BELLEVUE AND ALLIED HOSPITALS.

Report for the Quarter Ending June 30, 1905.

New York, July 1, 1905.

Hon. GEORGE B. McCLELLAN, Mayor:

SIR—The Board of Trustees of Bellevue and Allied Hospitals has the honor to present the following report for the three months just closed:

The Department as a Whole.

Information reached us about one month ago that the Board of Aldermen had agreed to the resolution fixing the salary for the position of General Medical Superintendent, and application was made at once to the Municipal Civil Service Commission, requesting it to appoint a date upon which to examine candidates for the position newly created. This examination was held on June 30, and it is expected that the Board will soon be in a position to appoint a competent official from the eligible list which will be established.

In consequence of the very great increase in the census caused by the erection of the portable buildings upon the grounds of Bellevue Hospital, the Board has been compelled to ask for an additional appropriation to be expended on both salary and supply accounts, this additional money being actually needed to prevent a deficit in these accounts. On April 21 the Acting Superintendent reported that the average daily census of patients, which for the year 1904 had been 1,042, had risen on April 15 to 1,284, an increase of 23.10 per cent. Counting in an increase of rather less than two per cent. in the attendants required to care for this increased number of patients, we have a total increase of 12.88 per cent. in the census based upon all inmates. For the 112 additional patients provided for in the new Bellevue pavilions, beds, bedding, clothing and many other necessary things had to be obtained, and to meet the expense of this and maintenance an additional $40,000 will be needed in the supply account alone. One satisfactory feature of the additional space acquired has been the possibility thus afforded to keep patients who formerly had to be transferred before they were fit, in order to make room for the more acute sufferers clamoring for admission.

While speaking of these "transfer cases" it may be proper to remark here that the new rule, to which reference was made in our last quarterly report, making it obligatory upon attending physicians and surgeons to certify to the condition of the patient upon the very day of his proposed transfer, has worked excellently in practice, not a single case of death within seventy-two hours after transference having been reported for a period of one month after the adoption of the rule.

A question having arisen concerning the signing of papers and the presence of an undesirable element of the legal profession in the wards of Bellevue Hospital, the Board of Trustees invited the opinion of the Corporation Counsel upon its right to exclude such individuals as it should suspect of seeking to abuse the credulity of the poor sufferers from accidents in which a suit for damages might lie. As a result of this one or two individuals were excluded from the hospitals of this Department, and very stringent rules were adopted relative to the signing of documents in the wards, this being positively forbidden without the written approval of the Superintendent or his representative. This is a subject requiring very careful handling, it being the undoubted right of a patient and frequently essential to his true interest to see his counsel and take steps before it is too late to secure compensation for his ill.

It having been a rule in the smaller hospitals of the Department that no case should be received from outside the district to which the hospital is supposed to minister, the Board agreed to an exception for the benefit of emergency cases sent to the hospital on the recommendation of a member of the visiting staff.

Complaint has been renewed recently of the incomplete histories forwarded with patients sent by private hospitals to the hospitals of this Department. A circular communication giving the facts needful to be set forth in the history has been sent to all private institutions, but many continue to be careless in this regard.

New instructions have been issued recently to the house doctors, nurses and hospital attendants concerning the need of co-operation in the fire drill, and it is hoped that this will result in an increased efficiency in this important matter.

New ambulance horses being required, the firm making the lowest bid, Messrs. Fiss, Doerr & Carroll, were requested to furnish two horses at $275 each, and these were obtained.

General Inspectors of Construction at a salary of $2,000 per year were appointed from the eligible list supplied by the Civil Service Commission as follows: April 21, William E. Barton, a veteran, assigned to work at the new wing of Gouverneur Hospital; June 5, Louis E. Bonnaud, assigned to the new Harlem Hospital, and Louis C. Frees, assigned to the new Fordham Hospital. Later Mr. Barton was assigned to Harlem Hospital and Mr. Bonnaud succeeded him at Gouverneur.

BELLEVUE HOSPITAL.

Information was received by the Board of Trustees in May that an appropriation of $850,000 for the construction of Pavilions A and B of the new Bellevue Hospital had been approved, and the Board has advertised for bids upon the work of construction.

Census.

A very large part of the increase of the census of the Department has been in Bellevue Hospital. At the beginning of the quarter there were 966 patients in the hospital, as compared with 904 in 1904, and the average daily census for the quarter was 966, as compared with 855 for 1904.

Police Matrons in Wards.

The assignment of two police matrons to duty in the prison ward for women in place of the policemen who have hitherto been stationed there was brought about early in May. The Trustees have long advocated this arrangement, which is certain to produce an improvement in the management of these wards, while it liberates for service elsewhere in the hospital grounds the three patrolmen hitherto doing duty there.

Status of Hospital Records.

The legal status of the contents of the record room has long been a subject of dispute, which has now been settled by an opinion from the Corporation Counsel, given in response to the Trustees' request. In this opinion the Corporation Counsel practically upholds the doctrine of the sanctity of the relation existing between a physician and his patient, and justifies the action of the Trustees in refusing to allow reporters of newspapers access to these records, while holding them open to inspection by the courts in proper cases.

Reception Office Reform.

While a considerable improvement in the management of the reception office has been effected, it is felt by the Trustees that this office, in one respect the most important in the hospital, since it is here that patients receive their first impressions, will not be managed as it should be until money is available to pay for the services of a first-class man to be in charge, as well as those of a trained nurse (woman), and to pay salaries that will attract a better class of young men to act as stretcher carriers. To meet these immediate needs the Board of Aldermen has been requested to grant an additional allowance of $3,000 to the present salary account.

Storage of Drugs.

The storage of drugs, alcohol, etc., belonging to the General Drug Department of the Department of Public Charities, upon the grounds of Bellevue Hospital, has caused considerable inconvenience by reason of the lack of space at the command of the Board of Trustees to house them properly. Of late barrels of spirits have been placed along the wall of the north wing of the hospital, principally for the purpose of keeping them within the immediate view of the main windows of the building used by the drug department. This, however, was criticised as exposing the hospital to fire danger from combustion of the spirits, and they were ordered removed. In the absence of any other place to put them they were stored for a time on the side of the building where they were not protected from the sun. A shed is now being prepared for them, where they will remain at least until some better site for the department, which supplies the institutions of the Charities and Correction as well as Bellevue and its dependencies, can be provided.

Removal of the Dead.

A better method of removing the dead from the wards has been under consideration by the Board of Trustees, but it has not as yet been found practicable to effect this improvement. The old method is objectionable chiefly because it renders unnecessarily conspicuous to other patients and their visitors this necessary process. It is hoped that an arrangement with the Commissioner of Public Charities (under whose authority is the Morgue) may be carried out, by which a remedy may be had for this objectionable method of removal.

Medical Matters.

One of the new pavilions was set apart for meningitis cases, with the result that a better percentage of recoveries was made under the special treatment accorded there. The larger supply of fresh air and sunlight seemed influential in contributing to this result.

A Committee of the Medical Board, especially appointed, presented to the Trustees a valuable report upon hospital dietetics, which will be of service in arranging future dietary schedules.

Medical Appointments.

A new rule adopted by the Board of Trustees restricts the terms of all future medical appointments, including those of visiting physicians and surgeons on the Medical Board, to one year, while all such appointees will be notified that they are expected to visit daily during their term of service the institution to which they have been appointed, unless prevented by illness or absence from the city.

A proposition having been made to appoint consulting eye, ear, throat and skin specialists to Bellevue Hospital, the matter was referred to the Medical Board for its opinion upon the need for such specialists, and its report being unfavorable, the plan was abandoned until such time as a need shall exist.

The following resignations have been accepted and the following appointments approved by the Trustees for Bellevue Hospital, during the past quarter:

Dr. John M. Spetnagle resigned from the position of Assistant Attending Genito-Urinary Surgeon to Out Patients on the First Division, on April 5. Dr. A. Richard Stern, Assistant Attending Physician to Out Patients on the First Division in the Children's Department, resigned on March 1.

Dr. Walter L. Niles and Dr. C. Clarence Sichel, Assistant Attending Physicians to Out Patients, resigned on June 20.

Dr. Herman F. Nordeman was appointed Assistant Attending Genito-Urinary Surgeon and Dr. Gerald A. Garrigan Assistant Attending Surgeon to Out Patients on the Fourth Division, on June 20.

On June 5 Dr. G. W. Cottis resigned from the position of Junior Surgeon on the Fourth Division of the House Staff.

New Members of the House Staff.

The following appointments have been made to the Bellevue Hospital House Staff: To the First Division—Dr. Davenport White, Dr. E. M. Hawks, Dr. E. B. Armstrong, Dr. Gordon Lindsay, Dr. C. J. Harbeck, Dr. Murney E. Lewis.

To the Second Division—Dr. H. W. Frink, Dr. A. N. Benedict, Dr. J. R. Cudmore, Dr. E. W. Phillips, Dr. J. R. Herrick, Dr. W. M. Kerr.

To the Third Division—Dr. J. P. Hunt, Dr. I. M. Vanderhoff, Dr. C. J. Goeller, Dr. F. M. Kemp, Dr. L. D. Rogers, Dr. E. R. Crowe.

To the Fourth Division—Dr. R. R. Ryan, Dr. J. C. Mabey, Dr. A. A. Walker, Dr. John H. Richards, Dr. G. B. Emory, Dr. H. P. Groesbeck.

Psychopathic Wards.

A communication requesting information concerning the probable saving of expense to the psychopathic wards by the establishment of a psychopathic hospital in the city, was received by the Board at its meeting of June 5, and reply was made that provided the new institution is established according to the plans outlined by its managers, and provided that necessary changes are effected in the Lunacy Law, a large reduction in expense to the present wards may be confidently anticipated. The Board of Trustees further expressed its opinion that such an institution is needed for the care of the City's insane.

Request was made at this same meeting for an examination for the position of Alienist, and it was further asked that Dr. Holmes who served temporarily as Alienist in the psychopathic wards until February 12, be admitted to this examination.

In accordance with Dr. Gregory's recommendation, a music box has been purchased for the men's ward, that in the ward for women having produced an excellent effect upon the inmates there.

Improvements, Alterations, etc.

A telephone has been installed in the dressing room for the convenience of the members of the house staff.

A new extractor has been purchased for the laundry, the old one having been pronounced unfit for service by the Supervising Engineer.

A new metal ceiling has been furnished in Ward 31 to replace the old plaster one, which showed signs of serious cracking.

An accident to the insulation of one of the electric light cords has furnished the occasion for a new rule by which these cords are to be inspected at least once in every two weeks, while a special watchman familiar with the electrical wiring will be on hand at night prepared to deal with any emergency that may arise.

The Acting Superintendent has been authorized to experiment with a plan of equipping the beds in a certain ward with movable rubber castors, the object being to avoid the noise in the ward beneath from the moving of beds whenever ward cleaning is going on.

A new situation has been found for the doctors' tennis court, just behind the psychopathic wards, and progress has been made in preparing the ground for this use.

Bellevue Training School.

The work of the Bellevue Training School for Women Nurses has naturally increased with the growth in the hospital service, and to provide for this it was found necessary on May 1 temporarily to rent two apartments on East Twenty-seventh street, which accommodate eight pupil nurses. These apartments were inadequate and the Commissioners of the Sinking Fund were requested to authorize the lease of the premises No. 212 East Twenty-sixth street, which would accommodate twenty nurses, and in arrangement and location were the most desirable for the purpose that could be secured. The Commissioners approved of the lease on April 12, provided that the plans and specifications for alterations and repairs on the premises should be satisfactory to the engineers of the Finance Department, and it is hoped that the building will soon be ready for occupancy by the Training School.

GOVERNEUR HOSPITAL.

