March 23, 2022

NEW YORK – New York City Mayor Eric Adams today released the following statement on the future of U.S. Department of Veteran Affairs health care facilities in New York City:

“We are committed to ensuring that New York City’s veterans have access to high quality health care. We are aware of the report from the Department of Veterans Affairs regarding the future status of VA health care facilities in the city. Our team is in communication with the VA to get more specifics on their plan. While we work to ascertain more information, we want all veterans in the five boroughs to know that we are fighting to make sure they have the care they earned and deserve.”
