of greatest concern to the community board is the construction of 139 dwelling units in a neighborhood where the zoned elementary school—P.S. 8, The Robert Fulton School—operated at 142 percent of capacity in 2013-2014. In the spring, 40 percent of the applicants for kindergarten at P.S. 8 were wait-listed.

I have been pleased to read you quoted as saying the Department of City Planning will be working more closely with the Office of Management and Budget (OMB) to ensure schools and other municipal facilities and services are planned for when neighborhoods are rezoned. I applaud this return to a more holistic approach to planning, but it cannot function simply on a going-forward basis. Much of the growth in the zone served by P.S. 8 has occurred in Dumbo, which was rezoned in 2009 without any plans for increased school capacity.

Similarly, the environmental impact statement (EIS) prepared for the 2004 Downtown Brooklyn Development Plan (DBDP) estimated the initiative would generate 979 housing units and 278 elementary school students (above the no-build baseline), which the EIS stated could be accommodated within existing capacity. However, an analysis prepared by the Downtown Brooklyn Partnership on the tenth anniversary of the DBDP reported that almost 5,000 units of housing had been built and another 4,600 units were under construction. That is more than 10 times what the EIS projected.

Many people encouraged Community Board 2 to disapprove these applications solely because of the school overcrowding issue, in some cases suggesting a school be required to be included as part of the project. That requirement was not a part of the request for proposals issued by EDC on behalf of BPL. Further, the School Construction Authority (SCA) informed the community board that the size and shape of the development site did not meet its standards.

I urge you, as director of the Department of City Planning, to work with OMB, SCA and others to ensure that school capacity is increased in Brooklyn Heights and Downtown Brooklyn.

Recommendation

I am submitting herewith the community board recommendation forms for applications

C 150399 PPK and C 150400 PPK. As noted on the forms, Community Board 2 ratified the Land Use Committee's recommendation by a vote of 25 in favor, 14 opposed, four abstentions (25-14-4). As already stated, the recommendation comes with the conditions that

1. after the library has been fully constructed and outfitted, a reserve fund of at least $2,000,000 be established for future capital repairs at the Brooklyn Heights branch library;
2. the new branch have the same usable floor space as the existing branch; and
3. a memorandum of understanding and a community benefits agreement be executed as part of the project.

Thank you for the opportunity to comment.

Sincerely,

Shirley A. McRae

280 CADMAN PLAZA WEST PROJECT

Developer Commitments & Community Benefits Project Summary

SAFEGUARDS TO ENSURE THAT PROCEEDS WILL BE SPENT ON LIBRARIES

- The Hudson Companies (“Hudson”) is paying $52 million to Brooklyn Public Library (“BPL”) via the City of New York for the acquisition of 280 Cadman Plaza West. A 10% deposit was funded at contract signing.
- BPL has signed a Memorandum of Understanding with the City, through its Office of Management and Budget, by which the City committed to transfer 100% of the sale proceeds to Brooklyn Public Library’s account.
- Hudson will build a 21,500 core and shell library condominium on the ground and cellar floors of 280 Cadman Plaza West.
- Hudson will sell the Library condo back to the City of New York for $1, so that the library building remains City-owned property.
- BPL will use $8-$12 million of the $52 million acquisition price to fit-out the Brooklyn Heights library interior. The remaining $40+ million will make a significant impact towards reducing BPL’s $300 million outstanding capital needs and will address the following critical issues:
 - The Walt Whitman branch will receive approximately $6 million to upgrade infrastructure and modernize its facilities.
 - The Pacific branch will receive approximately $3.5 million to pay for a new entryway and make the building ADA accessible.
 - The Washington Irving branch will receive approximately $4 million to upgrade infrastructure.
 - The Sunset Park branch will receive approximately $8 million to expand its facilities from 12,000 SF to 21,000 SF.
 - BPL will identify additional branch libraries that will receive funding from this project.

SAFEGUARDS TO ENSURE A WELL-MAINTAINED BRANCH LIBRARY GOING FORWARD

- Hudson will provide the central heating and cooling equipment (“HVAC system”) for the new Brooklyn Heights branch library and the residential condo will be responsible for the maintenance of the HVAC system in perpetuity, thereby relieving BPL of the ongoing maintenance and capital costs. This will result in a significant savings to BPL.

- The HVAC equipment will all be placed outside of the library's space, thereby freeing up more space for public use.

SAFEGUARDS TO ENSURE UNINTERRUPTED LIBRARY SERVICE IN BROOKLYN HEIGHTS

- Hudson will rent and fit-out an interim library space to be located in the social hall of Our Lady of Lebanon Church. The interim library space will be fitted out before construction can begin at 280 Cadman Plaza West. To ensure minimal interruption in library service, the existing library will not be relocated until the interim library space is ready.

SAFEGUARDS TO ENSURE PROMPT COMPLETION OF THE PROJECT

- To make sure that construction begins in a timely fashion, contract documents require Hudson to start work no later than 60 days after closing unless BPL requires more time to vacate 280 Cadman Plaza.
- Hudson has 30 months to build the library core and shell and a concurrent 36 months to complete the building.

SAFEGUARDS TO ENSURE QUALITY AFFORDABLE HOUSING UNITS IN CB2

- Hudson will build 114 units of Inclusionary/workforce housing ("the affordable buildings") in Clinton Hill, ranging in affordability from 60% to 165% of the AMI. Hudson will enter in regulatory agreements with HPD that mandates rent stabilization for all the units and require the Inclusionary units be affordable for as long as the building at 280 Cadman Plaza West stands. The affordable buildings will be built without any public subsidy.
- The 280 Cadman Plaza West building cannot receive its Temporary Certificate of Occupancy (TCO) until the affordable buildings have received their TCO, meaning the market rate units cannot be occupied until the affordable units are also ready to be occupied.
- Pratt Area Community Council ("PACC") will partner with Hudson to market the apartments per HPD's guidelines. As such, there will be a 50% preference for Brooklyn Community Board 2 residents. PACC will send announcements to residents in Community Board 2 and make outreach efforts to various local community organizations.

- Brooklyn Ecumenical Communities (“BEC”) will be Hudson’s development partner on the affordable buildings. BEC will form a not-for-profit Housing Development Fund Company (HDFC). BEC will also partner with Hudson to market the affordable units.

SAFEGUARDS TO ENSURE LOCAL, SAFE CONSTRUCTION JOBS

- Hudson has made a commitment to the New York City Economic Development Corporation (“EDC”) to work with local stakeholders to identify qualified M/WBE firms to work on this project. Hudson’s goal is to award 25% of the total dollar-value of eligible construction contracts to M/WBE firms.
- Hudson will also seek to maximize local hiring, including hosting targeted job fairs prior to the announcement of the new open positions.
- To support NYC-area veterans, many of whom are minorities, Hudson will also reach out to Workforce One, an initiative by the NYC Department of Small Business Services.

RECOMMENDATION FOR ONE CLINTON STREET – 150399 PPK AND 150400 PQQ

The Department of Citywide Services (DCAS) and the Economic Development Corporation (EDC) seek authorization for the disposition of City-owned property located at One Clinton Street, in the Brooklyn Heights neighborhood of Community District 2 (CD2), to Cadman Associates, for mixed-use development, and DCAS and Brooklyn Public Library (BPL) seek acquisition of the library condominium, subsequent to completion of redevelopment. The site is located in a C6-4 zoning district and within the special Downtown Brooklyn District.