The appointment of a General Inspector of Construction has had a tendency to hold the contractor to stricter responsibility for the quality of his work upon the new wing of Gouverneur Hospital, but the quantity of his work has been deficient as before, and the progress has been slow. Work has now been started upon the basement of the old wing, thus involving the use of the children's ward for the Out Patient Department.

Census.

There were 114 patients in the hospital at the beginning of the quarter, 12 more than the nominal capacity and 20 more than at the same date last year. On June 30 the census was smaller than on that day last year, being 89 as compared with 105 in 1904, but the average census for the whole quarter was 106 this year, as compared with 102 last year.

Medical Appointments.

The following medical appointments have been made and the following resignations have been accepted for Gouverneur Hospital during the past quarter:

Dr. L. A. Conner and Dr. S. A. Knopf were appointed Advisers to the Tuberculosis Clinic for one year from May 10.

Dr. Bruno S. Horowicz was appointed Assistant Attending Surgeon to Out Patients on June 5.

Dr. Harlow Brooks resigned from the position of Pathologist to Gouverneur Hospital on June 5.

The following appointments have been made to the Gouverneur Hospital House Staff:

Dr. Charles Bell, Dr. Carl Halifax Van Norman, Dr. R. K. Lohmiller, Dr. Eugene Bishop Mumford, Dr. Anthony Hart Harrigan, Dr. Samuel Dodd.

HARLEM HOSPITAL.

A communication has been received from J. H. Freedlander, architect for the power house and ambulance stable at the new Harlem Hospital, inclosing an estimate from Luke A. Burke & Sons, the contractors, on brick work and additional excavation required for the foundations of these buildings. The contractors were authorized to proceed with the work. Work upon the new hospital proper is proceeding more rapidly with the improved weather, but the contractors, Messrs. P. J. Carlin & Co., have already exceeded the term of their contract, which expired on March 21.

Census.

The daily census for this quarter was slightly smaller this year than it was in 1904, the average being 48, as compared with 52; but, on the other hand, the total number of patients treated was larger, for there were 703 this year against 670 last year, and the number admitted during the quarter was 627, as compared with 612 in 1904, showing a more active service. The number remaining at the end of the quarter was larger by 5 than it was in 1904.

Medical Appointments.

On the recommendation of the Harlem Hospital Medical Board, the following resignations were accepted and the following appointments and changes were approved by the Trustees, for the Attending Staff of the Out-Patient Department of Harlem Hospital:

Dr. Charles S. Stern, Attending Genito-Urinary Surgeon to Out Patients, resigned, his resignation to date from March 25, 1905.

On June 5 the following changes in the Out-Patient Department were approved:

Dr. Sigmund Deutsch was transferred to the place of Dr. Bush. Dr. E. A. Campbell was appointed to the place vacated by Dr. Deutsch. Dr. Solomon Rosenbaum was appointed Attending Genito-Urinary Surgeon to Out Patients. Dr. E. G. Levey was promoted to Attending Physician to Out Patients. Dr. S. H. Meuer was transferred to the position of Chief of the new Tuberculosis Clinic. Dr. Julius Jarcho was promoted to the position of Attending Surgeon to Out Patients. Dr. William Karniol and Dr. F. O. Garrison were appointed Assistant Attending Surgeons to Out Patients. The following appointments have been made to the Harlem Hospital House Staff:

Dr. Thomas O. Luckett, Dr. W. T. Reid and Dr. L. H. Berliner.

FORDHAM HOSPITAL

Excellent progress has been made by the contractors, the Messrs. John H. Parker Company, on the buildings of the new Fordham Hospital, on the grounds formerly the property of the St. John's College, Fordham. In the main building the walls have been completed entirely on the wings and to the fourth story on the central or administration part of the building. The exterior trimmings have been nearly finished on the first two stories, and interior work, such as installing ventilating lines and electrical conduits is progressing rapidly. The Nurses' Home is more nearly completed; the exterior has been practically finished and a large part of the interior work has been done. Work on the laundry building is in much the same state of progress as that on the Nurses' Home. The large chimney of the power house has been completed and the foundations and flooring of this building are completed also, except that the dampproofing remains to be done.

The new pavilion on the grounds of the old Fordham Hospital is now about ready for use. It is light and well ventilated and will accommodate twelve patients.

Census.

On the first day of the second quarter there were 53 patients remaining in the hospital this year, as compared with 31 in 1904, and on the last day there were 49, as compared with 38. The average census was 46 this year and 39 in 1904.

Medical Appointments.

The only new medical appointments to Fordham Hospital have been those of Dr. Louis Taft and Dr. William H. Mitchell, to serve on the house staff from June 1 and July 1, respectively.

PROCEEDINGS OF THE BOARD OF RAPID TRANSIT RAILROAD COMMISSIONERS.

AT A MEETING OF THE BOARD HELD IN NO. 320 BROADWAY, ON THURSDAY, THE 8TH OF FEBRUARY, 1906.

There were present—Alexander E. Orr, President, presiding; John H. Starin, Vice-President; Comptroller Herman A. Metz, and Commissioners Woodbury Langdon, Charles Stewart Smith and Morris K. Jesup.

George L. Rives and Albert B. Boardman, counsel; George S. Rice, Chief Engineer, and Alfred Craven, Deputy Chief Engineer, also were present.

The Board gave a hearing to representatives of property owners in First avenue. A. Wiggers, George H. Beck, Dr. McDonald and Dr. Alexander Hadden addressed the Board on the necessity of a subway in First avenue, expressing the fear that plans for this line were being delayed to the preference of the Third avenue and Lexington avenue lines. President Orr assured the committee that as the First avenue line had been laid out and approved by the Rapid Transit Board, the Board of Estimate and the Mayor, it would become a constitutional route if the property owners would consent to its construction and operation. It was understood that the committee would call at the office of Boardman, Platt & Soley with a view to obtaining forms of consent so that they might proceed with the work of obtaining consents for that line.

The minutes of the meeting of the 25th of January were read, and it was moved that they be approved.

Ayes—The President, Vice-President, Comptroller and Commissioners Langdon, Smith and Jesup.

Nays—None.

Carried.

Letter of August Belmont, President of the Interborough Rapid Transit Company, was read, as follows:

INTERBOROUGH RAPID TRANSIT COMPANY,
No. 23 NASSAU STREET,
New York, January 29, 1906.

Hon. ALEXANDER E. ORR:

MY DEAR MR. ORR—I have not heretofore felt that I ought to address you on the subject of the so-called "merger" of the traction interests in Manhattan and The Bronx, because it was not until last Saturday that the terms of the merger plan were formally announced to the stockholders of the companies concerned.

It is now my duty, as president of the corporation which is operating, as lessee, the City's subway property under your charge, to inform you that no corporate act has been taken, or will be taken, which will in any way change the Interborough Company's relations to your Board or to the City. It is needless, I hope, for me to assure you that the Interborough Company will continue its loyal support of the plans of your Board, for the improvement and extension of the local rapid transit facilities.

Inasmuch as the new organization has not yet been completed, it would be premature to attempt at this time any detailed statement of the policy to be pursued by the Interborough-Metropolitan Company. There are, however, some things which may properly be said at this time, and which it is due you and your associates that I should say.

For myself, I desire to assure you that I would not have consented to the proposed merger had I not been convinced, not only that it would not retard the development of your plans for rapid transit in New York, but, in my judgment, would materially aid them. I believe that the operation of all the transit facilities in Manhattan and The Bronx under one general control will result in a very substantial enlargement of the traveling facilities in the two boroughs, and will make it possible to provide New York with the most complete, economical and effective urban transportation system in the world.

I know enough of the views of my associates to be able to say that we recognize that the interests of the people of New York demand that important extensions of the rapid transit lines of the city should be made as promptly as possible, and that it is your duty to see to it that these extensions are furnished. It is my belief that you will find the directors and officers of the Interborough-Metropolitan Company not only willing to fully co-operate with you to this end, but able to furnish much more efficient co-operation than could have been provided by any of the local transit interests as they existed prior to the "merger."

Holding myself always at your disposal, I remain,

Yours very truly,
(Signed) AUGUST BELMONT, President.

Letter of the Manhattan Transit Company was presented as follows, and it was understood that all necessary information would be furnished to the said company:

MANHATTAN TRANSIT COMPANY,
No. 250 EAST FORTY-EIGHTH STREET,
NEW YORK, January 29, 1906.

Rapid Transit Board, New York City:

GENTLEMEN—We have investigated thoroughly the subway route as laid out by your Board from the Battery through Broad, Nassau, Chatham street and Third avenue to The Bronx, and we desire to make you a bonafide bid of a character satisfactory to the City for the construction and operation of this line.

We are ready to go ahead with the work immediately.

Will you kindly inform us if you are prepared to accept bids on this route in the near future?

Very truly yours,
(Signed) MANHATTAN TRANSIT COMPANY,
Per Jos. H. HOADLEY, President.

Report of Dr. Soper was presented, as follows:

GEORGE A. SOPER, PH.D., CONSULTING SANITARY ENGINEER,
No. 29 BROADWAY, NEW YORK,
February 1, 1906.

Mr. ALEXANDER E. ORR, President, Board of Rapid Transit Railroad Commissioners,
No. 320 Broadway, New York City:

SIR—In accordance with your request, as communicated to me by Mr. George S. Rice, your Chief Engineer, I have made a careful sanitary investigation of the subway, with special reference to the condition of the air. As requested by Mr. Rice, the investigation covered the period from July 1 to December 31, 1905.

The results of my investigation have been made the subject of frequent written and verbal reports to Mr. Rice during the progress of the work. A summary of the leading facts brought out and my conclusions up to October 1 were contained in the preliminary report which I submitted to your Board on October 19, 1905.

The following report covers the results of my investigation for the whole six months. It contains, first, a brief review of some of the most essential facts and conclusions which have resulted from the investigation; second, a concise but more extended digest of the data; third, in appendices, the data in full, with comprehensive tabulations and summaries.

In all, there have been about 2,200 chemical analyses of air, 3,000 determinations of bacteria in the air and about 400 other analyses in special studies of oils, dusts, disinfectants and other substances. About 50,000 determinations of temperature and humidity were made before the present system of automatic and continuous temperature records could be adopted.

Considerable care was taken in the selection of my assistants and it is to their skill and intelligence that a large share of credit is due for the results. From first to last, the number of my assistants was twenty-one. About two-thirds of this number were college or technical school graduates.

Mr. George S. Rice, Chief Engineer to your Board, has been continually consulted with respect to the conduct of this investigation. New lines of inquiry and estimates of expenditures were submitted to him before being decided upon. The work was laid out in accordance with his wishes and has been carried on with the object of assisting him in his more comprehensive studies of methods of cooling and ventilating the subway. Mr. Rice supplied me with much information concerning the construction and operation of the road and I regret that I have not been able to use any of these facts in my report.

I have also enjoyed the benefit of assistance from a number of friends in Columbia University, among whom I may mention Dr. Charles F. Chandler, Professor of Chemistry; Dr. T. Mitchell Prudden, Professor of Pathology; Dr. William Hallock, Professor of Physics, and Dr. Philip Hanson Hiss, Adjunct Professor of Bacteriology. To these and others whose personal and scientific interests have aided in this work, I desire to express my appreciation and thanks.

Review of Principal Conclusions.

A fact which was appreciated at the outset of my investigation, and which should never be lost sight of in considering the results, is the great extent of the space under consideration and the large number of conditions which were capable of affecting the air. It should not be assumed that what has been found true for one time and place has a general application, nor that what has been found to hold good for the subway as a whole must also hold good for every part of it. I am moved to make these remarks because of the necessity of having to use many averages and isolated figures in stating the results and because of my inability to present the data adequately within the brief time and space available. Had it been possible to give all the tables, diagrams and discussions upon which my conclusions are based, a much more comprehensive knowledge of the subject could have been given.

