COMMISSIONER OF LICENSES.

REPORT FOR THE YEAR 1912.

New York, May 1, 1913.

Hon. WILLIAM J. GAYNOR, Mayor of The City of New York:

Sir—I herewith submit the report of the work of this office for the license year just ended, namely, from May 1, 1912, to May of the present year. The office of the Commissioner of Licenses is now in existence nine years.

Attached to the report is a table showing the work in detail. Respectfully,
HERMAN ROBINSON, Commissioner of Licenses.

Purpose and Work of the Office.

The office of the Commissioner of Licenses was created by a general State act passed in 1904 and amended by three subsequent Legislatures. The statute provides for regulation of employment agencies in all cities of the State. In cities of the first class its enforcement is given to a Commissioner of Licenses appointed by the Mayor. As 95 per cent. of the employment agency-business of the State is conducted in The City of New York, the law is actually intended for this City alone, because the few employment agencies in the rest of the State are widely scattered.

The employment agency business here is not only increasing, but is growing more diversified. In this City are the theatrical agencies, who book more than 100,000 performers every year on circuits which extend throughout the country. Each contract given to a performer must be passed on by this office. In New York City are most of the labor agencies which furnish unskilled labor to railroad contractors and for public works throughout the Eastern and Middle Western States. Besides, there are in this City agencies for domestic servants, agencies which supply seamen to all kinds of ships, agencies for office help, such as clerks and stenographers, nurses' registries, etc., all of which are kept under supervision.

An important problem—the distribution of labor—still depends upon the private employment bureau. Through no other channel can this distribution be made so efficiently. Free State bureaus and bureaus conducted on a large scale have not been successful here. The personal element in the management of the employment agency is necessary. The real problem is not the collection of 1,000 persons for 1,000 jobs. It is to get the individual to fit the job in each case, whether the work is tunnel excavation or domestic service.

The complexities of the employment agency business embrace the difficulties of the servant question, meeting sudden calls for consignments of unskilled labor, constant disputes between performer and manager in the theatrical field, the oversupply of poorly trained and the scarcity of well-trained help in the commercial field, and these conditions give rise to such abuses as to make continuous legal supervision of agencies necessary.

The immigrant problem, too, bears on the employment agency business. Many unskilled workers, male and female, who deal with employment bureaus, are foreign-speaking, and to see that no extortion is practised on them and that the conditions of employment are explained to them in a language which they can understand is one of the duties imposed by law on this office.

Complaints against agencies both by employer and employee are investigated and, in cases of overcharge, refunds ordered. More than $3,000 in refunds was given back to complainants within the last license year. Most of the refunds are individual sums of $1 and $2, given to those out of work.

Charges of sending girls to improper places have been made against agencies. These charges are carefully investigated and, if found guilty, the agent is punished. Such cases are becoming very rare, undoubtedly owing to the character of supervision.

Hearings or trials to which witnesses are subpoenaed take place on the more serious complaints which cannot be adjusted by the office inspectors. These hearings are held by the Commissioner or Deputy Commissioner. If a license is revoked as a result, the agent may have the case reviewed in the Supreme Court. During the past license year 579 such hearings took place.

The income from licenses during the past twelve months was $19,650. The office, however, is not intended by law to be a revenue producing office.

A table attached to this report summarizes the work of the office for the past license year.

Girl Stenographers Paid Less Than Servants.

Agencies that furnish clerks of all kinds have to deal with conditions as difficult in their way as employment bureaus who wrestle daily with the household servant problem. But they are entirely different conditions. The servants' bureaus complain of a scarcity of help. The clerical employment agencies have too much—of the kind that it is. Both sides of the problem give rise to disputes between agencies and their customers which find their way to the Commissioner of Licenses for adjustment. The application of the employment agency law, however, is settling these disputes without much friction.

Clerical agencies in this City fill a great number of vacancies each year. Because of the number of applicants for employment which they keep within easy call, they can fill places on an hour's notice. The single drawback of the system is that the employees they send to employers are not usually the right kind. The agents say this is not their fault. There are far too many young men and women looking for jobs in the commercial line, but the employers find fault with their qualifications.

In the Wall Street district the business of agents who furnish clerks, stenographers and bookkeepers fell off thirty per cent. within the last twelve months. Some of the smaller agencies have earned barely the running expenses of their offices. They were forced to spend more money in advertising and canvassing because of the falling off in the demand for new employees, but they had no difficulty in getting plenty of candidates for positions. Frequently an agency must send as many as a dozen candidates before it can fill one vacancy.

Employers use commercial employment agencies in preference to advertising columns of newspapers, because they expect the agent to send them the clerk or stenographer who will suit. An advertisement in a newspaper would probably cause their offices to be overrun with applicants whose abilities for the job could not be tested and the selection would have to be made by chance. The employer, owing to the fact that employees are plentiful now, need not pay a fee to the agent. The fee is paid by the applicant for work, and the law permits the agent to collect an amount equal to the first week's salary if the candidate for the job is successful.

Agents who have studied the question give the opinion that most of the young women who apply to them for jobs have neither the training nor the inclination to fill them. The girls who want to become stenographers may know how to write shorthand and work the typewriting machine after a fashion, but their general education as a rule is poor. These opinions are based upon the criticisms made by employers. Neither agents nor many employers have, as a rule, a high opinion of the educational ability of the average public school graduate.

"Don't send us any more of those frivolous girls," is what the average employer says to an agent when he wants a stenographer. "We want a girl who knows a little about the English language and understands punctuation." "How much are you willing to pay?" queries the agent. "Well, eight dollars a week should be enough." The agent replies that there are plenty of girls who will work for eight dollars a week, and some who will work even for six, but no guarantee of educational qualifications can be given for that amount of money. Of course, the fact is that few competent office workers are out of employment.

The most important single exchange for stenographers is the employment bureau system maintained by the typewriting manufacturing firms. These employment bureaus find places for 100,000 stenographers in a year. They charge no fees to either employer or employee, and the bureaus are a source of expense. These bureaus do not need licenses. They cover the same field as licensed employment agencies. Several of the typewriter manufacturing firms contemplate abandoning their employment agencies because of the expense and the general dissatisfaction their efforts meet with. But they can be given up only by concerted arrangement. Should they be abandoned there would be an immediate increase in the business of the private employment agencies licensed by this office. The manager of a typewriter manufacturer's agency is authority for the statement that fifty per cent. of the young women stenographers who apply for work are unable to meet the simple test given them to show their qualifications.

The new stenographer as a rule does not get higher wages than the average domestic servant, and she must board herself or live at the expense of her parents. Only if she quickly develops more ability can she hope to place herself above the servant or shop girl in a financial way.

Private employment agencies that furnish stenographers report that recently there is considerable demand for a new sort of operator—one who can work the dictating machine. These operators, who do not use shorthand, are for the present much better paid than the ordinary typewriter-stenographers. For the present, however, they are scarce.

Servant Problem Worse Than Ever.

Regulating domestic servants' agencies, commonly called intelligence offices, investigating and adjusting complaints lodged against them by both employers and servants, is a work the difficulties of which are not growing less. The whole servant problem is becoming more difficult of solution and those who understand most about it seem to have little hope that it will be solved.

The private employment agency is the only channel so far devised to furnish householders with domestic servants. State employment agencies, in this City at least, could not succeed. Individual judgment is too large a factor in the furnishing of suitable servants to permit an agency to be successfully conducted on a large scale. Even those agencies familiar with the likes and dislikes of their customers, employer and employee, find the task of suiting both quite beyond them in many cases. Large central agencies, with a number of clerks and bookkeepers who either could not or would not exercise capacity for selection, would prove worse than the present method.

The purpose behind the supervision of employment agencies by the Commissioner of Licenses is the prevention of extortion on part of the agencies as well as the sending out of dishonest or incompetent help to the employer. Formerly an agent might send a servant to a score of different employers in the course of a few weeks, instructing the servant to remain only long enough to collect a fee in each case. The demand for servants has been so brisk that this could be done easily enough. It was also customary to take fees from servants for sending them to places which the agent knew could not be filled by these particular servants. Another practise was to send out servants known to be dishonest and who would remain in a place only long enough to steal something and disappear under a change of name.

The present system of legal regulation has made such abuses rare. Investigation of most of the recent cases of dishonest servants showed that they were not hired through intelligence offices.

Employment agencies cannot meet the demand for servants. It is not so much because women willing to work as servants are scarce as it is that so many of them are incompetent. Every employment agency in New York has more applications for work from would-be servants than it can fill, but there is not an agency in the City that would not place at least 100 per cent. more servants were the latter competent to fill the places.

Yet employment agents, who know more about the servant problem than all the sociologists who have written on the subject during the last dozen years, do not place the greater part of the blame for conditions on the incompetency of servants as a class, nor even upon their scarcity. They say that employers as a rule give too little attention to servants when they have them, do not sufficiently provide for their comfort and do not take into account their ambitions. Employers laugh (these agents say) at the idea of a servant having any ambitions but to work. They do not think of allotting regular working hours to her as to other classes of workers. The result is, that only those women will go into service who cannot work at anything else.

Only employment agents know the extent of the demand in this City for household help in such families as can afford to keep but one servant. The sole reason so many are not keeping servants is that they cannot get them. Many have had them at one time or another, but the servants do not stay. The foreign speaking servants who are sent out as "green" girls will stay in their places long enough to get a little experience or a better knowledge of the language than they have had and then go back to the agencies and demand places where the work is easier and the wages higher.

The employment agents who are so pessimistic over the solution of the servant problem explain their views in this way: If servants suddenly became plentiful they would get even less consideration from the bulk of employers than they get to-day until the more intelligent of them would find some other means of earning a livelihood; a condition in which the supply of servants equaled the demand could not, therefore, last for any time.

Social Standing of the Servant the Drawback.

The social standing of the servant is the most important factor in the problem. When so many thousands of young women living on the East Side were out of employment recently because of the garment workers' strike none of them sought work as servants. A few strikers in the Brownsville section of Brooklyn did apply to the agencies for jobs as general houseworkers, but the agents did not care to place them because they knew they sought work only temporarily. Of the thousands who were out of employment none became servants. Although many of them could get more wages as servants (their board being free) they preferred the factory work. The servant feels that her position isolates her.

Most of the families who would gladly keep servants if they could get them live in apartment houses, and rents in these houses are up so high in New York that desirable accommodations cannot be given to the servants. These conditions are increasing the demand for day-workers who can sleep at their own homes, but even these day-workers prefer the factory or store as a place of employment, because they feel they can enjoy more social independence.

Where the Servant Supply Comes From.

The poorer paid servants and the least intelligent of their class are foreign speaking and are recruited in the agencies of the lower East Side of Manhattan. One employment agent in that section who was sufficiently interested in his business to try to learn something about the social status of his applicants for work gathered statistics relating to thirty girls who recently applied to him for jobs as domestics. Of these, fifteen were Jewish, six Polish, eight Hungarian and one Slav. Twelve had been brought up in a country place, nine in a city, six in a village and three in a small town. Only two of the thirty were illiterate, and three never were at school. Seventeen had never worked until they came to the United States; the others were employed as nurse girls and servants. The wages of those who had worked in Europe ranged from $4 to $7 a month. Nearly all of them, in answer to a question as to their ambition, said they expected to get married and live here for the rest of their lives. Their parents were poor tradespeople or poor farmers. The girls were all nearly twenty years of age when they came here. None of them would work as servants had they had any other training.

Schools of Domestic Science.

Establishment of schools of domestic science is being advocated to solve household problems in general; several are maintained by semi-public institutions. Reports do not indicate that they are solving the servant problem in a direct manner because servants do not attend them. When a servant gets any time off from her duties she prefers to spend it in social recreation. Employers of servants are, however, learning more about domestic science, and the servants may increase their knowledge indirectly. But these schools do not furnish the solution. The servant question is one that each family will have to solve individually if it is to be solved. Proper order in the household, by which servants will have to work so many hours a day and no more, with a specific number of hours out of every twenty-four to use as they please, is the best remedy which has yet been proposed. This is what most of the employment agents say, and they are qualified to speak on the question, for they have to look at and listen to both sides of it.

References for Girls Not Wanted in Many Cases.

The Commissioner of Licenses finds difficulty in enforcing the provisions of the employment agency law in regard to making agents investigate the references of girls they send out to employment. When the mistress of a household wants a girl she is in a hurry usually and grows impatient if the agent says the references must be investigated. She tells the agent she will take the girl with or without references and then very often makes a complaint against the agent if the servant turns out not to be what she was expected to be. A great many agents will not give girls to employers without investigating references, no matter how strong the importunities of the employer. But most of them have not these scruples.

The prevailing rate of wages paid to servants is very little different from that of a year ago. There is an increase of about $1 a month. The board of servants probably is, however, more costly to householders if the living expenses have increased.

Theatrical Clauses of Law Unworkable.

Several sections of the employment agency law are devoted to theatrical agents. They were drafted for the benefit of theatrical performers, particularly vaudeville actors. It had been said, and undoubtedly with truth, that vaudeville performers were compelled to give a large part of their salaries in commissions to agents who controlled the bookings in the variety theatres.

From year to year the law has been changed. One organization of vaudeville actors recently undertook the work of amending the employment agency law so that almost everything the performers complained of would be remedied or abolished by statute. Not only were commissions limited, but forms of contracts were devised and efforts made by law to guarantee the payment of salaries. But the framers of the amendment overlooked a fundamental fact. The conditions which they sought to remedy existed in the relationship of the actor to the theatrical manager, and the employment agency law governed neither. It governed only the agent or middleman who brought the principals together. But the actors' organization thought, however, that by imposing conditions on the agent these conditions would be binding on the theatrical manager. This misconception is at the bottom of the trouble in the enforcement of the theatrical clauses of the employment agency law. The law cannot be thoroughly enforced unless it is made reasonable. Continuous controversy between actors and managers is going on and it is not to be expected that the representatives of only one of the parties to the dispute will draft amendments to give justice to both sides. A committee representing actors, managers and agents, capable of agreeing, should be entrusted with the work of intelligently revising this part of the law.

Big Decrease in Theatrical Agencies.

About three-quarters of all theatrical engagements made in the United States are booked in New York City and most of this booking is done through agents licensed and regulated by this office. But while the booking agency business continues to grow the number of licensed agents is diminishing. Two years ago 158 theatrical agents were under supervision of the Commissioner of Licenses; at present the number is 69.

This marked decrease is easily explained. The employment agency law, in so far as it relates to theatrical agents, has some provisions which it is difficult if not impossible for all to comply with and those who can find means of evading them will do so. The business of agent and that of manager are, in many cases, so much alike that it requires but little change in method for an agent to become a manager in fact as well as in name and thus get outside the law. As a manager is a principal and not an agent the law does not directly apply to him. Many agents have thus become managers, as is shown by the falling off in the number of licenses.

The law provides that every contract made by an agent between a performer and owner or manager of a theatre or other place of public entertainment shall be approved by the Commissioner of Licenses. The number of such contracts approved during the last twelve months was 112,900, of which 110,000 were those of vaudeville and cabaret performers and the remainder contracts made by dramatic actors. Every contract is issued in triplicate, a copy given to each manager, one to each performer and one retained by the agent. Records of the chief features of each contract are kept by the Commissioner of Licenses. The object aimed at by the framers of the law in having contracts approved is to prevent the insertion of any clauses to the disadvantage of the performers.

Of the sixty-nine theatrical agencies licensed, thirty-nine are vaudeville agencies exclusively, twenty-two dramatic, four for cabaret performers, three for vaudeville and cabaret performers and one for operatic engagements. The income of these agencies range from $1,000 a year to $250,000. The latter sum is represented by an agency founded by the managers of the larger vaudeville circuits. Most of the earnings represent commissions paid by the performers. There are, however, some instances in which theatrical managers pay booking fees to the agents.

Low Works Badly in Vaudeville Booking.

Since the employment agency law was amended to enhance theatrical agencies specifically the agency business has been gradually dividing itself into two classes, one representing managers, the other performers. Managers give their bookings to agents whom they know will protect their interests. The performers seek agents who will get big salaries for them and they don't trust managers' agents to do this; they hire their own. The result is two sets of agents. The law provides that the gross fees or commission charged performers shall not exceed five per cent. of the salary which the engagement calls for. This provision, if observed, would limit the fees of agents, when there are two in a transaction, to say two and a half per cent. for each. But the agent who gets the booking, who represents the theatrical manager, claims five per cent. The performers' agent must be paid also and in order to get his fee he calls himself a business manager and charges an extra commission which, of course, the performer pays. Such a system means double commissions.

The vaudeville performers' organization is opposed, as an organization, to the payment of double commissions and had the law amended for the purpose of abolishing them. The last amendments were described, to use the phrase of the authors, as "the bill to abolish the ten per cent. rake-off." But the conditions of business place performers in an inconsistent position. As an organization they seek the abolition of the double commissions; as individuals they are willing to pay them. They think that by hiring their own manager-agents they get higher salaries. No law can prevent the performer from hiring his own manager and despite any restriction some means will be found of paying him for his trouble.

Vaudeville performers pay to the licensed agents in this city about $500,000 a year in commissions and in addition to this sum about $300,000 to their manager-agents. These latter are no longer operating under licenses, having become business managers for the performers. Their abandonment of the agency designation accounts to a large extent for the decrease in the number of licenses.

The average income of vaudeville performers, as shown by contracts submitted to the Commissioner of Licenses, is $2,400 a year. This does not mean that the average performer must work the whole year in order to earn $2,400. Many performers are booked here for theatres in England. About 400 American "acts" went to England through New York agencies during the last twelve months. English performers on the vaudeville stage are not coming here in the same ratio that American performers are going to England. The salaries of English vaudeville performers are about half those of American performers.

Moving Pictures Driving Out Dramatic Agencies.

No trouble is found in enforcing the theatrical employment agency law in regard to agencies booking dramatic performers. Such bookings through agents are falling off. The actor and manager are doing business direct. Their relations are closer and more personal in their nature than those which exist between the vaudeville performer and the vaudeville theatre owner. Dramatic agents are learning not to depend for their income solely upon bookings. They are engaging in other lines of dramatic production.

The moving picture business has seriously cut into the dramatic field. In smaller cities the pictures have driven the dramatic performances from the theatres. More English dramatic actors are coming here than formerly. About thirty per cent. of the actors in Broadway productions are English. Agents say that the English dramatic actor is better trained than the American. The average income of the American dramatic actor is $1,500 a year. It has grown smaller on account of the large number out of employment.

Many dramatic actors are getting employment with moving picture film companies. There are forty-five film companies in this city employing about 1,500 actors whose salaries range from $20 to $500 a week. Besides regular actors there is a large number of extra hands employed. Most of the employees are hired direct and not through agencies. While this branch of the business is growing, the theatrical agents are making little profit out of it.

Agents Lose Cabaret Show Business.

When so-called cabaret shows suddenly grew numerous, agents rushed to get the business of supplying performers. The condition they met with gave another example of a law designed to help the performer actually hurting him. The agents who sought this business found it to their advantage to get high salaries for performers inasmuch as their income was to be based on a percentage of the salaries paid. A clause in the employment agency law says that an agent must investigate the financial standing of persons with whom he makes a contract to furnish performers. As cabaret shows are conducted chiefly by hotels and restaurant owners the latter objected to having their financial standing inquired into.

When the last amendments to the law were adopted by the legislature at the request of the vaudeville actors' organization the cabaret show had did not exist and therefore the uselessness of an investigation of the financial condition of the employer was not apparent but whether or not it suits the case the clause is mandatory and it kept the theatrical agent from getting a great deal of the cabaret business. The result is that the employer in many instances hires the performers direct when he can get them cheap enough or lets the contract to a promoter or middleman who in turn becomes the employer and as such pays the lowest salaries to the performers he can so as to swell his own profits. But in spite of this theatrical agents managed to get nearly half the business of furnishing performers for cabaret places.