On August 18th, 2015, the Borough President held a public hearing. There were 72 speakers for this item, with 28 in favor and 44 in opposition. Organizations represented by these speakers include: The Brooklyn Public Library, Citizens Defending Libraries, Friends of Sunset Park, Hudson Companies, Brooklyn Heights Association, Build-Up NY, Center for Urban Future, Fifth Avenue Committee, New York City District Council of Carpenters (L.U. 157), Bridge Harbor Heights Association, UA Institute of Math and Science, Brooklyn Chamber of Commerce, Churches United for Fair Housing, Pratt Area Community Council, Fulton Area Business Alliance, Public School 8 PTA, Atlantic Avenue Betterment Association, Ironworkers Local 361 – Brooklyn, DUMBO Neighborhood Alliance, JAGO Community, Independent Neighborhood Democrats, and Brooklyn for Peace.

Speakers in opposition to this project voiced numerous concerns regarding:

- the lack of long-range planning and mitigation of existing infrastructure capacity, including this area's significant school overcrowding, and traffic and pedestrian congestion attributed to the City's use of zoning versus planning to promote real estate driven development;
- the accuracy of the Environmental Assessment Statement, misrepresenting the potential impacts on the surrounding community;
- the growing demand for library services while their funding is gradually decreasing;
- the BPL's failure to disclose the claimed $300 million of deferred maintenance costs in past financial statements and seemingly intentional lack of library maintenance, considering the renovation completed in 1993;
- the problematic mind-sets of library trustees, solely focused on making a profit, and the BPL's lack of transparency;
- the lack of public involvement, including the creation of the Community Advisory Committee (CAC) too late in the process to properly contribute to the shaping of the Request for Proposals (RFP), and EDC reserving the right to waive, modify, and be the sole judge of the acceptability of proposals, ultimately rendering the CAC moot;
- the selling of a public asset, which sets a bad precedent for future sales of public land, including losing land under the guise to raise money for BPL's capital budget, resulting in a lower offering price as compared to the asset's actual market value;
- the overall decreased size of the proposed library space, premised on replacing books with digital content, forcing the children's section to the sub-cellar level, without natural lighting, constraining the ability to expand in the future, and relocating the Business and Career Library to the Central Branch;
- the interim library space being too small to accommodate current functions;
- the financial gain of a private school from the sale of a public asset;
- the Hudson Companies' track record of using irresponsible contractors, with track records of both health and safety violations and wage and hour violations;
- the inconsistency of Community Board 2's (CB 2) vote on this matter;

- the exclusion of affordable housing on site and the proposed off-site affordable housing Area Medium Incomes (AMI) being too high to accommodate those most in need; and
- the lack of a guarantee that the developer would be held accountable, questioning the ineffectiveness of Community Benefits Agreement (CBA) and Memorandum of Understanding (MOU), in fear of a potential repeat of the Donnell Library.

Speakers in support of this project voiced numerous comments regarding:

- the new library facility being a much needed and fully upgraded state-of-the-art space that will appeal to a variety of age groups, with its publically accessible useable space being actually larger than the existing useable space as well as the majority of other branches;
- the air conditioning system being part of the condo system and the library would not be responsible for repairs;
- the much needed funding being directed towards several other library branches in dire need of repairs and upgrades;
- the outreach efforts by the architect and developer to incorporate the community feedback guiding the design of the interior space, allowing access to the auditorium outside regular library hours, and placing the library and parking entrance on Cadman Plaza West;
- the project contextually fitting-in with the existing neighborhood;
- the same architect designing all developments involved with this plan;
- the off-site affordable housing developments allowing the provision of more housing units than if they were provided on-site.
- the Hudson Companies' record of providing a standard of excellence in their development projects; and,
- the RFP and MOU between BPL and EDC outlining strict terms to provide the public elements.

In addition to the public hearing, numerous testimonies and over 2,000 testimony petitions were submitted in person and by email, outlining concerns mentioned at the public hearing as well as additional concerns and comments from various groups and residents within the community. Additional concerns raised include: shadows generated over Korean War Veteran's Plaza and the Green-streets medians; extent of the duration of the construction phase, which lacks specified criteria in mitigating the air quality, noise, vibration, or rodent issues; separate entrances for the library and the market rate units in the new building; Hudson Companies' failure to submit a Doing Business Data form pursuant to Local Law 34; and, that the interim library space is structurally unsafe and in a general state of disrepair, as well as its location within a religious institution. Additional comments included: the streetscape would be better activated by the project, resulting in a more vibrant atmosphere on both Cadman Plaza West and Clinton Street; the off-site affordable housing developments location within an area that has experienced increase displacement; and, the developer would not be using the 421-a tax abatement.

Consideration

CB 2 approved the application with three conditions, as follow:

- after the library has been fully constructed and outfitted, a reserve fund of at least $2 million be established for future capital repairs at the Brooklyn Heights branch library;
- the new branch have the same usable floor space as the existing branch; and

- a MOU and a CBA be executed as part of the project.

The site is city-owned and operated by the BPL under a long-term agreement and in accordance with the establishment of the Brooklyn Public Library system, located at the corner of Clinton Street and Cadman Plaza, developed with a two-story library building occupied by the Brooklyn Heights branch library, approximately 23,900 sf, and the Business and Career Library, approximately 8,300 sf, collectively comprising approximately 32,200sf of useable space. The remaining 26,940 sf comprise mechanical and utility space with storage, otherwise inaccessible by the public.

The existing branch library building was built in 1962 and was designed to house both a library and Federal fallout shelter. According to an estimate provided by the Department of Design and Construction and verified by a third party consultant, the building has over $9 million in outstanding capital needs. This includes $3.6 million for an HVAC replacement; $4.2 million in upgrades to the boiler, lighting, roof and site drainage; $1 million for a new elevator and $500 thousand for fire safety and security enhancements. The BPL considers the floor plan to be poorly laid out, with too little space for public service and too much space for staff and storage. The spaces inside have low ceilings and little natural light and also have limited adaptability. Moreover, the building lacks the basic functionality of a modern library – collaborative areas, flexible workspaces and the infrastructure to support cutting-edge technology.

This library building is part of a larger zoning lot that was combined pursuant to a Special Permit approval that resulted in One Pierrepont Plaza, a 21-story (19 story plus 2 stories of mechanical space) commercial office building with 601,079 sf of floor area. The remainder of the block contains a six-story building owned and occupied by St. Ann's School with 23,232 sf of floor area. Both the zoning lots containing the library and One Pierrepont Plaza and the lot containing the St. Ann's School are not constructed to the full floor area permitted by their C6-4 zoning district designation.

Approval of the requested actions would enable Cadman Associates, or an affiliated entity, to acquire the city-owned lot and existing library building and develop pursuant to zoning in a manner that would incorporate 21,500 sf condominium unit for a replacement BPL branch acquired by the City for $1. The BPL would continue to operate the library in accordance with the existing long-term operating agreement between the BPL and the City.

The proposed development also includes the creation of: approximately 139 on-site market-rate housing units; approximately 19,800 sf of community facility space; approximately 630 sf of ground floor retail space; and, below-grade parking facility with approximately 45 accessory spaces.

The terms of the disposition and the resulting library replacement space, also include an interim library of 8,000 sf to be located a few blocks away at Our Lady of Lebanon Church, at 95 Remsen Street, 114 off-site affordable housing units (75 units at Atlantic Avenue and 39 units at Fulton Street) within Community District 2 as well as the allocation of $52 million from the sale of the property to the BPL.

The BPL intends to use this allocation to fit-out the branch library condominium and to invest in neighborhood branches with urgent capital needs. Branches receiving proceeds from the sale were apparently selected based on their overall outstanding critical needs, the opportunity for comprehensive upgrades, and their equitable distribution throughout the borough.

The Walt Whitman branch would receive $6 million to upgrade infrastructure and to modernize its facilities. The Pacific branch would receive $3.5 million for a new entryway and to make the building ADA accessible. The Washington Irving branch would receive $4 million to upgrade infrastructure. The Sunset Park branch would receive $8 million to expand its facilities from 12,000 sf to 21,000 sf. The remaining, approximately fifty percent of the funds available to improve additional branch libraries for this project, have not yet been specified as part of the application.

The proposed off-site affordable housing was designated for households at, or just below, the AMIs of 60 percent (23 units), 80 percent (38 units), 100 percent (29 units), and 165 percent (24 units). Evenly distributed among these income tiers are 55 studio apartments, 32 one-bedroom apartments, 22 two-bedroom apartments, and five three-bedroom apartments.

Examples of rents based on the four AMIs are: $850, $1,151, $1,451, and $2,428 for studio apartments; $913, $1,236, $1,558 and $2,605 for one-bedrooms; $1,106, $1,492, $1,879 and $3,135 for two-bedrooms; and $1,278, $1,725, 2,171, and $3,623 for three-bedrooms.

While not in the purview of the Borough President, this proposal also requires an authorization for modification of the previously-approved special permit that resulted in the construction of One Pierrepont Plaza. Approval of this modification would allow the St. Ann's School tax lot to be merged into the zoning lot. This action would facilitate the transfer of approximately 16,700 sf of floor area to be used by the designated developer in the redevelopment of the BPL building.

Given the scarcity of available land for development, it is the policy of the Borough President to promote the use of underutilized municipal rights to the fullest extent practical. Given the rising costs of private property, it is becoming crucial to identify smarter and more creative ways to utilize development rights. The City has a dwindling supply of vacant and open land that allows the City to facilitate its needs with the least financial burden on its citizens. One predominant use of City-owned land has been to develop affordable housing, though such land has been used to provide for schools, public parks and other municipal needs. Without the availability of city-owned land, the City is dependent on the acquisition of private property through fair market value. Understanding the vast need for affordable housing, the Borough President's Office analyzed all city-owned properties in Brooklyn to determine to what extent there may be excess development rights. Some of these rights may be placed in open areas of city-owned land, or transferred through zoning lot mergers, but there are also instances where the most effective means to use such rights are to redevelop the property. In the case of the Brooklyn Heights branch, the issue of cost to upgrade the building to satisfactory condition should not be the primary basis for determining the City's utilization of this site. Even if the necessary work could be achieved at significantly reduced cost, there is still a question of whether the City should be forgoing utilization of significant development rights when its land resources are steadily shrinking. The Borough President believes that it is in the City's best interest to pursue redevelopment as the most effective means to utilize this municipal asset; how and when to use this asset is the main consideration.

The Borough President supports land use actions that are compatible with surrounding land uses and building heights that benefit the neighborhood. He believes the proposed use and height would be compatible, though he believes it is possible to proceed with more community benefit.

The Borough President believes that the proposed development terms are a form of investment in the borough's library system. This would be a positive investment for Brooklynites in ways that are not always visible to the naked eye, including helping to expand and enhance the library system's capacity to provide meaningful programs. Libraries are integral parts of the communities they serve. The Borough President has allocated almost $3.225 million of his Fiscal Year 2016 Capital Budget in order to renovate, restore, and reconstruct many of Brooklyn's most beloved centers of learning. Funds achieved through utilizing unused air rights would play a significant role in fitting out a new Brooklyn Heights branch as well as helping to address physical deficiencies at other branches. However, solutions involving one time strategies also demonstrate deficiencies in the BPL funding structure.

The Borough President supports land use actions that are in accordance with the Mayor's Housing New York: a Five-Borough, Ten-Year Plan, which commits to the preservation or new construction of 200,000 units by 2024. The proposed land use actions would facilitate the development of 114 off-site affordable rental housing for low- to middle-income households. The developer intends to generate approximately 40,000 sf of floor area to be utilized off-site in combination with other floor area from these sites to achieve the 114 units, in the neighborhood of Clinton Hill in CD 2. Realizing all of the much needed off-site affordable housing maximizes affordability to neighborhood residents in a section of CD 2 where there is significant risk of displacement due to the many rental units not subject to price regulation. Although, this would waive an opportunity to provide affordable housing in a section of CD 2 where the nearest affordable units have, or are yet to be, located in Downtown Brooklyn and DUMBO.

The Borough President believes that it is appropriate to pursue opportunities to utilize municipal air right assets. However, he has concerns over how the proposed disposition is structured. In addition, the structure of the terms made it clear that library funding is unsustainable and independent operations do not provide sufficient amalgamation with educating Brooklyn's children. To move forward, the Borough President seeks to address the management of public libraries. In addition there needs to be expanded municipal consideration for the utilization of unused development rights, particularly regarding library size and programing, school capacity, affordable housing and the use of City proceeds from the sale of excess municipal development rights. Furthermore, the terms to disposition for remaining air rights warrant consideration of school seat commitment; suitability of interim branch size; generating City income from discretionary actions and heightened real estate markets; job commitments; appropriate provisions for on-site affordable housing; permanency of non-zoning required affordable housing units; and the use of the off-site development's ground-floor, fronting Fulton Street. Finally, the Borough President believes that the library branches identified by BPL for funding from the disposition proceeds, should be maximized as City assets though transferring excess air rights and that the school capacity issue for this section of Community School District 13 (CSD 13) needs to be aggressively addressed by the Department of Education (DOE) and School Construction Authority (SCA).

Agency Status of Public Libraries

Currently, public library operations and maintenance suffer because libraries are not a public agency and government has been inconsistent with its funding stream. Therefore, library maintenance gets deferred and the system's staffing, hours of operation and library operation in general fluctuate between good and bad times. As it stands, the public library system is not a proper working model. The Borough President is concerned that the lack of funding, and ultimate lack of maintenance, of the City's libraries stems from the fragmentation of the libraries' operational systems and management agencies. In order to identify and address the necessary needs of the City's libraries, it is important to incorporate the public library system into the City agency structure.

The Borough President believes that the funding of Library Expense and Capital Budget needs should be responsibly addressed by the tax levy and bonding authority of the City – not a onetime sale of the municipal property. This can be achieved by incorporating the public library system into the agency structure of the City, under Mayoral control. This would require the City to initially convert each library system to a separate City agency. Subject to the results of a cost benefit analysis study, the City should ultimately facilitate a merger of Brooklyn Public Library with the rest of New York's library systems. The Borough President notes the synergy between schools and libraries in terms of promoting educational interests, regardless of the age. Therefore, he believes the whole operation should be placed under the control of a newly established City Library agency or merged with the Department of Cultural Affairs. Furthermore, the library system and the public school system should be placed under the management of the Deputy Mayor as a means to ensure synchronized agendas and supportive programming city-wide.

