In the four preceding weeks the mean death-rate was 41.28; and in the four weeks ending June 28th, the mean rate was 24.65. The increase of infant mortality became noticeable during the third and fourth weeks in June, but it was not until three weeks of hot weather had elapsed that this increase became excessive. HEALTH DEP'T, No. 301 MOTT ST., NEW YORK, August 6th, 1873.

1868. 1870. 1872. Aven Aven Past Iwo ending

The Sanitary Committee respectfully call the attention of the Board to the large quantities of unripe and decaying vegetables and fruit exposed for sale in different parts of the city especially in the poorer districts. On scores of fruit stands there is scarcely an article that is suitable for eating. It appears, on inquiry, that there is a large class of tradesmen and women who purchase in the markets only unripe and worthless. chase in the markets only unripe and worthless fruits, and they either locate themselves on the sidewalks, and retail this miserable trash princ pally to poor children, or go through the stree with carts and sell it from door to door.

pally to poor children, or go through the stree with carts and sell it from door to door.

The effects of these fruits upon the health o those who consume them is most disastrous. They induce diseases of the bowels of the most intractable and fatal character. With the advent of these fruits the death rate from diarrhoeal diseases is largely increased and though other conditions at that season of the year aggravate such affections, yet it is a matter of common experience among medical men that unripe and decayed fruit are far too often the exciting cause.

The present season has been unfavorable for the growth and ripening of many fruits now in market and it is the testimony of market men that the amount of unripe fruit offered for sale by small venders is in excess of former years. This circumstance, together with the prevalence of cholera in the West, will, we think justify this Board in taking measures to prevent the distribution of such dangerous materials among the poor.

The Committee recommend the adoption of the following resolution:
