DEPARTMENT OF DOCKS.

Communication to the Mayor.

DEPARTMENT OF DOCKS,
NEW YORK, September 22, 1875.

Hon. W. H. WICKHAM, Mayor:

SIR—The undersigned, Commissioners of the Department of Docks, have the honor to transmit herewith report of the Engineer-in-Chief of the Department, in which is detailed the result of examinations made of sections of the sea-wall now nearly completed at Canal street and King street, North river. We invite your careful attention to this report, and to the following brief narrative.

The original plan for the construction of the sea-wall, devised by General McClellan, the then Engineer-in-Chief, is known as the beton block system, which consists of the formation of massive concrete blocks, formed in molds, and manufactured in the open air, in such sizes as the nature of the work demanded. These blocks, when properly hardened, were lowered by the aid of the large floating derrick to a foundation of piles firmly driven, and then sawed off so as to form an even bed. An example of this system of construction is found at the Christopher street section.

In the month of July, 1873, General Charles K. Graham was appointed Engineer-in-Chief of the Department, in place of General McClellan, who had resigned.

It appears from the records of the Department, that in the month of October, 1874, with a view to more economy in the construction of the sea-wall, the Engineer-in-Chief recommended to the Board, as a substitute for beton blocks, that concrete en masse should be formed upon a foundation of piles in a wet caisson, the concrete being lowered to its place within the caisson (by appropriate machinery), in tilting buckets, and then left to harden into a solid mass. The heads of the piles were not cut off after being driven.

In the month of November following, our predecessors, by formal resolution, adopted the recommendation of General Graham, and ordered the work to proceed, which was done, and about 347 feet were constructed.

For particulars concerning this system of bulkhead wall construction, see report of General Graham herewith inclosed.

The new Board of Commissioners was organized on the 2d day of May last, and, on the 2d of June following, General Graham resigned the office of Engineer-in-Chief, and, as soon as practicable, his successor, George S. Greene, Jr., was appointed to fill the vacancy.

The attention of Commissioners being called to possible defects in this method of construction, the subject was referred for investigation to the Executive Committee, who directed the Engineer-in-Chief to make a careful examination of the work, and report the result.

The difficulties attending the examination in turbid water, and the results thereof, are explained in the Engineer-in-Chief's report. The examination has proceeded far enough to excite in our minds very grave apprehension as to the safety of that portion of the wall covered by the report.

If our apprehension should be well founded, we desire to avail ourselves of such remedy as the combined wisdom of the highest authorities may be able to suggest. This is not only due to the great interests of the city, but it seems also just that individuals who may be considered responsible for the work, should have the advantage of the fullest and fairest examination of it, by a body of men of such capacity and character that their decision shall be accepted by all. We have, therefore, thought it desirable to have an examination of the wall covered by this report made by three engineers of the first eminence, and to invite their suggestions as to the remedy to be applied, if any is thought necessary by them.

That we may secure the utmost impartiality in this investigation, we have deemed it proper to request your Honor, as the Chief Magistrate of the city, to name three suitable persons for this purpose.

Very respectfully,

S. H. WALES,
H. F. DIMOCK,
JACOB A. WESTERVELT, } Commissioners of Docks.

Report of the Engineer-in-Chief.

DEPARTMENT OF DOCKS—OFFICE OF ENGINEER-IN-CHIEF,
NEW YORK, September 16, 1875.

To Hon. HENRY F. DIMOCK, Chairman Executive Committee:

SIR—Immediately after my appointment to the position I now hold in this Department, I received a communication from the Executive Committee, calling my attention to certain reports received by said Committee in relation to the Canal street section of the bulkhead-wall, and requesting "that you will make a most thorough investigation and examination as to the character of the work performed, and the manner of constructing the section of wall referred to, and report to them in writing the result, and your opinion in regard to the construction of said wall."

In accordance with the above I have made constant examination of the Canal street section, and have also examined the King street section, which was built upon the same plan and principle, and have devoted as much time as possible to this subject, consistent with my other duties. The examination of these walls has taken much time, because the greater part of them lies under water, and had to be examined by means of divers in armor; and although I have not yet been able to make so complete an examination as I wish to, I have ascertained certain facts in regard to them, which I deem it my duty to lay before you at the earliest possible moment.