He urges the Mayor to give prompt consideration to taking on responsibility for the City's libraries.

Utilization of Unused Development Rights

The Borough President believes that excess municipal development rights should not be primarily sold when there is a need for such rights to address area municipal needs.

Existing Branch Library

The Borough President believes that libraries are integral parts of the communities they serve. Investment in libraries is good for Brooklynites in ways that are not always visible to the naked eye; studies show their positive impact on public health, small businesses, civic engagement, and youth development. Investment in the borough's libraries also helps to expand and enhance their capacity to provide meaningful programs. Therefore, it is important that sufficient development rights (floor area) be retained for the Brooklyn Heights branch library to yield an appropriate branch size, reflective of the increased library services demand in this area as well as reflective of the existing branch size. The existing Brooklyn Heights branch library consists of almost 60,000 sf, of which only approximately 32,200 sf is useable, accessible to the public. The 32,200 sf breaks down into approximately 23,900 sf of the branch library and approximately 8,300 sf of the Business and Career Library. The proposal is to decrease the new library branch size to approximately 21,500 sf.

The Borough President shares the concerns of the many members of the community regarding the size of the library. This section of Brooklyn has experienced significant residential population growth that is expected to continue to grow. The Brooklyn Heights branch needs to serve its existing and expanding patron-base and having adequate physical size is important to ensure sufficient delivery of service. He believes that the size of any reconfigured library within this site should more closely reflect the existing useable library space, closer to approximately 30,000 sf, in order to fully accommodate existing and future library demands.

Business and Career Library

This application proposes to relocate the Business Library from its existing location within the Brooklyn Heights Branch to the Central Branch, at Eastern Parkway and Flatbush Avenue, across from the Grand Army Plaza. Many provided testimony in opposition, citing the convenience and accessibility for the physically impaired.

While physically more central within Brooklyn, accessibility is not defined merely by the location on a map. The majority of neighborhood to neighborhood travel in Brooklyn occurs with the assistance of public transit. Downtown Brooklyn is a hub for the Borough's public transportation, while the Central Branch is served by two subway corridors and a few complimentary bus routes. While the Central Branch improves access by personal vehicle, by providing library users with more affordable parking, this does not compensate for its lack of accessibility by public transit. In addition, consideration should be given to conveniently serving mobility-impaired disabled individuals. The Central Branch is not served at all by Americans with Disabilities Act (ADA) compliant subway stations. In addition, the Borough President's Office analyzed access to both libraries based on the assumption of taking a bus to an ADA compliant subway station near the Brooklyn Heights branch or taking two buses to the Central Branch. Using this methodology, the Brooklyn Heights branch appears to be more ADA accessible.

The Borough President is committed to improving accessibility for people with disabilities through his Access-Friendly NYC initiative and called upon all government facilities to perform an accessibility assessment. In July 2015, the Borough President released his Access-Friendly NYC report to detail policy and standards recommendations for improving accessibility throughout New York City, which built upon a set of guidelines, released in February, developed to advance accessibility of public buildings beyond compliance with ADA. The initiative focuses on how Brooklyn and New York City can lead the way in making improvements to physical, visual, auditory and social access for all of its residents; twelve percent of the borough's population is over the age of 65, while almost ten percent have reported having some form of disability. The report outlines a number of policy recommendations for the public and private sectors alike to advance accessibility, including for DCAS to conduct walkthroughs of all its buildings to see how they can go above and beyond ADA compliance.

The Borough President shares the concerns of the community regarding the relocation of the Business Library. Given the accessibility logistics, including consideration for patrons with physical disabilities, he believes that the Central Branch does not compare with the existing location in terms of being accessible to the majority of the borough. People with disabilities would more than likely find accessing the Business Library's proposed location within the Central Library to be more challenging by public transit.

The Borough President believes that the Business and Career library should remain at the Brooklyn Heights branch library location in order to continue to best serve those who are most in need of its services.

School Capacity

Based on information provided in the environment assessment statement and testimony provided to the Borough President it is clear that there is immediate need to develop CSD 13 public school seats in proximity to PS 8. Currently, Downtown Brooklyn has a large number of new developments in the planning stages as well as already in the construction phase, estimated to accumulatively produce over 1,500 public elementary school students. While on its own, the new development at One Clinton Street is estimated to produce approximately 40 additional students, PS 8 is currently at around 140% capacity and there is simply no room to accommodate these students. The Borough President shares concerns of the community that without proper mitigation, the anticipated development at One Clinton Street, in combination with the other current developments within the area, would result in significantly adverse impacts on the nearby PS 8 as well as on CSD 13 overall.

Possible remediation could include reconfiguring certain existing administrative and support space within PS 8 to create additional classroom space, while providing the said administrative space in the new building of the applicant's site. Another option is to provide new classroom space within the new building. A review of the schematic building plans reveals a possibility for several alternatives to incorporate additional classroom space for CSD 13 above the library, the parking garage and mechanical space, at the floor level depicted for private rooftop open space of the residential tower. In addition, the sub-cellar/cellar spaces delineated as community facility space could adequately serve for gym and support function for a school annex.

The Borough President believes that it is possible to accommodate the PS 8 capacity overflow within the new building by providing additional classroom space. DOE/SCA, in coordination with CSD 13, CB 2, and local elected officials, should secure sufficient floor area, as part of subsequent redevelopment of this site, requiring the developer to incorporate additional classroom space above grade, while also including complimentary functions such as a gymnasium and general assembly/lunch room space within the cellar and sub-cellar space.

Affordable Housing

The Borough President supports the Mayor's goal to achieve 200,000 affordable housing units over the next decade. The Borough President is committed to addressing the borough's affordable housing crisis through creation and preservation of much-needed affordable housing units for very low- to middle-income Brooklynites. Among numerous strategies and approaches, the Borough President is committed to advancing his affordable housing policy through his role in the Uniform Land Use Review Procedure (ULURP).

He believes that, as part of this agenda, a significant number of these units should be achieved through utilizing excess municipally-owned development rights to facilitate residential development. The development of much needed affordable housing provides opportunities to existing neighborhood residents at risk for displacement. Many residents within CD 2 live in unregulated housing and the continued significant increase in rents has resulted in residential displacement. Therefore, there is a pressing need to provide affordable housing units within this area.

The proposed development would provide for 114 housing units to be located off-site. The developer intends to provide affordable housing, consistent with the Zoning Resolution, that allows affordable housing floor area derived from the zoning bonus to be provided anywhere within CD 2. On top of the affordable housing pursuant to the Zoning Resolution, the developer intends to provide additional affordable housing units as part of being designated.

The Borough President believes that it would be more appropriate to distribute affordable housing opportunities throughout CD 2. One Clinton Street generates approximately 40,000 sf of inclusionary housing bonus floor area. Based on unit types proposed for the apartment tower, this would equate to approximately 20 affordable housing units, designated as permanent affordable housing. In providing affordable housing off-site, pursuant to the Zoning Resolution, the Borough President believes that discretionary land use actions are appropriate opportunities to advance policies that constrain what would otherwise be permitted as-of-right. For this building it is important to provide the affordable housing floor area generated by the Inclusionary Housing Zoning Floor Area Bonus on-site, even though it would reduce the actual number of affordable housing units proposed through the developer's solution. This provision would guarantee more family-oriented apartments because of requirements to have consistent bedroom counts with both affordable and market rate apartments while also allowing the affordable housing opportunities to be dispersed within CD 2.

