MAYOR DE BLASIO ISSUES UPDATE ON WINTER STORM RESPONSE

November 16, 2018 – Mayor de Blasio today updated New Yorkers on the City’s response to Thursday’s snow storm. The City continues its response and is working to clear roadways as quickly as possible. The NYC Department of Sanitation operations continue, with 325 salt spreaders deployed throughout the city. The NYC Department of Parks and Recreation continues its response to downed trees with 100 cutters working 12-hour shifts through the weekend to remove downed branches and tree limbs.

Parking and Trash Collection

- Alternate Side Parking is suspended today to facilitate snow removal operations. Parking meters remain in effect throughout the city.
- Refuse and recycling collections have resumed with delays expected.

Travel

- Motorists are advised to stay off the roads to allow for continued cleanup. If you must travel, allow for extra time, and use mass transportation whenever possible. New Yorkers are also urged to exercise caution and minimize walking outdoors, as conditions are expected to be slippery.

AGENCY UPDATES:

Parks

- The City’s Downed Tree Task Force has been activated to assist with coordinating cleanup of downed trees and limbs.
- The Parks Department has 20 crews throughout the city with more than 100 cutters removing downed trees and limbs.
- The Department has removed 65 downed trees throughout the city and will continue to work 12-hour shifts through the weekend.

Department of Sanitation

- The New York City Department of Sanitation (DSNY) has deployed 325 salt spreaders to treat icy road conditions throughout the city.