Regarded as a whole, the results of the analyses indicate that the air of the subway was frequently renewed. Yet several considerations prevent this seeming excellence from being regarded by me as conclusive. In view of the great importance which attaches to some of the subjects investigated it would have been advantageous if more time and attention could have been concentrated upon them.

There are no records by which to judge whether the air of the subway is, or is not, as satisfactory as it has been found feasible to make the air of the best foreign underground roads. The published tests of ventilation of subways in other parts of the world have neither been extensive nor conducted under conditions at all comparable with those in the Rapid Transit Subway of New York. The conditions in the Boston subway approach nearest to those here. From the few analyses which have been reported, the air in the Boston subway appears to be less satisfactory than the air in the New York subway.

The study of the question of dust resulted in the discovery of many important facts regarding the properties of the peculiar black, metallic dust of the subway. The great aggregate weight of iron which is ground up and thrown into the air by the operation of the trains, and the association of these particles with organic and oily substances and bacteria suggested the need of various inquiries which would have carried this investigation beyond the period of time allotted.

From the beginning of my investigation, the air was warmer in the subway than out of doors. Had no trains been running it would have been cooler inside than outside during the summer. In the fall the average temperature would have been about the same inside and out. In the winter the temperature would have been, as it has been, warmer than in the streets, but this difference would have been less. I have not thoroughly investigated the causes or remedies for the heat, these subjects being beyond the restricted scope of my studies, but I have accepted the undisputed opinion that it was derived chiefly from the motors and other electrical apparatus. Computations show that the heat emanating from the passengers has played but a small part in elevating the temperature.

Observing that in operating the road a considerable amount of power is used which, in my judgment, could be saved and that the existing ventilation of the subway carried off much of the heat produced, I ventured to suggest in an earlier report that benefit would result from increasing the openings to the outside air and improving the cars and methods of operating them. That part of my suggestion which related to the effectiveness of openings has been fully supported by the results of analyses of the air.

Not only the movement of the trains but the action of the wind in the streets has caused the air to circulate in and out and between stations. So great has been the amount of ventilation produced in these ways that the effects of centrifugal fans and other devices which have been experimentally used to increase the ventilation have been completely hidden.

Sanitary considerations do not lead me to view the heat of the subway in summer with alarm. In fact, the conditions in winter, when strong draughts of cold air enter the stations, are far more apt to affect health. The difference in temperature between the subway and streets was much less in hot weather than was generally understood. The average temperature of the subway in July and August was 5.6 degrees higher than that of the streets, and in the hottest week it was about 10 degrees higher. It is true that greater differences than these occurred for short intervals of time, but the greatest difference generally occurred in the early morning or at night when few people were traveling. When the outside air was hottest the difference between the subway and street was least.

Careful observation has convinced me that in many cases sensations ascribed to heat have been due in part to odors and other unpleasant conditions which it is practicable to improve. I place much importance on the need of preventing unnecessary odors and dust and believe that if the subway is kept in a strictly clean and sanitary condition that that degree of heat which is inevitable will have no injurious effect upon health. As to the effect upon travel due to the discomfort caused by the heat in summer, it seems reasonable to believe that the public will adapt itself to the discomfort due to the unavoidable heat, if it is known that the subway air is reasonably pure and as agreeable as it is practicable to make it. However desirable, it should not be expected that the air of the subway will ever be as cool and pure as the air of the streets any more than that the air of the streets will be as fresh and pleasant as the air of the country. There must always be some heat, dust, odor and noise, produced by the friction and wear and tear of the machinery. If it is found feasible to cool and otherwise improve the air by refrigeration, fans or other mechanical means, the advantage of doing so is apparent, but if this result cannot be accomplished the consequences will not be found disastrous. Of far more importance than the question of heat is the need of maintaining proper conditions of cleanliness in the subway.

The sanitary administration of the subway has been the most unsatisfactory feature brought out in this investigation. Inspection has shown the existence of conditions which call for immediate improvement. The stations and toilet rooms have not been kept in a clean and orderly condition. It is difficult to criticise too severely the filthy condition of the roadbed at the stations or the neglected condition of ventilation and cleanliness in some of the toilet rooms. Unless these conditions are corrected they may very properly be regarded as suitable subjects for the attention of the Board of Health.

Digest of Results.

The different subjects which have received my attention in this investigation will, for convenience, now be considered more fully under the following heads:

- I. Temperature and Humidity of the Air,
- II. Chemical Condition of the Air,
- III. Bacterial Condition of the Air,
- IV. Present Ventilation and Effects of Ventilation Experiments,
- V. Odors in the Subway,
- VI. Dust in the Subway,
- VII. Sanitary Care of the Subway.

The methods employed in studying these questions have been, for the most part, such as have been used in other sanitary and meteorological investigations in which a high degree of accuracy has been required. The suitability of the method to the work in hand was in all cases carefully tested. In some instances special apparatus and methods of analysis had to be devised, but, for the most part, the methods have been only such as were standard and capable of being duplicated. For the most part the air analyzed has been that at an elevation of 18 inches to 2 feet above the pavement. This height was decided on as the most convenient and suitable after comparative tests of the air at different elevations. But few samples were taken of the air of the cars, since this was the desire of your Chief Engineer.

TEMPERATURE AND HUMIDITY OF THE AIR.

Early Methods of Observing Temperature and Humidity.

The earliest date upon which any systematic record of temperature or humidity seems to have been made in the subway was June 26, 1903. At that time a number of maximum and minimum thermometers and stationary wet and dry bulb hygrometers, with some recording thermometers, were placed in the subway at various places between City Hall and Columbus Circle, at different points above Fifty-ninth street and outside.

The accuracy of the observations made with these instruments was carefully studied by me with the result that the temperature observations were found to have been correct, probably to within 5 degrees, and the humidity observations to within 20 per cent. The readings were generally too high. Owing to these errors and the unfavorable location of some of the instruments the data which were collected with them should be interpreted with caution.

Methods of Observing Temperature and Humidity from July 1 to September 18, 1905.

Temperature and humidity observations were first undertaken by me on July 1, 1905. They were taken with sling psychrometers designed as made for the United States Weather Bureau, with some minor changes intended to fit them especially for the subway work. They were tested by me at a testing station established for the purpose of determining the accuracy of the various instruments employed in the investigation, and were found to be correct to 1-10 of 1 degree Fahrenheit. Four observers were employed in making the psychrometer observations. Each visited a given number of stations each day and observed the temperature and humidity of the inside and outside air. The express stations were usually visited twice. As a rule it was feasible to make observations only at certain hours of the day: the late afternoon, night and early morning were not generally included. Yet the data so obtained, when worked into averages for the days and weeks, give a good idea of the conditions experienced by the patrons of the road. For one week, August 10 to 16, observations were made throughout the day and night, and the data so collected were carefully tabulated and compared with the daily averages obtained in the usual way. Both sets of averages agreed closely. The total number of temperature and humidity observations to October 1 was about 50,000, considering the temperature and humidity observations separately. The relative humidity was calculated from the readings of the psychrometers by means of tables issued by the United States Weather Bureau. Tables showing the times and places where temperature and humidity observations were made, with the results in full, together with daily and weekly averages and summaries of maxima and minima results have been transmitted to your Chief Engineer and constitute Appendix No. 1 of this report.

Final System of Obtaining Records of Temperature.

The observations with sling psychrometers were not intended to furnish the data from which the most important deductions concerning the ventilation of the subway were to be derived. The instruments needed for this purpose were thermographs, which were capable of giving continuous records. On September 18 a number of new thermographs were set up and those which had been used since 1903, after careful test and adjustment, were relocated.

The thermographs were placed in specially constructed cages in the stations of the subway, generally on the east side and south end of the platform, as far removed as possible from local draughts and other temporary disturbing conditions, about 4 feet from the pavement. The total number of thermographs which have since been in use is twenty. All were made by J. Richard, Paris, and on test were found capable of recording slow changes of temperature to within 1 degree of temperature and 15 minutes of time, if visited daily and kept clean and adjusted. A special observer was trained to keep them in good condition, to check their readings with a sling psychrometer, to make necessary adjustments and to renew the record sheets every week. The records have been systematically filed. The management of the thermographs and the observation of relative humidity were turned over to your engineering corps on November 18, with the recommendation that the system be made permanent.

Observations with a delicate mercurial thermometer have shown that changes of temperature occur in the subway of far greater extent and frequency than is indicated by the thermographs. The latter have an inertia or lag which causes them to respond with less promptness than mercurial thermometers to rapid changes of temperature. In some cases thermographs which were capable of showing fluctuations of as much as 6 degrees within an hour's time failed to record changes of 7 degrees in one minute. The thermographs show average conditions.

Temperatures in the Subway Before It Was Opened.

In view of the overheating of the subway air which took place in the summer of 1905 it is interesting to briefly review some of the temperature characteristics of the road before it was thrown open to travel. In reviewing these figures it must be remembered that the entrances, exits and blow holes were more or less closed at this time and that the free circulation of air was correspondingly obstructed. Had all the present openings been free there would have been less difference between the air inside and out.

During construction and before the subway was covered by a roof its temperature was practically that of the outside air. After the roof was put on a marked difference became visible. The temperature of the subway was much more constant than that of the outside air. Before trains were run, hourly and daily changes outside seemed to affect it but little, while the more marked and continued changes produced visible effects.

In winter the air outside was cooler and in summer warmer than the air of the subway. The total range of temperature of the subway air at One Hundred and Twelfth street for the year, August 6, 1903, to July 27, 1904, was from 22 degrees to 68 degrees, or 46 degrees, while the range outside was from 2 degrees to 94 degrees, or 92 degrees—twice as great.

During the hottest week in the subway, before it was opened, the temperature, according to the One Hundred and Twelfth street records, averaged 59.4 degrees, while the street temperature was 77.7 degrees; difference 18.3 degrees.

The records are not sufficiently numerous nor exact to enable us to determine the normal temperature of the earth through which the subway runs. In fact, this temperature probably varies according to the depth under the surface and other conditions. In the deep tunnel which runs under the Harlem Meer in Central Park a temperature of 54 degrees was frequently observed in June and July, 1903, although the temperature outside at the same time reached 95 degrees.

In the year in which the road was opened the subway at Columbus Circle averaged about 15 degrees warmer than the average temperature outside. In March and April the average temperatures inside and out were about the same. From the middle of April to the end of September the subway at Columbus Circle was cooler than the air outside.

Temperatures Immediately After Opening the Subway.

From the middle of August until the opening day, October 27, 1904, the subway air was gradually cooling from the highest point which it had reached in the summer, and from that time to the end of the year the temperature gradually fell. The large amount of travel which the subway experienced at the start did not visibly affect the decline in temperature which was to be expected at this season of year. For the first ten weeks of 1905 the subway was only slightly warmer than in 1904. It is not clear that this difference was solely due to the fact that the road was in operation. The temperature outside was warmer than it had been during the year before.

Beginning about the middle of March, or at that season when, in other years, the average temperature inside and outside had been about the same, the heating of the air due to the operation of the road first became distinctly visible. Instead of the outside air becoming warmer than the inside, as had been the case the year before, the average temperature inside remained higher. Thenceforth higher temperatures in the subway became the rule both winter and summer.

Temperatures Since July 1, 1905.

Throughout my investigation the air of the subway has been warmer than the air of the streets. This difference has increased considerably during the autumn and winter months. In the early part of July the difference between the average temperature for the day, inside and outside the subway, was less than 5 degrees. In the latter part of September it was over 10 degrees. In January it was at some stations about 20 degrees warmer than the outside air; an average difference for a week of 30 degrees was found at one station.

