Local Law 103 of 2016 Report
October 31, 2024

I. Introduction and Reporting

This report, submitted by the Mayor's Office of Criminal Justice (MOCJ) to City Council in compliance with Local Law 103 of 2016, serves as an annual progress report in New York City. The narrative report and data are reflective of re-entry services and expansion within city programming. This report, as a requirement of Local Law 103 of 2016 will highlight populations served, types of programs created, geographic areas served, and outreach efforts with the reporting period of fiscal year 2024.

II. Populations Served/Demographics

The CJRN completed 4,254 intakes by the end of fiscal year 2024. This figure is down from the 4,558 intakes, previously reported in the Local Law 103 report for 2023. Intakes across the city decreased on average of 6% with 82% male re-entry participants and 11% female re-entry participants (6% of individuals chose not to identify as either male or female).

41% of individuals recorded an age of 55 or older, 29% recorded that they were between the ages of 35-54, 13% recorded that they were between the ages of 25-34 and 16% recorded that they were between the ages of 18-24, 1% identified as being 18 or older.

60% of participants served identified as being African American, 22% of participants identified as being Latino, 5% were identified as white, 3% were identified as multiracial, 2% identified their race as other, 1% were identified as being Asian (8% either indicated their race as unknown or declined to answer).

III. Types of Programs

A. CJRN (Community Justice Re-entry Network)

With funding now for the CJRN increased to $26.3 million, the city has seen an impact on the vocational, educational, and therapeutic resources that have been dedicated to those returning home from prison and jail. The CJRN has continued to thrive through non-profit providers such as Bronx Connect, Exodus Transitional Community, FedCap, Fortune Society, Housing Works, Osborne Association, The Center for Justice Innovation (Staten Island Justice Center), Women's Prison Association, Youth Justice Network, and Center for Community Alternatives. All providers have continued to improve discharge planning inside Rikers Island, in addition to community planning for justice impacted individuals.

CJRN has capitalized on its success in providing services to those who may need them the most. Offering rehabilitation through case management support and an expansive array of employment opportunities. Individuals who are engaged with our providers receive an extensive service plan through clinical support, onsite planning, and in community referrals. Addressing vital needs such as, but not limited to, mental health, substance abuse treatment, housing assistance, legal services, and benefits assistance will remain the network's objective as it expands its reach across NYC.

B. John Jay College- Institute for Justice and Opportunity (IJO)

The John Jay College Institute for Justice and Opportunity (IJO) was spawned in 2017 with the direct intention of offering educational, career readiness, and reentry support tailored for justice-impacted individuals. Using a holistic, trauma-informed approach IJO assists folks with long term success through programs focused on digital literacy, leadership training, student success initiative programming, pathways to receiving a GED, and employment opportunities.

C. Visiting Families Assistance Program

The Visiting Families Assistance Program, a part of the NYC Women Forward Initiative was introduced to mitigate concerns arising as it pertains to incarcerated women within the confines of NYC. Administered by The Osborne Association and Hour Children, VFAP focuses on counseling, advocacy concerning the New York City Administration for Children's Services (ACS), family visit coaching, and reentry planning for incarcerated women and their families.

IV. Geographic Areas Served

Re-entry providers were able to engage and enroll participants from across the five boroughs. 32% of individuals recorded that they resided in the borough of the Bronx, 25% residing in the borough of Manhattan, 23% residing in the borough of Brooklyn, 15% residing in Queens, 2% residing in Staten Island at the point of engagement with our service providers. There were also 3% of individuals who recorded a residence outside of city limits but received services within the city.

V. Outreach Efforts

According to data 4,254 intakes were completed across the five boroughs with 65% of outreach occurring in the community and 34% taken place while individuals were in custody. 1% of outreach was completed in other areas outside of community offices or in custody of DOC and DOCCS.

There were a total of 1,532 job placements ranging from short term to long term employment. Re-entry providers conducted a total of 2,132 training courses with participants within the CJRN, which led to vocational and employment opportunities.