Therefore, the Borough President seeks affordable housing floor area generated through zoning regulations for One Clinton Street to be included as part of the site's redevelopment.

Use of City Proceeds From the Sale of Excess Development Rights

The proceeds generated by the disposition and sale of excess development rights from this city-owned property have the potential to generate revenue for the City. The City intends to allocate proceeds from the disposition of this municipal property to BPL. In turn, BPL intends to invest in select neighborhood library branches with urgent capital needs.

While deferred maintenance and capital improvements have resulted in BPL being a worthy candidate for an infusion of funds, there are numerous other pressing needs in the host community, such as significant overcrowding at PS 8, that are also worthy of consideration. Libraries are an integral part of Brooklyn's communities so they are definitely worthy of funding consideration. However, without a broader discussion, other compelling priorities for the community, that should be given the opportunity to be addressed, are at risk of being overlooked. In order to enable such consideration, relevant stakeholders and decisions makers must be included in an open discussion.

In this particular section of CD 2, there needs to be a wider conversation whether the library should be an exclusive priority or a primary priority because there may be a compelling case for considering school funding and/or the development of more affordable housing units. Therefore, the Borough President believes that the use of proceeds generated by the sale of this municipal development rights asset should be determined pursuant to a wider consultation between the City, the affected Community Board and the Local Elected Officials.

Prioritizing Brooklyn Public Library Branches for Capital Improvements

The BPL intends to allocate proceeds from the disposition of this municipal property to invest in select neighborhood library branches with urgent capital needs. The BPL has specified that branches receiving proceeds from the sale were apparently selected based on their overall outstanding critical needs, the opportunity for comprehensive upgrades, and their equitable distribution throughout the borough. Four of these branches have been disclosed in the land use application with anticipated amount of capital budget appropriations. Approximately half of the remaining funds from the proposed sale have not yet been disclosed, in regard to where the BPL would want to allocate these proceeds. While the BPL's procedures are not being questioned, the Borough President is concerned that there is not a clear understanding of the capital needs across all of the borough's branches.

The Borough President believes that instead of simply adhering to what has been prioritized by the BPL, there should be full disclosure for borough-wide branch capital needs and there should be opportunity for open discussion, inclusive of the relevant local elected officials. The BPL should not be the sole decision maker in prioritizing and allocating capital improvement funding. The process should allow for discussion and feedback from all relevant elected officials on the allocation and prioritization of capital funding. The Borough President believes that the BPL or its successor City agency and relevant local elected officials should comprehensively decide which of the Brooklyn library branches should receive the proceeds, from the sale of this City-owned property, towards capital improvements.

Disposition Requirements for Use of Remaining Air Rights

The Borough President believes that several important steps need to be incorporated into the Regulatory Agreement or Land Disposition Agreement in order for DCAS, EDC and BPL to effectively execute the disposition and redevelopment of this city-owned property, whenever the disposition would be advanced.

Disposition Deferment

Based on information provided in the environmental assessment statement and testimony provided to the Borough President it is clear that there is immediate need to develop CSD 13 public school seats in proximity to PS 8. While it is very clear that this municipal property could be the answer to at least alleviating the school capacity issue in proximity to PS 8, at the moment there is no commitment for funding from DOE and/or SCA. The proposed redevelopment has the potential to accommodate space for approximately 10-12 classrooms above the level of the library, as well as a gymnasium and other multi-purpose spaces. The Borough President shares concerns of the community that if redevelopment of this City asset proceeds without such commitments from the developer of the DOE and/or SCA, there will be a missed opportunity in providing much needed public school seats.

The Borough President believes that appropriate and timely actions are necessary in order to insure this municipal property provides the fullest benefit to the community. In mitigating the school capacity issues, the Borough President believes that the effective date of disposition of excess city-air rights property be deferred until both DOE and/or SCA have entered into a funding arrangement (condominium or long-term lease) with the designated developer.

Whenever this disposition would be advanced, the City Council should obtain such commitment of DOE/SCA funding from DCAS in writing prior to waiving its right to call up the application or otherwise grant its approval.

Interim Branch Size

The developer has identified an 8,000 sf space, to be renovated inside Our Lady of Lebanon Church at 95 Remsen Street, as the interim library location throughout the duration of the project's construction period. The Borough President is concerned that the proposed interim library space is insufficient to house and accommodate existing library use, in comparison to the existing approximately 30,000 sf of library space at the Brooklyn Heights library branch.

The Borough President believes that in order to minimize interruption in library service for all library users, additional interim library space, accumulatively totaling no less than 20,000 sf, should be provided by the developer. He calls for the designated developer to be required to make market-based competitive offers to secure additional interim library branch space should Brooklyn Heights retail storefronts, office spaces and/or community facility spaces become vacant or otherwise available, anywhere prior to the date of construction and one year prior to the estimated development completion.

The Borough President believes that such provision of additional interim library space should be memorialized in the Land Disposition Agreement or Regulatory Agreement between the developer with EDC and DCAS. Whenever this disposition would be advanced, the City Council should obtain such commitment from the designated developer in writing prior to waiving its right to call up the application or otherwise grant its approval.

Subsequent Opportunity for the Brooklyn Public Library to Obtain Capital Funding

Oftentimes developers realize that there is a stronger market than anticipated towards the completion of a development project. When this happens the developer usually revises the Offering Plan in order to capitalize on the increased value of the development. However, the City does not benefit from this revision and increased profit unless specifically stated in the Land Disposition Agreement or Regulatory Agreement.

The Borough President is concerned that upon the completion of the project the value of the units within the new building will significantly increase while the BPL or successor City Library agency share of sale price remains the same. In order for the BPL or successor City Library agency to ensure an appropriate sale price for the city-owned land, the Borough President believes that any price increase revision to the Offering Plan require for the BPL or successor City Library agency to receive a percentage of the revenue from the developer's sale of the units.

The Borough President believes that obtaining such proceeds should be memorialized in the Land Disposition Agreement or Regulatory Agreement between the developer with EDC and DCAS. Whenever this disposition would be advanced, the City Council should obtain such commitment from the designated developer in writing prior to waiving its right to call up the application or otherwise grant its approval.

St. Ann's Development Rights

The library building, One Clinton Street, is part of a larger zoning lot that was combined pursuant to a Special Permit approval that resulted in One Pierrepont Plaza, a commercial office building. The remainder of the block contains a building owned and occupied by St. Ann's School. The lot containing the St. Ann's School is not constructed to the floor area permitted by the C6-4 zoning district designation. Therefore, the developer has an application before the City Planning Commission (CPC) to modify the existing Special Permit to allow a lot merger that will facilitate the transfer of approximately 16,700sf of St. Ann's floor area to be used by the designated developer in the redevelopment of the BPL building.