Referring now to the observations of temperature and humidity made by the sling psychrometers, we are prepared to obtain a more accurate idea of the conditions which obtained in the summer after the subway was opened. The subway air grew warmer as the summer season advanced. It averaged 81.0 degrees through July. In the week of August 4 to 10 it was 83.4 degrees. Thereafter it declined very gradually until the latter part of September, when it was 76.0 degrees. In the week of September 29 to October 5 there was a slight rise to 78 degrees. This was followed by a more rapid decline than had occurred at any time before and excessively high temperatures were not again experienced.

During its warmest period the temperature of the subway followed the temperature of the outside air, except in its more extreme and rapid changes. The correspondence is seen to be most marked when the data for the inside and outside air are compared as weekly and monthly averages. The average temperature in the subway for the day-time for July and August combined was 82.4 degrees; it was 76.8 degrees outside; difference 5.6 degrees.

The Highest Temperatures in the Summer of 1905.

The highest temperature observed by me in the subway was 95 degrees. This occurred at the Brooklyn Bridge Station July 18, 1905.

The hottest week was that of August 4 to 10, inclusive. The average daily temperature for the subway during this time was 83.4 degrees; for the outside air 78.2 degrees; difference 5.2 degrees. The maximum temperature observed in the subway during this hottest week was 88.2 degrees; in the streets it was 88.2 degrees at the same time.

Humidity.

The relative humidity in the subway has generally been less than out of doors, but the dew point has been higher. In other words, the amount of moisture present has been actually greater but it has appeared less in the subway than out of doors. There have been no fogs nor mists in the subway. A faint haze has not been uncommon.

The average relative humidity of the subway for July and August was 57.5 per cent.; for the outside air 60.6 per cent.; difference 3.1 per cent. The greatest average relative humidity occurred during the week when the average temperature was highest. During this period the relative humidity averaged 64.4 per cent.

Value of Thermograph Records.

The records obtained from the thermographs, established in the middle of September, give an excellent idea of the average differences in temperature which have existed between the subway and the streets, and between one subway station and another. They also show hourly fluctuations in temperature which give clues not only to the origin of the heat but to the extent and method of ventilation, movement of trains and a considerable number of other instructive conditions. Daily observations with the sling psychrometer give a sufficient knowledge of the relative humidity and dew point.

Warmest and Coolest Stations.

The coolest station, as indicated by the thermographs, has been Canal Street and the warmest Astor Place. The lowest temperature recorded at Canal Street was 30 degrees; outside temperature 14 degrees; difference 16 degrees. At the same time the air at the Brooklyn Bridge and Astor Place Stations was 54 degrees, or 40 degrees warmer than the outside air. The express stations, with the exception of Ninety-sixth street, have all been warmer than the local stations in their vicinity. The greatest range in temperature has occurred where there has been the greatest ratio between the area of the openings to the outside air to the cubic air space of the stations.

CHEMICAL CONDITIONS OF THE AIR.

Carbon Dioxide, the Leading Test.

The chemical analyses of the air have chiefly been confined to the determination of carbon dioxide. No other test could give such a correct knowledge of the extent to which the air was vitiated and none could be made in such large numbers as were wanted with so little probability of error.

The method used in this analysis was that of Pettenkofer, with modifications described by Hempel in his "Methods of Gas Analysis," New York, 1902. Samples of air were collected in specially made round-bottom flasks of 2 litres capacity. No pains were spared to make the results accurate. Preliminary tests indicated that the results were probably correct to within about 3 parts in one million. The total number of samples analyzed was 2,084. Tables showing the times and places of collection, and results in full, with daily and weekly averages and summaries of maxima and minima results have been transmitted to your Chief Engineer and constitute Appendix No. 2 of this report. The results of carbon dioxide determinations are stated in parts per 10,000 volumes.

Slight Value of Analyses for Oxygen.

About eighty samples of air were analyzed for oxygen. The method employed in this analysis is that given by Hempel in which the oxygen is absorbed by phosphorus. The difference between the amount of oxygen present in the subway and the streets was so slight and unimportant that the determinations of oxygen were soon discontinued as a routine procedure. Tables showing the times and places of collection, and results in full, with daily and weekly averages and summaries of maxima and minima results have been transmitted to your Chief Engineer and constitute Appendix No. 3 of this report. The results are stated in percentages by volume.

General Results.

The chemical analyses of air produced results from which the following conclusions have been derived.

The average amount of carbon dioxide in the subway air has been slightly larger than in the air of the streets. The average of all results is: for the subway, 4.81, and for the streets, 3.67; difference 1.14. This difference is comparatively slight. At no time was the amount of carbon dioxide large. The greatest amount of carbon dioxide found in the subway was 8.89. This occurred in the tunnel between the Grand Central Station and the Thirty-third Street Station on December 27, 1905, at 6.02 p. m.

The carbon dioxide in the air of the subway varied according to the season, amount of travel, hour of day, place where the sample was collected, amount of carbon dioxide in the outside air and the velocity of wind in the streets.

There was more carbon dioxide found in the autumn than in the summer or winter.

Hourly Variations in the Amount of Carbon Dioxide.

The amount of carbon dioxide varied in the streets at different hours of the day. It was highest between 5.30 and 6 p. m. and lowest between 1 and 3.30 a. m. The amount increased from the minimum of the early morning hours to about 9 a. m., after which there was a fall to about 1.30 p. m., followed by a rise to the highest point of the day, which occurred between 5.30 and 6 p. m. The average range outside, as determined by hourly results, was .8 part per 10,000.

In the subway the greatest amount of carbon dioxide occurred between 5.30 and 6 p. m. Thereafter there was a gradual fall to the lowest point, which was reached between 3 and 4 a. m. The amount increased steadily in the morning to about 9 a. m., after which it fell irregularly to between 1 and 2 p. m. The average for the whole day frequently agreed closely with the amount found between 1 and 3 p. m. In the late afternoon there was a rapid rise to the maximum for the day, which was reached at about 5.30 p. m. The difference between the greatest and least amount of carbon dioxide was, according to these hourly averages, 2 parts per 10,000.

Differences in the Amount of Carbon Dioxide at Different Parts of the Subway.

There was more carbon dioxide in the air at express stations than at local stations except at the specially well ventilated express station at Ninety-sixth street. Among the principal express stations the largest average amount of carbon dioxide was found at Fourteenth street. Then came the Brooklyn Bridge, Grand Central, Seventy-second and Ninety-sixth Street Stations, in the order named.

There was more carbon dioxide in the air between stations than at the adjoining stations although this difference was in most cases very little. The results of 227 analyses show this difference to have been .31 part per 10,000.

A marked difference occurred in the amount of carbon dioxide found in the section of the subway above Fiftieth street and the section below that point. The average of all results which were capable of showing this difference demonstrated that the air above the Fiftieth street dividing line was much purer than the air further down town.

Results of Oxygen Determinations.

The samples of subway air which were analyzed for oxygen were collected from 9.30 a. m. to 5.05 p. m., between Brooklyn Bridge and Ninety-sixth Street Stations.

The average amount of oxygen found in the air of the streets was 20.71 per cent.; in the subway 20.60; difference .11. The least amount found in the subway was 20.25.

BACTERIAL CONDITION OF THE AIR.

The studies which I made concerning the bacteria in the subway relate almost solely to their number. It was not practicable, within the time and scope planned for this investigation, to do more. My views upon the desirability of further bacteriological studies were set forth in reports submitted to your Board and your Chief Engineer in November and December.

The Quantitative Methods Employed.

The bacteria were collected by allowing them to settle from the air upon circular plates about 3½ inches in diameter, containing a standard agar culture medium, or by straining them from the air by means of sand filters.

About 2,800 plates were exposed. The time of exposure was usually fifteen minutes. Most of the exposures were made at the subway stations at points as far removed from draughts as possible. Exposures out of doors were made, for the most part, in the streets on the line of the subway beyond the influence of subway air. After the plates were exposed they were taken to the laboratory and incubated at the temperature of the human body for forty-eight hours. The colonies of bacteria which developed in this time were then counted. Care was taken to exclude molds from the count. Full tables and daily and weekly summaries of bacterial results with the plate and filter methods have been transmitted to your Chief Engineer and constitute Appendices Nos. 4 and 5 of this report.

The collection of bacteria by the use of sand filters provided means for estimating the numbers contained in a measured volume of air. After a considerable amount of preliminary work the method adopted was substantially that devised by Prudden and described in "Studies from the Department of Pathology of the College of Physicians and Surgeons," Vol. 7, 1900. The results with filters were more accurate than the results with plates, chiefly for the reason that the method of collection was more satisfactory. The results obtained by the two methods furnished a useful check upon one another.

Beside the routine estimates of the numbers of bacteria present in the air special studies were made of the length of life of the pneumococcus in the subway, the numbers of bacteria in accumulated dust, the action of lubricating oil upon bacteria, the molds present and the efficiency of various commercial deodorants and germicides. The results of these studies have either been communicated in writing to your Chief Engineer or are contained in separate appendices to this report.

General Statement of Bacterial Results.

A careful examination of all of the bacterial data collected in these studies, excepting the data which relate to the dust, leads to the following conclusions:

There were, on an average, more than twice as many bacteria found in the air of the streets as in the air of the subway, excepting after rains, when fewer were found outside than inside. The average number of bacteria which settled from the air in fifteen minutes and were developed upon the plates was: in the subway, 500; outside, 1,157; difference, 657. The average number of bacteria found by filtering the air was 3,200 per cubic meter of air in the subway and 6,500 per cubic meter of air in the streets; difference 3,300.

Molds.

The molds recovered from the air by the filters were almost always less numerous in the subway than out of doors. The average number of molds found were: outside, 75 per cubic meter; inside, 80 per cubic meter; difference, 5 per cubic meter. The maximum number was 1,100, found under Central Park. The average ratio of molds to bacteria, as determined by the observations with filters, was 1 to 40 in the subway and 1 to 87 in the streets.

Effect of Winds and Draughts.

The wind in the streets had a decided effect upon the numbers of bacteria found both outside and inside of the subway; the averages show that outside five times as many were found with a wind of 18 miles per hour as with a wind of 9 miles.

The numbers in the subway varied with the more decided changes in the streets. The bacteria were more numerous near the stairways than at the ends of the stations.

The bacteria were more numerous on the side of the station into which the wind blew from the streets than on the opposite side.

There were more bacteria at the ends of the platforms where the trains left than where they arrived.

The numbers of bacteria in the air of the subway varied with the amount of travel. They were most numerous when the number of passengers and trains were most numerous and fewest when the passengers and trains were fewest.

Effect of the Oily Roadbed.

It was not found that any harmful germs were capable of multiplying in the oil which dripped in large quantity from the machinery of the cars upon the broken stone ballast and wooden ties. On the contrary, this oil apparently removed and collected from the air large numbers of bacteria.

Vitality of Pneumococcus.

The pneumococcus, probably the infective cause of a common form of pneumonia, was found capable of retaining its virulence in dried sputum in the subway for twenty-three days. According to Wood, who made studies of the resistance of this germ for the Commission for the Investigation of Respiratory Diseases of the New York City Department of Health, the pneumococcus is killed in four hours in sunlight.

Condition of the Air in the Toilet Rooms.

With few exceptions there were fewer bacteria in the air of the toilet rooms than in the rest of the subway. In some cases the numbers were much greater.

The proprietary disinfectants used in the toilet rooms had no germicidal or deodorizing value.

PRESENT VENTILATION AND EFFECTS OF VENTILATION EXPERIMENTS.

A thorough study of the ventilation of the subway was not undertaken by me and, in view of the comprehensive investigation of methods of ventilation and cooling which, I understand, have been made by Mr. Rice, Chief Engineer of the Commission, I made no effort to obtain a further knowledge of this subject than was necessary in order to interpret my analyses. Consequently, some of the following remarks should be regarded rather as notes than as settled conclusions:

The size and location, as well as the shape, of the openings between the subway and the street, were found to be matters of controlling importance in ventilating the subway.

The amount of carbon dioxide at different stations varied approximately as the ratio between the cross sections of the openings and the cubic contents of the stations.

The removal of about 280 square feet of vault lights at Ninety-sixth street gave immediate and sensible relief in the hot summer weather, but the opening of 90 effective square feet in the roof of the stations at Fourteenth street, of 180 effective square feet at the Grand Central Station and 170 effective square feet at the Brooklyn Bridge Station was not enough to make their consequences felt.

With respect to the location of blow holes, it appeared possible to determine with scientific exactness the conditions under which they may be most effective. Blow holes have been proved in this investigation to have much value in aiding ventilation. In fact, special studies of the condition of the air above and below Fiftieth street showed plainly that the air was much purer in the sections which have blow holes than in those which do not have them.

Currents of air due to the combined action of the wind in the streets and the motion of the trains were measured at several stairways. As a result of eighty observations at eight stations the air was found to have moved in and out of the subway at an average rate of 573,000 cubic feet per hour at a single stairway.

A local train was observed to push out about 15,000 cubic feet and an express train about 45,000 cubic feet of air through the passageways of a local station. This air was replaced after the trains passed by corresponding indraughts from the streets. The same air did not move in and out of the subway, but fresh air replaced the subway air. The maximum velocity of air moving in at any stairway was 16.1-3 miles per hour. On this occasion the air was passing through this stairway at the rate of 3,800,000 cubic feet per hour.

The use of centrifugal fans, as experimented with under the direction of your Chief Engineer near the Brooklyn Bridge, Fourteenth Street and Bleeker Street Stations, and the use of automatic louvers between Fifty-ninth and Sixty-sixth streets, did not produce results which were visible, although about 800 analyses of carbon dioxide were made to observe them.

Observations of the passage of air from one station to another showed that the air of the subway, outside of the trains, may, in some cases, move from one station to the next at the rate of 640 linear feet per minute. The air between stations never became badly vitiated, according to my analyses. It is true that the largest amount of carbon dioxide found (8.89) was between two stations, but on this occasion the average amount at the adjoining stations was also high (7.79).

It is regrettable that a census could not have been made to determine the number of passengers carried and the frequency with which the trains were operated, since this would have enabled me to estimate with some precision the frequency with which the air of the subway was renewed. Unfortunately, no figures have been available which were capable of giving even an approximate idea of the number of persons in any part of the subway at any time. The only estimates of the passengers carried were based on the total number of tickets sold at the different stations per month.

ODORS IN THE SUBWAY.

Odors have been more or less present at all times and at nearly all places in the subway. In some cases, they have been so faint as hardly to be noticeable and in others they have been very decided. The effects upon the passengers have varied with the sensitiveness of the individual. The most serious effects noted have been headache and a mild form of nausea. The odors have been most apparent during hot, damp weather, where the greatest crowding has occurred and at stations which received the least amount of ventilation.

Unusual pains were taken to ascertain the causes of the odors. It was not possible to analyze them chemically or to measure them by other means than the senses, although samples of subway dust and air, when brought to the laboratory, often bore the odors distinctly, but by examining a large number of substances, heated and cold, and by attempting to duplicate the odors of the subway in closed rooms under suitable conditions of temperature and humidity, some of the causes have been discovered.

Causes of Subway Odor.

The brokenstone ballast on the roadbed has been responsible for much of the odor noted in the subway. This broken stone was made from trap rock and its peculiarly slaty odor in the warm atmosphere of the subway could easily be distinguished, especially at the more open stations on damp days. Frequently, however, this odor was masked by others.

The oil used in lubricating the wheels and machinery of the cars has been one of the principal causes of odor. Large quantities of this oil, which is composed partly of fish and petroleum products, were allowed to drip from the machinery of the cars upon the ballast and ties of the roadbed. The odor of this oil rising from the roadbed and from the hot machinery has been particularly prevalent and persistent. It has existed in the air in a finely vaporized condition. Samples of subway dust have always contained a small percentage of this oil.

A pungent and unpleasant odor has been given off by the proprietary disinfectant used in the toilet rooms. This odor has been especially disagreeable and so penetrating that it has occasionally been noticed on the streets outside of the subway. Laboratory tests have shown that the use of this compound has not been justified by its germicidal or deodorizing effects. In fact, it has no value in these directions.

A strong and peculiarly disagreeable odor has been produced by an oily cement used in fastening decorative tiles in place at some of the stations. The oil employed in making this cement has an unpleasant odor, and to disguise it a substance having a still more decided and unpleasant odor has been employed. Fortunately the odor of the tile cement has not been lasting.

Hot boxes, of which there was a considerable number when the road was first put in operation, have at times produced a persistent and suffocating odor.

The odor of tobacco smoke has been common at the stations. The rules against smoking in the subway have not been strictly enforced. Lighted cigars, cigarettes and pipes have often been carried into the trains.

Odors from concrete and paint have repeatedly been noticed. The former has been persistent, the latter transient.

Odors of human origin have sometimes been present in the air of the subway, particularly during warm, damp weather and where there was much crowding.

Excepting in rare instances where ignorant employees have not been under strict supervision, the odors of the subway have not pointed to conditions dangerous to health.

DUST IN THE SUBWAY.

The dust of the subway was made the subject of special study because of the possibility that it might play an important part in producing or aggravating respiratory diseases.

Methods of Analysis.

The dust was examined microscopically, chemically, bacteriologically and by a special method devised for determining the gross weight of dust in a measured volume of air. A table showing the chemical composition of eleven samples of subway dusts is contained in Appendix No. 6 of this report. A table giving the numbers of bacteria found in forty-three samples of subway and outside dusts is given in Appendix No. 7. The gross amount of dust found in 171 samples of subway and outside air at various places is given in Appendix No. 8 of this report.

Inspections of the cars and machinery were undertaken and inquiries were made concerning the total loss in weight per month of brake shoes, rails, wheels and other metallic parts of the subway equipment. To have determined in the most positive way whether the breathing of subway dust produced any effect upon health required a line of study which was beyond that authorized by the Commission. My views with respect to the desirability of prosecuting further inquiries into this matter have been communicated to you.

Physical Characteristics of the Dust.

In appearance the dust was always black and very finely divided. Owing to the presence of a small amount of oil it had a peculiarly adhesive character which caused it to attach itself securely to all kinds of surfaces even when these were vertically placed and glazed. All parts of the subway which had not been recently cleaned or painted or were not of a dark color bore evidence of this black dust when my investigation began. It had a marked capacity for soiling linen and other light-colored clothing. In summer the dust often produced yellow stains on the clothing of persons who remained long in the subway.

When examined microscopically the dust was found to be composed of particles of many substances, conspicuous among which were thin, flat plates of iron. In fact, these could be seen with the naked eye upon the hats and garments of persons who had been riding in the subway.

The size of the particles depended upon the place where they were found. The largest were visible on the roadbed. Most of the particles were so small as to escape notice, except where beams of sunlight entered the subway.

Particles of dust, not iron, comprised bits of silica, cement, stone, fibres of wood, wool and cotton, molds and undistinguishable fragments. Besides the dust which resulted from the grinding of metals, it was evident that the gradual wear and tear of everything in the subway contributed to the dust. The importance of maintaining the subway in a cleaner condition became very manifest from these studies.

Chemical Composition of the Dust.

The chemical analysis of eleven samples of accumulated dust from the subway indicated the following average percentage composition: Total iron, 61.30, including 59.89 metallic iron; silica, etc., 15.58; oil, 1.18; organic matter, 21.94. See Appendix No. 6.

Weight of Dust in the Air.

The average weight of dust found in the subway air, using all the results, was 61.6 milligrams per thousand cubic feet of air; in the streets 52.1 milligrams; difference 9.5 milligrams. The maximum amount found in the subway was 204 milligrams. Twenty-three comparative tests were made to determine, with particular care, the weight of dust per thousand cubic feet of air inside of the subway and in the streets at the same time and as near the same place as possible. These showed an excess of dust in the subway of 47 per cent. over that outside. In five cases there was more dust outside, the greatest excess being 30 per cent. In the other eighteen cases the excess of subway dust over outside dust ranged from 11 to 800 per cent.

The amount of dust found in the air of the subway varied with a number of circumstances. More dust was found at the arrival ends than at the departure ends of the station platforms. This was probably due to the fact that the brakes are applied near the arrival ends. More dust was found just before and just after the hours of greatest travel than at any other period of the day. The stations where the greatest weights of dust were found were express stations; there the amount of metallic dust formed by the braking of the trains was much greater than at the local stations.

Numbers of Bacteria Contained in Subway and Other Dusts.

The number of bacteria found in the dust of the subway was usually smaller than the number found in dusts which had accumulated outside. The average result of analyses of thirty samples of dust which had accumulated in the subway was 500,000 bacteria per gram of dust. The average obtained from six samples of accumulated dusts collected in different buildings in New York was 600,000. The largest number found in the subway was 2,000,000 per gram. For comparison with these figures it is interesting to note that dust which had accumulated in a Broadway theatre contained 270,000, in a fashionable hotel 360,000, in a Fifth Avenue church 320,000, in a tall office building 850,000 and in the attic of a country house 150 years old 110,000 bacteria per gram.

Molds in the Subway Dust.

Dust which had accumulated in the subway contained over twice as many molds as dust collected in outside buildings. The ratio of bacteria to molds was 89 to 1 for the subway and 250 to 1 elsewhere.

Further studies of the dust would have been very desirable.

SANITARY CARE OF THE SUBWAY.

The sanitary administration of the subway was briefly commented upon in my preliminary report of October 19, 1905, and several specific points of criticism there made were referred to as especially worthy of the attention of your Board.

It does not appear that any of the conditions pointed out have been corrected. It may be well, therefore, to review and extend the suggestion which I formerly made and renew my recommendation that the sanitary care of the subway be improved.

The ballast of the roadbed should be renewed at the stations or, better, replaced with concrete or other smooth surface which can be kept clean. The ballast at many of the stations has served as the receptacle for unlimited quantities of filth of the kind usually consigned to cuspidors. In the matter of expectation the guards and other employees of the operating company, who should be the sanitary guardians of the subway, are the chief offenders. It seems unnecessary to refer in further detail to this subject. The disgusting and unsanitary conditions to which I refer are sufficiently evident to every passenger. I recommend that the ordinances of the Board of Health relating to spitting be enforced in the subway and that the roadbed at the stations be made clean and kept clean.

Notwithstanding the recommendations of the Board of Health with respect to the sanitary administration of the subway, a copy of which accompanied my former report, dry sweeping has not been abolished at the stations. Apparently the porters and others in charge of cleaning the subway stations have not received precise instructions as to their duties and they are not obliged, as they should be, to follow, in every particular, methods of cleaning and disinfection laid down by a competent superintendent. In sweeping, properly moistened sawdust and hair brooms should always be used. Suitable receptacles should be provided for the fresh and used sawdust, and the latter should be carried off every day.

The sinks, urinals and closets of the toilet rooms should be cleaned at least twice daily with utensils kept solely for that purpose and afterward treated with an efficient disinfectant.

Many of the toilet rooms have been in an unventilated and neglected state. The fan ventilators with which these rooms were to have been provided have not all been installed, in consequence of which the only means of ventilating the closets has been through the doorways to the subway. The warm, humid air of the toilet rooms, combined with the nauseating smell of a deodorant which has been employed, has caused the air to be so unpleasant that the colored porters have often opened the doors and tied them back with strings. I urgently recommend that the toilet rooms be put in proper sanitary condition and kept clean or else permanently closed.

The stairways and platforms have been washed so infrequently that the employees at many of the stations cannot remember when this work was last done. Mopping and scrubbing should be among the chief reliances for keeping the subway clean. With respect to cleaning, the Board of Health has said that the chief cleaning of the stations should be at night immediately after the theatre crowds have gone home. At this time the cars, station platforms and closets should not only be swept but also thoroughly and properly mopped. They should all be scrubbed once a week at night. Dusting of the stations should be done only with moist cloths, which should be properly cleansed after each using. The use of feather dusters should not be permitted either in the stations or the cars.

At least four spittoons, raised from the platforms and containing sawdust, should be placed in each station. These should be cleaned and disinfected at least once a day.

At least one receptacle for papers, plainly labeled, should be placed in each station and should be emptied daily.

At present the cars are cleaned at the yards of the operating company or in the subway itself. They are swept out too infrequently and cleaned inside and out apparently once in two or more days. Accurate information with respect to this matter has not been obtainable. The Board of Health has recommended that the cars at the yards, after sweeping, should be closed and after not less than three hours should be cleared of the dust which has settled. This should be removed from the seats and woodwork by dry or moist cloths, frequently renewed, and from the floors by large moist mops, repeatedly rinsed in fresh water. Thorough mopping of the floors of the cars should be done at intervals to be determined by experience. I concur in this recommendation and also advise the employment of the modern vacuum cleaning system. By this system the movable dust may be removed from the cars by suction and afterward concentrated and burned. This process should be especially applicable to cleaning the cars while in the subway, if it is necessary to clean them there. If they could be run into the outside air for cleaning this should be done by all means.

Respectfully submitted,

PRELIMINARY REPORT OF A SANITARY INVESTIGATION OF THE AIR OF THE NEW YORK RAPID TRANSIT SUBWAY, COVERING THE MONTHS OF JULY TO SEPTEMBER, INCLUSIVE, SUBMITTED TO RAPID TRANSIT BOARD NOVEMBER 2, 1905.

ALEXANDER E. ORR, Esq., President, Board of Rapid Transit Railroad Commissioners, No. 320 Broadway, New York:

SIR—In order to convey a clear idea of the results so far obtained in my investigation of the sanitary condition of the air of the subway, it will be desirable first to consider briefly the scope of the investigation and then proceed directly to the conclusions. A more detailed account of the methods and data and a full interpretation of them will be reserved for my final report.

Scope of the Investigation.

The principal questions investigated have been the temperature, humidity, odor, bacteria and dust of the air of the subway. In studying each of these subjects the plan has been to obtain an accurate knowledge of, first, the conditions which actually exist; second, the causes of these conditions; third, what, if any, is the remedy required.

No attempt has been made to devise a comprehensive system of ventilation or cooling, this being understood to be beyond the scope of the service desired of me. My single expression of opinion in this direction has been that considerable benefit would result if provision could be made for larger and more direct openings from some of the subway stations to the outside air. In the present report this statement is repeated and supplemented by the opinion that the ultimate solution of the problem of a cool subway must lie in mechanical improvements which will prevent the production of the heat through a more economical employment of the power used to operate the road.

Experiments with fans and other ventilating devices, carried on under Mr. Rice's direction, have been observed by me, and their effects, as far as determinable by my analyses of the air, have been reported to him.

Principal Results of the Investigation.

Regarded as a whole, the results so far obtained contain little cause for alarm concerning the sanitary condition of the air of the subway. During the period of my observations the air has been renewed with sufficient frequency to assure an ample supply of oxygen, and prevent the detection, except in the cars, of unpleasant odors due to the large number of people who have been present in the subway. Odors from other causes have, however, occurred. The principal objection to the air has been its high temperature. The sanitary significance of the presence of black dust and of the bacteria which are contained in the air, however, still remains to be settled.

Heat and Humidity.

Throughout the period of this investigation the subway has been decidedly warmer than the outside air. The average temperature for the daytime for the three months was, for the subway, 79.8 Fahrenheit, and for the air in the streets, 72.8 Fahrenheit; difference 7 Fahrenheit. The highest temperature observed in the subway was 90.6 Fahrenheit.

The hottest week was that of August 4 to 10, inclusive. The average daily temperature for the subway during this time was 83.4 Fahrenheit. For the outside air it was 73.2 Fahrenheit, the difference being 10.2 Fahrenheit. The maximum temperature observed in the subway this week was 88.5 Fahrenheit; in the streets, 88.2 Fahrenheit.

The air of the subway has generally been less relatively humid than the air of the streets. The average relative humidity for the three months was 56.2 per cent. The hottest week was also the most humid in the subway, the percentage of relative humidity having been for the week of August 4 to 10, 75.2 per cent.

The high temperature of the subway is due chiefly to the amount of power which, in one way or another, is converted into heat in operating the road. Most of it comes from the motors and friction brakes on the cars. Theoretically, it represents wasted energy. No remedy seems ready to hand for this trouble. It is a new difficulty in the operation of subways, and is attributable to the large amount of electric power used on the road. The most hopeful direction to seek immediate relief from the heat lies, in my judgment, in the alteration of some of the stations so that greater benefit will result from the combined ventilating effect produced by the movement of the trains and the breezes of the streets. Had it not been for the flushing action which was produced already in this way the subway would undoubtedly have been much warmer last summer.

It would seem that the ultimate solution of the difficulty of overheating must lie in mechanical improvements which will prevent the production of so much heat through the great loss of energy which now occurs, especially when the trains are stopped and started. A subject which seems worthy of consideration in this connection is the idea of regenerative control. Again, a lower speed from station to station would prevent the production of so much heat from the motors and brake shoes. This should be possible without sacrificing the actual running time, by improved means of loading and unloading the cars.

Ventilation.

There has been, on an average, far more fresh air in the subway than is necessary to satisfy the standards established by sanitary authorities for theatres, halls and other places of assembly. The air in the cars has been somewhat less satisfactory, depending on the amount of crowding. The test employed to measure the amount of ventilation has been the estimation of carbon dioxide present by the method of Pettenkofer. The average of 721 analyses gave, for the air of the subway, 4.58, and for the air of the streets, 3.45 parts of carbon dioxide per 10,000 volumes of air; the difference being 1.13. The largest amount found on any occasion in the subway was 7.81.

There was so slight a difference between the amount of oxygen present in the subway and outside air that the employment of this test as a routine procedure was discontinued after about eighty analyses had been made. The difference between the smallest amount of oxygen found in the subway and the greatest amount found out of doors was .7 per cent. The average for the subway was 20.6 per cent, and for the outside air 20.71 per cent.

The frequency with which the air is changed in the subway is attributable, in my view, to the currents set up by the action of the trains and breezes above ground coming through stairways and other openings to the stations and streets.

Odors.

The air of the subway has at nearly all times and places possessed a noticeable odor. There is not, in reality, a single odor, but a number of them. The odors of the subway are attributable principally to conditions due to the newness of the structure and its equipment and are largely susceptible of elimination. They are traceable principally to volatile substances given off by paints, cements, lubricating oil, hot boxes and a chemical deodorant used in the toilet rooms. The presence in the air of black dust is also accountable for a part of what is generally taken to be odor.

Dust.

The amount and character of the black dust in the subway is a matter of considerable importance. Chemical analysis of this dust shows that it contains 62.78 per cent. of metallic iron. Microscopic analysis shows that the particles range from fragments which can almost be seen with the naked eye to pieces less than 1-25,000 of an inch in diameter. Most of this pulverized iron is due to the grinding up of brake shoes, the daily loss in weight of which is surprisingly large. Dust of the same kind has made at least one other subway dark and grimy in appearance. In another case the gradual accumulation of iron dust is said to have seriously interfered with the insulation of the electric current.

It is important, in my view, to take notice of the presence of this iron dust, both because of the possibility of its affecting the health of persons who must continually breathe it, and on account of the black stain which it imparts to the light-colored portions of the subway structure, cars, booths and other furniture, and the persons of the employees and passengers.

Because of the presence of about 1 per cent. of oil which the dust contains it gains secure lodgment upon all surfaces, and, being of a black color, forms an unsightly smudge which is difficult to remove. An amount of this dust which is too small to be weighed with accuracy is capable of producing a black mark upon white linen which can be seen at a distance of twenty feet. If this linen is moistened with perspiration or water, a yellow stain is produced. Straw hats and the light-colored garments worn by passengers of both sexes in summer are therefore liable to be soiled by coming in contact with even small accumulations of the dust. The actual weight of black dust in a cubic foot of the atmosphere at any time is slight. It would undoubtedly be greater if the ventilation of the subway was any less effective. Mainly because of the possibility that it may be injurious to health when breathed continually through long periods of time, the subject of dust and its prevention is now receiving my special attention. It would appear that in order to prevent the formation of the dust a less heavy use of the friction brake would be required.

Bacteria.

There have generally been fewer bacteria in the air of the subway than in the air of the streets, but occasionally there have been more. A study of the results of 2,600 tests shows that the average number of bacteria which were deposited per minute upon a square foot of surface and were subsequently capable of growing at the temperature of the human body was, for the subway, 750, and for the air of the streets, 1,200. Although it is not improbable that the bacteria in the subway belong for the most part to the same species as those above ground, the study of this subject has not yet reached a point which will justify a positive statement concerning its sanitary significance.

Other Sanitary Observations.

A number of sanitary observations of less importance than the foregoing have been made. As a result of these, the three following suggestions are respectfully submitted as especially worthy of your consideration at the present time.

1. That the ballast of the roadbed, which has become saturated with oil from the machinery of the cars and has accumulated a quantity of small refuse from the stations and passengers, should be renewed at the stations, or better, replaced with a smooth concrete surface which can easily be cleaned. In order to protect the roadbed against oil in the future, the use of larger drip pans beneath the cars and more frequent inspections are suggested.

2. That the stations be cleaned and cared for in a more systematic and thorough manner. The suggestions made by the Board of Health with respect to this matter are strongly recommended for adoption, except as to the use of disinfectants; with strict cleanliness these should not, in my judgment, be necessary. A copy of the Board of Health suggestions is herewith appended.

3. That the toilet rooms be equipped with suitable means of ventilation, and that they be kept in a more strictly sanitary condition.

Respectfully submitted,

GEORGE A. SOPER, Ph. D.

Communications of the Corporation Counsel were presented as follows, and it was understood that the Auditor would draw vouchers in due form on the Comptroller for the easements in question:

CITY OF NEW YORK—LAW DEPARTMENT,
OFFICE OF THE CORPORATION COUNSEL, No. 2 TRYON ROW,
February 3, 1906.

Board of Rapid Transit Railroad Commissioners:

GENTLEMEN—I have caused the title to premises situated at the northwesterly corner of Southern Boulevard and One Hundred and Seventy-third street, being 304 feet and 7 inches on the Southern Boulevard, to be examined, and find that Annie R. Whitney Spratley can convey the easements necessary to construct, maintain and operate an elevated railroad in front of said premises.

As I am about to begin a proceeding to acquire the easements appurtenant to property in Westchester avenue, Southern Boulevard and Boston road, which have not been obtained by you, I think it desirable that this conveyance and release should be obtained at as early a date as possible, so that the owner may not decline to carry out the agreement.

Respectfully yours,

Acting Corporation Counsel.

Board of Rapid Transit Railroad Commissioners:

GENTLEMEN—I have caused the title to premises situated on the westerly line of Boston road, 126.05 feet south of One Hundred and Seventy-eighth street, to be examined, and find that Frank A. Becker and Ernest A. W. Wilkens can convey the easements necessary to construct, maintain and operate an elevated railroad in front of said premises, upon obtaining the consent of the mortgagee of a mortgage made by Frank A. Becker and Ernest A. W. Wilkens to Michael Roos, to secure the sum of $9,000, dated April 4, 1905, and recorded in the office of the Register of the County of New York in section 11, Liber 107, page 125.