The Canal street section embraces 90 feet of wall, completed before my appointment, and in front of which New Pier No. 34 was also built before my arrival on the field, and about 90 feet more in progress of construction at that time. Upon examining the method of the work I found it necessary to at once make several changes in the details, and although feeling a lack of confidence in the principle of construction, I decided to allow this portion of the wall under construction to be finished, taking care that the method of doing the work and the details should be such as to secure a good result if the principle admitted it.

The general plan of construction was as follows: The mud was dredged out on the site of the wall to about twenty feet below mean low water. Round piles were then driven for the wall to rest upon, by means of a follower, to such depth that their heads or tops were about fourteen feet below mean low water. A box or wet caisson was then constructed around the round piles, to give shape to the concrete and prevent the cement from being washed away before it had time to set. This caisson was built by driving square piles about eight feet apart, and placing shutters or panels of plank between them. It was not intended to shut out the water, but to prevent currents from washing the concrete, and to give the concrete shape and hold it in position until it had become hardened or "set."

The spaces between the round piles were then filled in with small stone, to about sixteen feet below mean low water, the outside of the caisson being embanked at the same time and to the same height with rip-rap stone.

The interior of the caisson was then filled with concrete, lowered through the water in a box, and deposited by opening the box near the bottom, and allowing the concrete to fall out upon the small stone lying between the piles, and upon and around the piles, to the height of about twelve feet, or two feet two inches below mean low water.

At this point the top of the concrete was levelled to receive the first or bottom course of the granite facing, which was then laid course by course to the top of the wall, the concrete backing being also raised to correspond with the courses of granite as each was laid.

Having taken care by instructions as to details, and by sending Diver McDonald down under water to place every box of concrete in its proper position as it was lowered under the water, I examined the wall already built under New Pier No. 34. Passing under the pier in a boat, I found that all the square piles of the caisson had been removed, but only three of the shutters or panels, or about twenty-three feet out of ninety. All the other shutters were jammed against the face of the wall by a mass of rip-rap stone, piled against them to an average height of about seven feet below mean low water. They never have been removed, and the face of the wall has never been properly examined, nor can it be until the stone and panels are removed.

The stone lying against them are too large to be moved by the divers (they estimate some of them to weigh nearly a ton), and some device with steam power must be used to remove them.

Upon questioning Diver McDonald as to the examinations made by divers of the face of the wall, he informed me that he had made all the examination under water up to date, and they consisted of an examination of only one panel (about eight feet) out of ninety feet of wall built and lying under the pier; that on this one panel he had found the face of the concrete-wall good, smooth, and hard, for about six feet down from the bottom of the granite, but below that the concrete had fallen away from the mass, and the face curved in, and back from where it should be, till it reached the piles, when it just covered the second row of piles from the front (a distance of over two feet), and leaving the front row of piles bare of concrete and useless, not supporting the wall in any way. By the falling off of this outer bottom face of the wall, its tendency to rotation, or rolling over, is vastly increased, and especially so when the earth filling or embankment is placed behind it. In this particular case, however, the pier being built against the face of the wall will probably prevent any such disaster.

I directed Diver McDonald to go down and carefully examine as much of the face of the wall as he possibly could. He did so and reported to me that the three panels near southerly side of the pier were all that he could get at; one of them he had examined before, and they were all, extending over a distance of 22 or 23 feet, in the same condition of the one previously examined and above described.

This is all that has been examined of that part of the wall under New Pier No. 34. The removal of the rip-rap stone in front of the remainder of the wall will be a work of some time. Its condition may be better than that part examined, or may be worse.

That part of the wall directly north of New Pier No. 34, being under construction, was completed to the level of the base of the coping. On the 25th August, a crack was discovered just north of New Pier No. 34, and upon applying the instruments, it was found that the wall had settled about  $\frac{3}{4}$  of an inch at a point 78 feet from north side of the pier, and proportionately between said point and the crack, and that it had moved out, or westwardly, at the same point about the same distance.