The Borough President believes that the excess developments rights to be transferred from St. Ann's School to One Clinton Street are considered valuable because they ultimately allow the new building's height to increase by at least two floors. This increase results in what would be the top two floors, easily the most valuable floor area in a building. The Borough President sees this value gained through a discretionary approval as being no different than property value gained through rezoning. In such instances, the Mayor is on record seeking 25 percent of the floor area to result in a public purpose, in the form of affordable housing. The Borough President believes that such policy of obtaining public purposes should be no different than the air rights being transferred from the St. Ann's zoning lot.

Therefore, the Borough President believes that should St. Ann's excess development rights be incorporated into the library branch redevelopment, the BPL or successor City Library agency should receive 25 percent of the net proceeds above all construction and soft costs from the sale of floor area (housing units) from the uppermost floors. This equates the floor area rights acquired from St. Ann's as a result of the zoning lot merger facilitated by the discretionary modification of the existing special permit by CPC.

The Borough President believes that such proceeds should be memorialized in the Land Disposition Agreement or Regulatory Agreement between the developer with EDC and DCAS. Whenever this disposition would be advanced, the City Council should obtain such commitment from the designated developer in writing prior to waiving its right to call up the application or otherwise grant its approval.

Jobs

The Borough President is concerned that too many residents of Brooklyn are unemployed or underemployed. It is his policy to promote economic development as a means of creating more employment opportunities. Double-digit unemployment is a pervasive reality in many of Brooklyn's neighborhoods, and over half of our community districts have suffered poverty rates of 25 percent or greater, according to averaged data from 2008 to 2012. Prioritizing local hiring is integral to addressing this employment crisis. In addition, promoting Brooklyn-based businesses including those that qualify as MWBE and LBE is a key component of the Borough President's economic development agenda. As potentially new construction, the disposition of these sites provides opportunities for the future developer to retain Brooklyn-based contractors and subcontractors, especially those that are designated LBEs, consistent with section 6-108.1 of the City's Administrative Code, and MWBE establishments, as a means to meet or exceed standards per Local Law 1 (not less than 20 percent participation).

The Borough President understands the concerns of those who provided testimony regarding responsible development, and practices by irresponsible contractors and subcontractors. He believes that workers should be able to work in a non-threatening environment while promoting his agenda for achieving employment for Brooklynites through such discretionary land use actions. The Borough President looks forward to additional avenues that he can advocate in order to bring jobs and careers to borough residents.

Whenever the intended development would be advanced, the Borough President believes that such Administrative Code and Local Law standards should be memorialized in the Land Disposition Agreement or Regulatory Agreement between the developer with EDC and DCAS. Whenever this disposition would be advanced, the City Council should obtain such commitments from the selected developer in writing prior to waiving its right to call up the application or otherwise grant its approval.

Permanent Affordability

It is the Borough President's policy that affordable housing units remain "affordable forever" wherever feasible. The development at One Clinton Street generates approximately 40,000 sf of the Zoning Resolution's inclusionary housing bonus floor area, approximately 20 housing units when developed on-site, that is required to remain permanently affordable. An additional 20 percent of the floor area at the off-site location is anticipated to be developed according to the same inclusionary housing bonus floor area, thus also obligated to remain permanently affordable up to 80 percent AMI. These housing units are consistent with the Borough President's policies of permanent affordability. The additional affordable housing would have no zoning obligation to remain affordable as the developer's selection by the City included the offer to provide additional floor area to achieve 114 affordable housing units. This provision of additional affordable housing would be above and beyond the zoning requirement, with incomes at 100% and 165% AMI.

For the base floor area units, the Borough President is concerned that the standard regulatory agreement is typically not more than thirty years. The concern is that as tenants move out after the expiration of such regulatory agreement, those units would no longer be an affordable housing resource. He believes that ultimate disposition terms should ensure that all affordable housing units remain permanently affordable.

Whenever this disposition would be advanced, the City Council should obtain such commitments from the designated developer in writing, memorialized in the Land Disposition Agreement or Regulatory Agreement, between the developer with EDC and DCAS, prior to waiving its right to call up the application or otherwise grant its approval.

Bedroom Distribution

In order to achieve 114 affordable housing units the developer proposes a significantly unbalanced number of studio apartments versus two- and three-bedroom apartments which are most in demand for families borough-wide. The preliminary terms with the City propose 55 studio apartments, 32 one-bedroom apartments, 22 two-bedroom apartments, and five three-bedroom. The typical apartment types in non-regulated units, where displacement is ongoing in CD 2, is not likely reflective of this bedroom mix. Less than one-quarter of the proposed units is suitable for families. A recent report identified that the rent-burden households which typically represent those households applying to the City's affordable housing lotteries, are more likely to require family-sized unit types. Therefore, the Borough President shares the concerns of the community regarding the mix of the proposed affordable housing units not reflecting the needs of CD 2's low- to middle-income communities.

The Borough President believes that using the affordable housing floor area for right-sizing the bedroom distribution is more important than maximizing the number of affordable housing units. Regulations pertaining to the Borough President's advisement for building the 40,000 sf of inclusionary floor area from One Clinton Street on site would partially mitigate his concerns. The Borough President believes that the affordable housing units that would remain off-site should be further modified to accommodate more family size units rather than a bedroom distribution that was meant to merely maximize unit count by utilizing smaller unit sizes.

The Borough President also believes that such right-sizing affordable housing bedroom distribution should be memorialized in the Land Disposition Agreement or Regulatory Agreement between the developer with EDC and DCAS. Whenever this disposition would be advanced, the City Council should obtain such commitments from the designated developer in writing prior to waiving its right to call up the application or otherwise grant its approval.

Ground Floor Use Fronting Fulton Street

While the development at One Clinton Street generates approximately 40,000 sf of inclusionary housing bonus floor area, approximately 20 housing units, the developer proposes to provide above and beyond the zoning requirement, a total of 114 affordable housing units. In order to achieve the additional units, the developer proposes two off-site affordable housing developments consisting of 75 units at Atlantic Avenue and 39 units at Fulton Street, a retail street, within CD 2. There are no formal commitments to include ground floor retail use at the Fulton Street site.

The Fulton Street site is located within the Fulton Area Business Alliance BID (FAB) where there have been ongoing efforts to enhance the Fulton Street shopping district. The goal of FAB is to turn Fulton Street into a lively mixed-use retail corridor with a vibrant mix of commercial and community facilities on the ground floor of all new developments. Ground floor retail provides opportunities for pedestrians to look inside at merchandise and activity in a manner that makes a more interesting experience when strolling along a retail corridor. Interesting corridors often result in more foot-traffic that support retailers while providing more eyes on the street as a means to enhance a feeling of being safe in the neighborhood. This is further enhanced when lighting from stores supplements the City's street lights. By providing a more active street front, commercial ground floor space has the potential to not only activate the street but also provide more pedestrian foot traffic and an overall brighter, livelier and safer atmosphere. Therefore, the Borough President shares the concerns of the community regarding the proposed off-site affordable housing development on Fulton Street not having any explicit obligation to include commercial uses on the street level. He believes that the off-site housing developments should be required to provide commercial use at ground floor level, consistent with the standards of the Zoning Resolution's Special Enhanced Commercial District.

With the intended development, the Borough President believes that such standards should be memorialized in the Land Disposition Agreement or Regulatory Agreement between the developer with EDC and DCAS. Whenever this disposition would be advanced, the City Council should obtain such commitments from the selected developer in writing prior to waiving its right to call up the application or otherwise grant its approval.