As I am about to begin a proceeding to acquire the easements appurtenant to property in Westchester avenue, Southern Boulevard and Boston road which have not been obtained by you, I think it desirable that this conveyance and release should be obtained at as early a date as possible, so that the owner may not decline to carry out the agreement.

Respectfully yours,
(Signed) G. L. STERLING,
Acting Corporation Counsel.

Reports of Counsel were presented as follows, and the Secretary was instructed to transmit copies of the same to the Comptroller:

January 30, 1906.

ALEXANDER E. ORR, Esq., President, Rapid Transit Commission, No. 320 Broadway:

DEAR SIR—Under date of December 29, 1905, the Comptroller wrote to you stating that his attention had been called to the fact that a coal conveyor and conduits were in existence under Twelfth avenue, at Fifty-eighth street, and under Fifty-eighth street, between Eleventh and Twelfth avenues, connecting the Interborough Rapid Transit Company's power house with the West Fifty-eighth street pier and the Hudson river, for which the City was receiving no compensation; and he inquired whether the coal conveyor and conduits in question were constructed under the authority of the Rapid Transit Board, and if so, "what clause or clauses of the Rapid Transit Act are claimed to authorize their existence." The facts in this regard are as follows:

On November 27, 1900, Mr. McDonald wrote to the Rapid Transit Board, stating that he wished to use electricity as a motive power, and asking the Board to consider the general question and advise him of their determination (Minutes, page 1081). This was the first time that the kind of motive power to be used was brought to the notice of the Board.

On September 25, 1901, Mr. McDonald submitted a statement of his general plans for electrical equipment, and in it he said that the power house was to be "on the westerly side of Eleventh avenue, between West Fifty-eighth and West Fifty-ninth streets, Borough of Manhattan, and in connection therewith the free use and control of the water frontage is obtained" (Minutes, page 1286). The Board, on September 27, approved these general plans "as to their design and quantity."

On December 13, 1901, Mr. Nicoll, as attorney for Mr. McDonald, wrote to the Board asking its co-operation "in obtaining the use and occupation" of Twelfth avenue in front of the power house (Minutes, page 1318).

On January 9, 1902, the Chief Engineer of the Board (to whom Mr. Nicoll's letter had been referred) reported that if the Board decided to recommend the occupation of Twelfth avenue by the contractor, it should only be under certain restrictions.

In the report referred to the Chief Engineer said:

"The advantage to be derived by the contractor in the occupancy of this property is one to be shared jointly by him and the City. The City will have a first lien upon this property, and it is, therefore, to the advantage of the City that this property be put in the best condition for the operation of the road. This requires that the connection between the power house and the river front should be made as direct and as convenient as possible for the handling of fuel."

It was decided that as to this matter the Chief Engineer should confer with the Dock Department and the President of the Borough, and report (Minutes, pages 1347-8).

The minutes of the meeting held February 6, 1902, show that the following action on the subject was had on that date:

"The Chief Engineer brought up the matter of the request of the contractor for right to use Twelfth avenue, between Fifty-eighth and Fifty-ninth streets, and explained by means of a drawing a plan which had been approved by the Commissioner of Docks, which called for an overhead structure, and a tunnel underneath Twelfth avenue at that point. The Comptroller raised a question as to the right to erect such an overhead structure above a thoroughfare and a further question as to the rights of abutting owners in case such a structure were erected, and suggested the desirability of closing Twelfth avenue entirely at that point. The following resolution was moved:

"Whereas, The contractor is about to locate the main power house for the operation of the Rapid Transit Railroad on the block between Eleventh and Twelfth avenues and Fifty-eighth and Fifty-ninth streets; and

"Whereas, The contractor has requested this Board to co-operate with him in obtaining the consent of the City authorities to the use and occupation of Twelfth avenue, between Fifty-eighth and Fifty-ninth streets, for the purpose of the rapid transit railway;

"Resolved, That the Board recommend to the City authorities to consent to the use and occupation of Twelfth avenue, between Fifty-eighth and Fifty-ninth streets, for the purposes of the rapid transit railroad.

"Ayes—The President, Vice-President, Comptroller and Commissioners Langdon and Smith.

"Nays—None.

"Carried."

Under date of April 17, 1902, Mr. McDonald transmitted to the Rapid Transit Board a full set of plans of the power house, and requested that the Board would approve the plan and issue the necessary permits for erection of a building in accordance therewith.

We do not find recorded in the minutes of the Rapid Transit Board any action upon this communication or accompanying plans, although we are informed that the construction under the plans was thereafter prosecuted and the power house completed in accordance with them; nor do we find that any permits were issued by the Chief Engineer for the construction of the building itself.

At pages 1445 and 1500, references are made to various permits for work in connection with the power house. The first one has reference to a permit for a fence. The others are as follows:

No. 55. To place "dead men" for guys on Fifty-eighth street and Fifty-ninth street, east of Eleventh avenue, and on Fifty-eighth and Fifty-ninth streets, between Eleventh avenue and the river, at such places as may be required.

Date of permit, April 22, 1902.

No. 56. To store material in Fifty-ninth street, between Eleventh avenue and the North river; on Eleventh avenue, between Fifty-eighth and Fifty-ninth streets.

Date of permit, April 22, 1902.

No. 57. To fence in the whole block along the following lines: On Fifty-ninth street, from Eleventh avenue to the river, on a line 10½ feet north of the north building line. On Fifty-eighth street, from Eleventh avenue to the river, on a line 10 feet north of the south curb line and on Eleventh avenue, from 10 feet north from the south curb of Fifty-eighth street to a line 10½ feet north of the north line of the building, on a line 12½ feet east of the east building line.

Date of permit, April 22, 1902.

It would appear that shortly after the resolution of the Rapid Transit Board above referred to and the issue of the Chief Engineer's permit, Mr. McDonald made an application to the City authorities for leave to construct the coal conveyor and conduits referred to.

Investigation shows that on May 27, 1902, the Local Board of the Hudson River District passed a resolution asking that conduits and a coal conveyor be constructed under Twelfth avenue and Fifty-eighth street, from the pier at Fifty-eighth street and the Hudson river to the Interborough Rapid Transit Company's power house, and on August 22, 1902, a report to the Comptroller pointed out that this matter was not within the province of the Local Board, and that the applicants should apply to the Board of Aldermen for permission to construct conduits and coal conveyor. This report also recommended certain annual charges for the privilege. No further action seems to have been taken along these lines.

In the report of the Chief Engineer for 1902 (pages 292 to 295) a description of the power house and its equipment was given, and it was stated that various details had been submitted to Messrs. Duncan & Hutchinson, Consulting Engineers of the Board, for their examination and approval.

At the meeting of the Board held on January 29, 1903 (Minutes, page 1956) Mr. Parsons reported that the Consulting Engineers had submitted their report, a copy of which was annexed, indicating that the plan as submitted and as contracted for would unquestionably give a satisfactory service. No further detailed report from the Engineers seems to have been submitted to the Board, but in the Chief Engineer's report for 1904 (page 257) the progress in the work of completing the power house is briefly set forth, and views of the exterior and interior are annexed.

The foregoing statement of facts, we think, constitutes a sufficient reply to the inquiry of the Comptroller, and we would therefore suggest that a copy of this letter be transmitted to the Finance Department as a reply to Mr. Grout's letter of December 29, 1905.

Respectfully yours,

(Signed) GEO. L. RIVES,
BOARDMAN, PLATT & SOLEY.

No. 32 NASSAU STREET, NEW YORK,
February 8, 1906.

ALEXANDER E. ORR, Esq., President, Rapid Transit Commission:

DEAR SIR—On January 30, 1906, we wrote to you in regard to the coal conveyor and conduits at Fifty-eighth street and Twelfth avenue, connecting the Interborough Rapid Transit Company's power house with the West Fifty-eighth street pier on the Hudson river.

Since that letter was written we have ascertained that in and by the lease made by The City of New York (by the Commissioner of Docks) to John B. McDonald, dated October 16, 1903, and by Mr. McDonald assigned to Interborough Rapid Transit Company, there was leased to the Interborough Company the wharf property described as follows:

"The northerly side and outer end of new pier at the foot of West Fifty-eighth street, North river, together with the use of the entire surface of said pier, together with the right to construct and maintain 'discharge and suction tunnels' under the marginal wharf, street or place laid out and determined by the Department of Docks and Ferries at the foot of West Fifty-eighth street; also under and along the pier at the foot of West Fifty-eighth street, and the lessee shall also have the privilege of erecting and maintaining coal handling and ash removing devices upon the said pier and over and under said street, in accordance with plans to be submitted to and approved by the Engineer-in-Chief of the Department of Docks and Ferries; all the work to be done under his direction and supervision, but no tunnels or other devices underground shall be less than three and one-half (3½) feet below the surface of the street and nothing less than twenty (20) feet in height above the street surface."

The lease also contained the following provision:

"And the said party of the first part further gives and grants unto the said party of the second part, license and authority to erect and maintain, during the term of this lease, discharge and suction tunnels under and through the marginal street, wharf or place laid out and determined upon, pursuant to law, and under and along the pier at the foot of West Fifty-eighth street, such tunnels and other devices underground to be not less than three and one-half (3½) feet below the surface of the marginal street, wharf or place; also to erect and maintain coal handling and ash removing devices upon said pier and over said marginal street, wharf and place, such coal handling and ash removing devices over said marginal street, wharf or place are, however, to provide for a clear space of not less than twenty feet above the surface of the marginal street, wharf or place; all such structures over and under said marginal street, wharf or place and under, along and upon said pier are to be constructed in accordance with plans to be submitted to and approved by the Engineer-in-Chief of the Department of Docks and Ferries; all such structures remaining upon said pier are to revert to and become the property of The City of New York, free from all incumbrances of every kind and description whatsoever, upon the expiration or sooner determination of this lease or any renewal thereof."

Very truly yours,

Hon. ALEXANDER E. ORR, President, Rapid Transit Commission:

DEAR SIR—At the meeting of the City Committee of the Citizens Union, held Monday, January 22, 1906, the following resolution was unanimously adopted:

Whereas, The entrances and exits of subway stations encumber sidewalks to the detriment of their natural uses; and

Whereas, The erection of similar entrances and exits of future subways will further obstruct sidewalks already frequently inadequate as public highways;

Resolved, That the Rapid Transit Commission be requested to insist that for all subways to be built private property be acquired for entrances and exits, and that no portion of the public highways be surrendered for these purposes.

Yours very truly,

(Signed) JOHN J. MURPHY, Secretary.

Resolution of the Board of Aldermen was presented as follows:

In the Board of Aldermen.

Whereas, The lives of citizens of New York are imperilled daily at the subway railway stations by reason of the absence of proper devices to prevent passengers from being crowded off the platforms upon the tracks; and

Whereas, Although protest has been made against this dangerous condition by organizations of citizens and by the public press, no remedy for it has as yet been provided by those in charge of the operation of the subway railway; be it

Resolved, That it is the sense of the Board of Aldermen of The City of New York that steps should be taken by the Rapid Transit Commission and the State Board of Railroad Commissioners to compel the erection of guard rails on the subway platforms to afford adequate protection to passengers, and that if relief cannot thus be obtained a law to the same end should be passed by the State Legislature; and be it further

Resolved, That copies of these resolutions be sent respectively to the Rapid Transit Commission and the State Board of Railroad Commissioners.

Adopted by the Board of Aldermen January 23, 1906, a majority of all the members elected voting in favor thereof.

Communication of the President of the Borough of The Bronx, inclosing copy of letter by him to the President of the Interborough Rapid Transit Company as to the desirability of operating trains from the Manhattan elevated system on the east side over the so called Westchester avenue spur on to the viaduct section of the subway in The Bronx, was read as follows and referred to the Chief Engineer for report:

OFFICE OF THE PRESIDENT OF THE BOROUGH OF THE BRONX,
MUNICIPAL BUILDING, CROTONA PARK,
NEW YORK, February 7, 1906.