Two shutters or panels were taken up on the face of the wall, about 60 feet north of the pier, and the Diver McDonald sent down to examine. He reported the face of the wall good, smooth, and hard, for 10 feet 8 inches down from base of granite; from that point down, the small rip-rap stone, intended to be placed between the piles, and not higher than two feet below their tops, lay under the concrete, and extended down to the tops of the piles, and below the tops of the piles between them. These stones were wedged between the overlying mass of concrete and the top of the piles, so that at this point the weight of the wall rests upon a pile of broken stones, lying on top of and around the piles. This condition of things is not due to the principle of construction, but is directly contrary to it, and is the result of carelessness in doing the work. A diver should have been sent down to remove the stone, and see that they were in proper position before the concrete was deposited. No more panels have been taken up as yet at this point.

The total extreme settlement to date is 12-100 of a foot, the movement outwards 9-100 of a foot.

The Diver McDonald has also examined about 40 feet of the rear of the wall at Canal street, and found it in pretty good order. From the rear, however, a piece of concrete about 3 feet long, 12 inches to 15 inches wide, and 6 inches thick, had fallen off, and was brought up by him. This piece is all that has been obtained as yet from below low water mark. It is a very poor specimen of what concrete should be; there is very little cement to be seen in it, and it has so little cohesion that it broke into several pieces by being rolled over, and could be readily crumbled and broken to pieces by the hand. It is preserved in the Canal street office.

The King street section, 180 feet long, was completed as it now stands before my accession to the office; it was built on the same general principle as the Canal street section, but much more care has evidently been taken in its construction and details than at Canal street section. Diver McDonald was kept under water and tripped every box of concrete, and saw that it was placed in its proper position; its faults and failures are therefore, in my opinion, due to its being constructed on a wrong principle. This wall was first examined in three panels of its face by Diver McDonald; one panel near the southerly end, one at the northerly end, and one about the middle of the section. Mr. Kid, Assistant Engineer in charge of the work, also went down in armor and examined the same three panels. They reported the two southerly panels smooth and soft, but at the northerly panel the concrete face of the wall had fallen away from top to bottom, to a depth into the face of the wall of from nine inches to fifteen inches, and that the concrete was soft where the face of the wall had fallen away. This wall having been recently completed, I suspended the removal of the panels for several weeks, in order to give the cement time to set if it would do so.

All the shutters or panels on the rear of the wall were then removed, and most of those on the front. Diver McDonald went down and examined the wall, panel by panel, coming up and reporting the condition of each one before going to another. He reported the whole of the concrete wall soft, so that he could pull out stones with his hands, and various imperfect places, but not of great depth except in one or two places, including the above-mentioned. I then sent for Diver Gillihan, employed at the Battery, and directed him to go down and examine the whole face of the wall, front and rear, where he could get at it. His report agrees generally with that of McDonald. He describes the softness such that he could dig into the wall almost anywhere by pulling out the stones of the concrete with his fingers, and that he did so dig in about eight or nine inches.

He differs about the details of roughness and holes in the concrete wall, and it must be remembered that the diver is unable to see anything while under water (on account of the foulness and muddiness of the water), and his examination can only be made by feeling with his hands under water and in total darkness. A complete agreement of reports of examinations made under such circumstances is therefore not to be expected.

In regard to the plan of driving piles to such depth that their heads should be fourteen feet under low water mark, by a follower, and placing concrete upon them without cutting off or squaring their tops, I thought it impossible that any piles driven so hard as they must be, for such a purpose, could be in a fit condition to bear the weight of the wall. I therefore procured a pile-cutter and had the heads of the piles just driven at Clarkson street section cut off, at a depth of about fifteen feet below low water.

The result proved as I had anticipated. The pile heads, as they came up, when sawed off, were split into several pieces, broomed up, and damaged so as to be unfit for bearing any weight whatever. A record was kept of each pile head, showing the position of the pile from which it was cut, and its condition as to being split or broomed up.