In addition to project specific recommendation, the following pertain to certain library branch air rights and to the seat-shortage in the western section of Community School District 13.

Strategy for Off-Site Libraries That Were Considered for Disbursement of Air Right Funds by Brooklyn Public Library

It is one of the Borough President's policies to support effective ways to create more affordable housing. The residents of Brooklyn continue to face significant increases in rents, ultimately resulting in residential displacement. Therefore, it is crucial to continue identifying additional, more creative, opportunities for people to affordably remain within their neighborhoods. In response to the Mayor's Housing New York: a Five-Borough, Ten-Year Plan, in November 2014 the Borough President produced a report titled the Housing Brooklyn: A Road Map to Real Affordability for Brooklynites. The report discusses key opportunities for affordable housing development throughout Brooklyn in order to help achieve the Mayor's development goals. The report outlines important steps that need to be taken to give more residents the opportunity to secure quality affordable housing. One such method is to identify potential municipally-owned land that can be utilized for private residential development in order to help realize the much needed affordable housing in a manner that maximizes affordability to existing neighborhood residents at risk for displacement.

An example of this method is to leverage the existing unused development rights, from Brooklyn Public Library branches with excess rights, for public purpose. The Brooklyn Public Library has identified Washington Irving Library branch, Pacific Library branch, and Walt Whitman Library branch as those that will benefit from a share of the sales proceeds from the sale and redevelopment of the Brooklyn Heights Library branch. The Borough President believes there are several strategies to utilize the unused development air rights from these existing underbuilt library lots in order to facilitate development of affordable housing.

Washington Irving Library Branch

The Washington Irving Library branch is a non-landmarked Carnegie library, within Bushwick, projected to receive $4 million towards upgrading the existing infrastructure.

The Washington Irving Library branch has excess development rights. The building's footprint does not provide any yard opportunity to use those development rights and it is not appropriate public policy to replace the building as it is a Carnegie Library. The only realistic opportunities to use this branch's development rights are through: a mechanism to would allow a transfer of the development rights across Woodbine Street, through a General Large Scale Plan; landmark building development rights transfer; or through a zoning text change that would allow more opportunities to transfer air rights.

The Borough President believes that there is an opportunity to maximize air rights through transfer to the adjacent neighboring properties by crafting a creative library air rights transfer provision.

The Borough President believes that it is appropriate for the BPL or its successor City Library agency to explore, with the City, the Washington Irving branch air rights transfer. However, the timing of transferring air rights should be deferred until the community has had the opportunity to secure height-based zoning limits. The existing zoning allows developers to build buildings substantially out-of-character. As a resulting, in combination with real estate speculative development, Bushwick has been experiencing transformation where a growing number of properties are being redeveloped according to the maximum permitted zoning for residential development. In response, there is ongoing consideration for rezoning Bushwick as a means to preserve community character while channeling responsible growth that leverages the development of affordable housing.

The Borough President believes that the BPL or its successor City Library agency should proceed with air right transfers subsequent to the City Council adopting a community-wide rezoning proposal for this section of Bushwick.

Across the street from the Washington Irving branch is the Bushwick Educational Complex, housing Bushwick School of Social Justice, Brooklyn School for Math and Research, Academy for Urban Planning, and Academy for Environmental Leadership. As a large site, the excess floor area from the library branch has the potential to be utilized with minimal visual impacts. The BPL or its successor City Library agency should explore this option with the City as the primary option to transfer the library's development rights.

Should consideration determine that the Bushwick Educational Complex is not the ideal location to use the air rights from the branch, then the Borough President believes that a landmark designation for the library would allow more flexibility of receiving sites for the rights transfer. In this instance, the Borough President would advise the BPL or its successor City Library agency to pursue a landmark designation for the building.

Though even with landmark designation, it might still be difficult to succeed in the transfer of the available air rights. The Borough President believes that the Department of City Planning (DCP) should explore developing a zoning text amendment that would provide more flexibility to development rights transfers involving Carnegie libraries. One possible consideration could be to establish a special bulk permit to allow such Carnegie libraries, with or without historic district or individual landmark designations, to transfer air rights to receiving sites, several blocks from the library. He believes that in such instances it might be appropriate to transfer along the street, where such library has frontage along a "wide" street, or perhaps its widest street, for corridors up to 1,000 feet.

The Borough President urges DCP to give consideration to undertaking such a zoning study.

Pacific Library Branch

The Pacific Library branch is a non-landmarked Carnegie library, at the junction of Park Slope and Boerum Hill, projected to receive $3.5 million towards construction of a new entryway and ADA accessibility for the building.

The Pacific branch has excess development rights. The building's footprint does not provide any yard opportunity to use those development rights and it is not appropriate public policy to replace the building as it is a Carnegie Library. The only realistic opportunities to use its development rights are through: a zoning lot merger or a mechanism to allow development right transfer across Pacific Street, through a General Large Scale Plan; landmark building development rights transfer; or incorporation into the Atlantic Yard's General Project Plan (GPP).

The adjacent State building occupied by the City's Human Resource Administration has significant excess development rights. As a corner lot, it has the possibility to accommodate new development in excess of its combined R8A/R6B zoned floor area ratio. Its permitted bulk envelop could accommodate a portion of the air rights from the Pacific branch. The adjacent parcel containing PC Richards and Models has bulk pursuant to the Atlantic Yards General Project Plan. As that block is significantly larger than the Pacific Branch library, the library's air rights could be accommodated by adding just a few floors to what the GPP now permits.

The Borough President believes that it is appropriate for the BPL or its successor City Library agency to explore with the City the Pacific branch air rights transfer to the adjacent building leased to the City's Human Resources Administration and/or Atlantic Yards site across the street.

Walt Whitman Library Branch

The Walt Whitman Library branch is a non-landmarked Carnegie library, within Fort Greene, projected to receive $6 million towards upgrading the existing infrastructure and branch redesign.

The Walt Whitman branch has excess development rights. The building's footprint does not provide any yard opportunity to use those development rights and it is not appropriate public policy to replace the building as it is a Carnegie Library. The only realistic opportunity to use its development rights is through a zoning lot merger.

The adjacent PS 67 has more zoning lot area than is required by zoning, based on the zoning floor area of the school. The portion of yard of the school, fronting Auburn Place, does not appear to be significantly utilized for school purposes and thus might be a candidate for the development of affordable housing in tandem with excess air rights from the Walt Whitman branch library.

The Borough President believes that it is appropriate for the BPL or its successor City Library agency to explore with the City the Walt Whitman Library branch air rights transfer to the adjacent yard area section of PS 67.

Establishment of a School Seat Task Force for Downtown Brooklyn and Neighboring Communities

During the last few years, many schools surrounding Downtown Brooklyn have experienced overcrowding and ultimately lack of available school seats. In response to this problem, Brooklyn parents have organized to expand awareness and work towards advocating a solution. This movement, in collaboration with local elected officials, has led to the formation of the Downtown Brooklyn School Planning Working Group (DBSPWG).

The work of the recently created DBSPWG, which brings many of these stakeholders together, can inform the DOE/SCA. Ultimately, the agencies responsible for the funding and construction of school space must take the lead and ensure that communities have adequate school space to match and anticipate the pace of residential development.