Hon. ALEXANDER E. ORR, President, Rapid Transit Railroad Commission:

DEAR SIR—I inclose herewith, for your information and such action as you may deem necessary, a copy of letter sent by me to Mr. August Belmont, President of the Interborough Rapid Transit Company, and would be glad to know that your Engineers would make a further examination into this matter with a view of satisfying the many demands made by residents of this borough for elevated service along the Third avenue line through Westchester avenue, Southern Boulevard, Boston road up to West Farms.

Yours truly,
(Signed) LOUIS F. HAFFEN,
President of the Borough of The Bronx.

OFFICE OF THE PRESIDENT OF THE BOROUGH OF THE BRONX,
MUNICIPAL BUILDING, CROTONA PARK,
NEW YORK, February 7, 1906.

Mr. AUGUST BELMONT, President, Interborough Rapid Transit Company:

DEAR SIR—In the month of October, 1905, I addressed you a communication on the resumption of service of the elevated trains over Westchester avenue, Southern Boulevard and Boston road elevated structures.

Subsequently I received a plan entitled "Interborough Rapid Transit Company, Manhattan Railway Division, map showing tracks between One Hundred and Twenty-ninth street and One Hundred and Sixty-first street, suburban line, also location of trains on tracks during rush hours, Chief Engineer's office"; said map being forwarded to show that it was impracticable to comply with the request made upon the Rapid Transit Railroad Commissioners to run a certain number of trains of the Third avenue elevated line up Westchester avenue to West Farms.

I referred the matter to Mr. Josiah A. Briggs, Chief Engineer of this Borough, for investigation and report, and under date of February 2, 1906, he reports to me as follows:

"I have made some investigations with regard to this matter, and while they have not been continuous and complete, I have been impressed with the fact that it might be possible to insert trains on this line, even in the rush hours, which could run up Westchester avenue to West Farms. There is no reason why trains could not be run in this manner during any other portion of the day, and this would be a great convenience to the residents of the borough who wish to use the Third avenue elevated."

"I would therefore recommend that the Rapid Transit Railroad Commissioners be communicated with and urged to look further into this matter, and if possible make a trial of the plan suggested."

Under the circumstances, I would urge upon your company to again look into this matter with a view of giving the additional service so much needed in this borough, and, if necessary, will be glad to have your Engineers, or Superintendent, confer with Chief Engineer Briggs in order to remedy the evils complained of as far as possible.

I have sent a copy of this communication to Hon. Alexander E. Orr, President of the Rapid Transit Railroad Commission, with the request that further investigation be had in the matter.

Yours truly,
LOUIS F. HAFFEN,
President of the Borough of The Bronx.

Letter of the Comptroller transmitting resolution of the Board of Aldermen, adopted January 23, 1906, with suggestions as to proposed certificate to the New York Connecting Railroad Company, was presented as follows and referred to the Committee on Plans and Contracts:

CITY OF NEW YORK—DEPARTMENT OF FINANCE,
COMPTROLLER'S OFFICE,
February 7, 1906.

Board of Rapid Transit Railroad Commissioners:

GENTLEMEN—I herewith transmit for your consideration, resolution of the Board of Aldermen requesting that certain conditions set forth in said resolution be made a part of the conditions of the franchise to be granted to the New York Connecting Railroad Company.

This resolution was referred to me by the Board of Estimate and Apportionment at meeting held on the 2d inst. for submission to your Board.

Yours truly,
(Signed) H. A. METZ, Comptroller.

In the Board of Aldermen.

Whereas, On July 5, 1904, a communication was received by the Board of Aldermen from the Board of Rapid Transit Railroad Commissioners of The City of New York, transmitting for their approval a certificate and condition of a franchise to be granted to the New York Connecting Railroad Company; and

Whereas, The Board of Aldermen did, on April 18, 1905, return the said certificate and proposed conditions of the franchise for the New York Connecting Railroad Company to the Board of Rapid Transit Railroad Commissioners for certain modifications and changes in the conditions of the proposed grant which seemed just and proper, and for the best interests of the people of this City; and

Whereas, The passing of the bills by the State Legislature, known as the Elsberg bills, attempted to amend the Charter of The City of New York by taking away from the Board of Aldermen the power to grant the constitutional consent necessary to grants or franchises of this character, and conferring it upon the Board of Estimate and Apportionment, the constitutionality of which is now pending in the Court of Appeals in this State;

Resolved, The Board of Aldermen do most respectfully and earnestly protest against the granting, or the attempting to grant, by the Board of Estimate and Apportionment of the proposed franchise to the New York Connecting Railroad Company, pending the final decision by the Court of Appeals on the constitutionality of the above mentioned bills, and further, until the conditions of the franchise are changed and modified to meet the following requirements:

1. That the New York Connecting Railroad Company will agree, as a condition of the franchise, to build and maintain a footpath free to all pedestrians on the bridge over the East river, from the Borough of Queens to and over Ward's and Randall's Islands to the Borough of The Bronx.

2. That electricity be the only motive power used by the railroad company within the corporate limits of this City.

3. That this City shall have the right at any time it determines that a public necessity exists, to open streets across the route of the railroad.

4. That this City shall have the right to place police and fire telegraph and telephone wires along the railroad structure.

5. That for local traffic, that is for one continuous ride within the corporate limits of this City, the rate of fare for such ride will not exceed five cents for each person; and be it further

Resolved, The Board of Aldermen most respectfully and earnestly petitions the Board of Estimate and Apportionment to withhold its consent to the grant of a franchise to the New York Connecting Railroad Company unless the conditions herein set forth are made a part of the conditions of the franchise.

Adopted by the Board of Aldermen January 23, 1906, a majority of all the members elected voting in favor thereof.

(Signed) P. J. SCULLY, Clerk.

Letter of E. W. Murphy, with diagram of property on Vyse avenue, fronting on Boston road, was presented as follows and referred to Counsel for report:

EDWARD W. MURPHY, COUNSELLOR-AT-LAW,
No. 346 BROADWAY,
NEW YORK, February 7, 1906.

Board of Rapid Transit Commissioners, No. 320 Broadway, Borough of Manhattan, New York City:

GENTLEMEN—Inclosed please find survey of premises No. 1860 Boston road. Some time ago sale of the easements of this property affected by the construction and operation of the Rapid Transit Railway were offered and approved by your Board at $10 per front foot. The matter has been returned to you by the Corporation Counsel, who calls your attention to the fact that the property fronts not on Boston road, but on Vyse street. Technically this is true. But if you will examine this survey you will find that Vyse street begins at Boston road, immediately in front of this property, and what was once a front on Boston road is now Vyse street.

But the damage done by your railroad is to the easements of light, air and access of this property. Were Vyse street but 10 feet wide I do not believe your Board would say that this property was not damaged. Again, if this property abutted on a street 150 feet wide, through the centre of which ran your railroad, there is no doubt but that the owner would be entitled to damage.

This property is on a height and is so situated that it overlooks the track of the railroad, and would be particularly affected by its construction and operation. I would appreciate an opportunity to be heard in this matter.

Respectfully yours,
(Signed) EDWARD W. MURPHY.

Mr. Boardman reported that he had attended a hearing before the Cities Committee in the Senate on Tuesday, February 6, upon the so-called Elsberg bill to amend the Rapid Transit Act.

The Comptroller stated that his investigations of the financial condition of the City indicated that the margin of borrowing power was at present something like $46,000,000, which would be increased, he thought, about $45,000,000 by the new assessment, of which total amount he thought something like $60,000,000 was already practically contracted for, leaving a working margin of not much more than $30,000,000 available for the present year.

Mr. Orr reported verbally in behalf of the Committee on Plans that the Committee had adopted an extension of the proposed Fourth avenue subway in Brooklyn, branching off from that proposed line at about Fortieth street, through Borough Park and Bensonhurst to Coney Island. It was understood that Counsel and the Chief Engineer would have detailed maps and plans and resolutions ready for action by the Board at its next meeting. President Orr stated that he had advised the property owners that the Committee would report favorably on such a route to the Board, provided they would obtain in advance the consents of a majority in value of the property owners along the proposed line. F. A. Hutson, President of the Bensonhurst, Bath Beach and Coney Island Subway Association, was present and delivered to the Board consents of owners of 69 per cent. of the property abutting the proposed line, duly verified.

The Chief Engineer reported that the Healey Sewer Machine and Construction Company had finished its contract with the Board, dated September 28, 1905, for making wash borings.

The Secretary reported that the President had executed agreement as to rental, Contract No. 2, between The City of New York, the Rapid Transit Subway Construction Company and the Interborough Rapid Transit Company, as authorized December 14, 1905.

Counsel brought up matter of compensation of members of the Board for services during the year 1905, and it was understood they would petition the Appellate Division as in preceding years.

The Board then adjourned.

BION L. BURROWS, Secretary.

Your own merit and ability will determine your position as a result of the examination.

A reward of $100 will be paid to any person who will furnish the Civil Service Commission with information and evidence that will secure the conviction of any person attempting to defraud applicants, and such information will be considered confidential.

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN THAT THE Board of Estimate and Apportionment of The City of New York, deeming it for the public interest so to do, proposes to change the map or plan of The City of New York so as to change the lines of Castle Hill avenue, at its intersection with Westchester avenue, Borough of The Bronx, and that a meeting of said Board will be held in the Old Council Chamber, City Hall, Borough of Manhattan, City of New York, on March 9, 1906, at 10.30 o'clock a. m., at which such proposed change will be considered by said Board; all of which is more particularly set forth and described in the following resolutions, adopted by the Board on February 9, 1906, notice of the adoption of which is hereby given, viz.:

Resolved, That the Board of Estimate and Apportionment of The City of New York, in pursuance of the provisions of section 442 of the Greater New York Charter, as amended, deeming it for the public interest so to do, proposes to change the map or plan of The City of New York by changing the lines of Castle Hill avenue, at its intersection with Westchester avenue, in the Borough of The Bronx, City of New York, more particularly described as follows:

This change consists in changing the easterly line by joining a point on the easterly side of Castle Hill avenue, located 0.61 feet south of the first angle point south of Westchester avenue, with a point in the easterly line of Castle Hill avenue, which is distant 101.89 feet northerly of the first angle point in Castle Hill avenue north of Westchester avenue.

The western line of Castle Hill avenue south of Westchester avenue is made parallel to the new eastern line and distant 100 feet therefrom; the western line of Castle Hill avenue north of Westchester avenue consists in extending the western line of Castle Hill avenue north of the first angle point north of Westchester avenue, southerly to Westchester avenue.

This change is occasioned by the fact that certain portions of Lafayette avenue and Avenue C were not included within the lines of Castle Hill avenue, as formerly filed. This change causes them to be embraced in Castle Hill avenue, as changed.

PUBLIC NOTICE.

BOARD OF ESTIMATE AND APPORTIONMENT.

PUBLIC NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN that at a meeting of the Board of Estimate and Apportionment, held Friday, November 10, 1905, the following petition was received, and was referred to the Bureau of Franchises:

Seaboard Refrigeration Company.

To the Honorable Board of Estimate and Apportionment of The City of New York:

The petition of the Seaboard Refrigeration Company respectfully shows:

1. That your petitioner is a domestic corporation duly incorporated under the laws of the State of New York, and has its principal place of business at No. 2898 West Eighth street, on Coney Island, Borough of Brooklyn, City of New York, where it owns a refrigeration plant which has supplied refrigeration to customers in the immediate neighborhood for several years.

2. That there is a general demand for the supply of refrigeration in the restaurants and other places along the streets of Coney Island, and a plant for that purpose would be a great public service.