The proportions were—one-half in very bad condition indeed, one-sixth in bad condition, and the remaining one-third of the whole in passable order. The pile heads were all saved, and can be seen at Clarkson street, and also at Canal street, south of New Pier No. 34, where they have just been cut off in similar manner, and with same result. There is no doubt whatever that the pile heads must be cut off in all cases, before placing any weight upon them, to a good and solid part of the pile, so that the wall may rest upon a firm and solid bearing.

The facts ascertained in my examinations thus far as described above, and consisting principally of the softness and want of cohesion of the concrete in the King street section, the falling off of whole panels to the depth, on the face of the wall, of from nine inches to fifteen inches from top to bottom, the falling off of the lower half of wall to the depth, on its face, of two feet at the Canal street section, and the condition of the piece of concrete brought up from the rear of the Canal street section, indicate clearly that the plan of building the wall of concrete placed under water "en masse," "in situ," cannot be relied upon to produce a permanent, stable, and durable wall; and I am under the necessity of recommending at least the suspension, if not the entire abandonment, of such plan.

No wall has been built upon this plan since my accession to office, except that part of the Canal street section begun before I was appointed, and since then completed. The work of building the bulkhead wall is now suspended by my orders, and I shall desire to have the approval of the Board of my action.

In consideration of the fact that this plan of building the wall is highly commended in the report of the late Engineer-in-Chief of this Department, dated 1st June, 1875, and that such report has been made public, and extracts from it printed in the newspapers and in Van Nostrand's Engineering Magazine, I beg leave to suggest to the Board of Commissioners, through your Committee, the propriety, for the justification of the Commissioners and of myself, of calling to our assistance the united wisdom and experience of disinterested engineers, to examine the condition of that portion of the wall referred to in this report, and advise what remedy, if any, should be applied to it.

Very respectfully,

Your obedient servant,

G. S. GREENE, JR.,

Engineer-in-Chief.

JURORS.

NOTICE

IN RELATION TO JURORS FOR STATE COURTS.

OFFICE OF THE COMMISSIONER OF JURORS,
NEW YORK COURT-HOUSE,
NEW YORK, June 1, 1875.

APPLICATIONS FOR EXEMPTIONS WILL BE heard here, from 9 to 4 daily, from all persons hitherto liable or recently serving who have become exempt, and all needed information will be given.

Those who have not answered as to their liability, or proved permanent exemption, will receive a "jury enrollment notice," requiring them to appear before me this year. Whether liable or not, such notices must be answered (in person, if possible, and at this office only) under severe penalties. If exempt, the party must bring proof of exemption; if liable, he must also answer in person, giving full and correct name, residence, etc., etc. No attention paid to letters.

When possible and legal, serving jurors will be allowed to select a convenient season—if application be made in time.

Persons "enrolled" as liable must serve when called or pay their fines. No mere excuse will be allowed or interference permitted. The fines, received from those who, for business or other reasons, are unable to serve at the time selected, pay the expenses of this office, and if unpaid will be entered as judgments upon the property of delinquents.

The Commissioner will receive applications for relief from those jurors who have served continuously and promptly for several years, or have done excessive jury service in the State Courts.

All good citizens will aid the course of justice, and secure reliable and respectable juries, and equalize their duty by serving promptly when summoned, allowing their clerks or subordinates to serve, reporting to me any attempt at bribery or evasion, and suggesting names for enrollment.
Persons between sixty and seventy years of age, summer absentees, persons temporarily ill, and United States and District Court jurors are not exempt.

Every man must attend to his own notice. It is a misdemeanor to give any jury paper to another to answer.
It is also punishable by fine or imprisonment to give or receive any present or bribe, directly or indirectly, in relation to a jury service, or to withhold any paper or make any false statement, and every case will be fully prosecuted. No fees of any kind exist or are allowed in regard to jury notices, and any one asking, receiving, or giving any such "fee" or "present" will be arrested, and, if possible, punished to the full extent of the law.

THOMAS DUNLAP, Commissioner, County Court-house (Chambersstreet entrance).