Therefore, the Borough President believes that DOE/SCA should establish a task force inclusive of CEC 13 and 15, Community Boards 2 and 6, and Local Elected Officials to develop a funding and site identification plan in order to solve the public school seat shortage in Downtown Brooklyn and neighboring communities.

Recommendation

Be it resolved that the Borough President of Brooklyn, pursuant to section 197-c of the New York City Charter and Article 16 of General Municipal Law for New York State, recommends that the City Planning Commission and City Council disapprove the land use action requested according to the following conditions:

AGENCY STATUS OF PUBLIC LIBRARIES:

1. The City needs to establish a municipal library system under Mayoral control, placed with the Deputy Mayor overseeing the public school system, to ensure synchronized agendas and supportive programming. This should be accomplished by converting each library system into municipal agency status and then ultimately, subject to a cost benefit analysis study, consolidating the agency that was the Brooklyn Public Library (BPL) with the rest of the City's library systems into unified agency status, as the means to responsibly fund Library Expense and Capital Budget through tax levy and bonding authority of the City – not through one time sale of municipal property.

UTILIZATION OF UNUSED DEVELOPMENT RIGHTS

2. Excess municipal development rights shall not be primarily sold when there is a need for such rights to address area municipal needs as follow:

- a. The Brooklyn Heights branch library needs to be provided with approximately 30,000 sf (not 21,500 sf as proposed);
 - b. The Business Library needs to be maintained with approximately 8,500 sf in this location as part of the approximately 30,000 sf to retain its accessibility to a majority of Brooklyn residents, including mobility-impaired disabled individuals; and,
 - c. Community School District 13 classroom space needs to be provided with appropriate floor area to develop public school seats (space for 10-12 classrooms as well as gymnasium and multi-purpose spaces need be accommodated), possibly as an annex of PS 8, funded by the Department of Education/School Construction Authority (DOE/SCA), with classroom utilization developed in consultation with Community Education Council 13, Community Board 2 and Local Elected Officials.
3. Affordable Housing needs to be provided on site according to the floor area generated by Inclusionary Housing Zoning Floor Area Bonus (approximately 40,000 sf designated as permanent affordable housing).

USE OF CITY PROCEEDS FROM THE SALE OF EXCESS DEVELOPMENT RIGHTS

4. Use of sales proceeds, generated through the utilization of excess air rights from 280 Cadman Plaza West via disposition, should be determined, for any combination of necessary city facilities (such as to fund to BPL or its successor City Library agency for capital upgrades, provision of school seats, and/or the development of affordable housing, etc.), pursuant to consultation between the City, the affected Community Board and Local Elected Officials;
5. Designation of Brooklyn library branches receiving any allocation of any sales proceeds, and/or any subsequent revenue stream, from an eventual disposition of these City-owned excess development rights, need to be determined pursuant to consultation between the Brooklyn Public Library or its successor City agency with the delegation of Brooklyn's Local Elected officials, to determine Capital funded improvement priorities.

DISPOSITION REQUIREMENTS FOR USE OF REMAINING AIR RIGHTS

6. A Regulatory Agreement or Land Disposition Agreement between the Department of Citywide Administrative Services, Economic Development Corporation and the Brooklyn Public Library, or its successor City Library agency, needs to mandate the following:
 - a. The provision of public school space, according to DOE and/or SCA entering into a funding arrangement (condominium or long-term lease) with the designated developer, prior to any effective date of disposition of the City's excess air-rights property;
 - b. Additional interim library branch space, subject to availability, needs to be obtained by the selected developer based on market-based competitive offers as a means to secure Brooklyn Heights retail storefronts, office spaces and/or community facility spaces that become vacant or otherwise available, any time prior to the date of construction and one year prior to the estimated development completion, until at least 20,000 sf of cumulative interim library space is secured;

- c. The City receives a percentage of the revenue from any potential price increase revision to the Offering Plan, from the developer's sale of the units, allocating such funding directly to BPL or its successor City Library agency;
- d. The City receives 25 percent of the net proceeds, above all construction and soft costs, from the sale of floor area (housing units at the uppermost floors) resulting from the integration of St. Ann's excess development rights into the redevelopment (an action that is made possible as a result of the zoning lot merger facilitated by the discretionary modification of the existing special permit by the City Planning Commission), allocating such funding directly to BPL or its successor City Library agency; and
- e. The developer be required to retain Brooklyn-based contractors and subcontractors, especially those that are designated LBEs consistent with section 6-108.1 of the City's Administrative Code, and MWBE and LBE establishments, as a means to meet or exceed standards per Local Law 1 (not less than 20 percent participation), as well as to coordinate the monitoring of such participation by an appropriate designated City monitoring agency.

7. Additional Affordable Housing

- a. Permanent affordability for all affordable housing units;
- b. Provision of predominantly family size housing units through significant modification of the number of affordable housing units and bedroom distribution that reflects the demands of the community, rather than merely maximizing the number of housing units through smaller unit sizes.

8. Off-Site Development

- a. Provision of ground floor retail for the off-site development fronting Fulton Street, consistent with the standards of the Zoning Resolution's Special Enhanced Commercial District.

And that the City Council incorporates such stipulations into the eventual Regulatory Agreement and/or Land Disposition Agreement prior to granting its approval of any subsequent attempt to dispose of identified excess development rights.

Be it further resolved that:

AIR RIGHT USE STRATEGIES FOR OFF-SITE LIBRARIES THAT WERE CONSIDERED FOR DISBURSEMENT OF FUNDS BY THE BROOKLYN PUBLIC LIBRARY

1. For library branches that BPL discloses as its intent to benefit from a share of the sales proceeds, BPL or its successor City Library agency shall facilitate, with the assistance of appropriate City agencies, the utilizing of unused development (air) rights from existing underbuilt library lots as follows:
 - a. For the Washington Irving Library branch air rights transfer:

- i. Attempts to transfer development rights, by BPL or its successor City Library agency, must be deferred until the City Council adopts a community-wide rezoning proposal for this section of Bushwick;
 - ii. That BPL or its successor City Library agency should first explore with the City the development right transfer to the adjacent Bushwick Educational Complex as the receiving site;
 - iii. That BPL or its successor City Library agency should pursue designation as a landmark building in order to promote added flexibility of receiving sites;
 - iv. That the Department of City Planning should explore a more flexible approach to development rights transfers involving Carnegie libraries, with or without historic district or individual landmark designation, along library fronting "wide" or widest street corridors up to 1,000 feet.
- b. For the Pacific Library branch air rights transfer, BPL or its successor City Library agency should explore with the City the development right transfer to the adjacent building leased to the City's Human Resources Administration and/or the Atlantic Yards site (occupied by PC Richards and Model's) across the street; and,
 - c. For the Walt Whitman Library branch air rights transfer, BPL or its successor, City Library agency, should explore with the City the development rights transfer to the adjacent yard area section of PS 67.

ADDITIONAL MEASURES FOR COMMUNITY SCHOOL DISTRICT 13 PUBLIC SCHOOLS

2. That the Department of Education/School Construction Authority should establish a task force inclusive of Community Education Councils 13 and 15, Community Boards 2 and 6, and Local Elected Officials to develop a funding and site identification plan to solve the public school seat shortage in Downtown Brooklyn and neighboring communities.