The provision of the law requiring a theatrical agent to investigate the financial responsibility of persons or corporations hiring performers has not proved of benefit to performers. The employer who is financially irresponsible will get performers, if he needs them, through other channels. The performers themselves take the risk of going into a theatrical enterprise that may go bankrupt outside of New York; "stranded on the road" is the phrase. No such provision of the law applies to any other class of employees. Obviously the agent cannot guarantee the financial responsibility of a prospective employer. This is one of several features of the present law which needs sensible revision.

The average vaudeville performer has an interest in the agency law if it will guarantee him two things. He wants to know that when he hires out at a big salary the salary will be paid for the entire engagement and he also wishes that when he makes a contract through an agency the contract will not be cancelled. Unfortunately for the performer the keeping of these conditions rests more upon the employer than upon the agent and when the law seeks to impose the keeping of them upon the agent it fails in its purpose.

No More Employment for Cattlemen.

Since last year's report was submitted one class of employment agencies has ceased to exist. They were the agents engaged in furnishing cattle tenders to transatlantic steamships. No more cattle tenders are needed, because the shipping of American cattle to Europe has stopped. No cattlemen have been furnished through employment agencies since October, 1912.

The employment agencies engaged in this business furnished cattlemen to ships with live stock leaving New York and one or two of them sent weekly consignments of men to Boston from which port cattle were also shipped to Europe. The men thus sent abroad were in the employ of the shippers and got very little wages for their work. But as they wanted to go to Europe they had free passage and they did not seek to return. Frequently college students who sought to go to Europe without paying steerage rates went as cattlemen. Employment agents who have the contract from shippers of cattle for furnishing these workers got paid by the shippers and collected a fee from the men besides. While fees are regulated by the employment agency law the agents often extorted more than the legal rate but they could do so with safety as men seldom or ever returned to make complaint against them.

If the shipping of American cattle to Europe is resumed these agents will get back into the business. But the price of beef in the United States is at present too high to justify cattle dealers here in sending live stock abroad. The Argentine Republic has taken that trade away from the United States. Even the shipment of American beef in refrigerators has fallen to almost nothing. It is reported as doubtful whether American cattle will be shipped abroad for some time to come; at least none will be shipped until cattle become more plentiful here and the prices of beef fall.

A year ago there were seven employment agencies exclusively engaged in the business of furnishing cattle attendants.

Taking Fees from Seamen.

About 25 per cent. of all seamen recruited at the Port of New York are shipped through licensed employment agencies. Little difficulty with the licensed agents, as far as the employment agency law is concerned, has been experienced, for the Federal statutes prohibit anyone from collecting a fee from a seaman for whom he gets a job. But unlicensed, irresponsible agents who pick up sailors here and there, usually in saloons, cause most of the trouble. It is this class of make-shift persons who take money from the seamen and who are able to evade both State and Federal laws. The licensed agent is paid by the ship owner or captain for furnishing the crew.

Many crews are recruited through keepers of sailors' boarding houses, who usually have a bill against the seaman for board and supplies, which they exact in cash.

to advance and then deduct from the seaman's wages. This system gives rise to extortion, but there is little help for it, as the sailor will readily incur bills regardless of the fact that he may be overcharged, even practically robbed.

When he discovers abuses outside his own jurisdiction, as most of those relating to seamen are, the Commissioner of Licenses reports them to the Federal authorities or the Legal Aid Society.

Many persons violate the Federal statutes, which prohibit the collection of money from members of a ship's crew. They make a business of getting employment for coal passers, on trans-Atlantic steamships, charging fees of from $5 to $15 in each case. This is a violation of the employment agency law as well as the Federal law, but as the person paying the money hardly ever returns to complain, the danger of prosecution is small. Steamship ticket agents and their runners are also offenders in this line.

Unprecedented Demand for Unskilled Labor.

Complaints of fraud upon newly-arrived foreign laborers are more numerous when the demand for labor is greatest. The bordante (formerly the padrone), the labor agent, the foremen who hire laborers for the contractor, deceive the men with false statements to get them to leave New York City and then employ any kind of means to keep them on the works after they have found out they were deceived as to conditions. They count up fictitious debts against them and withhold their pay. Overcharging for the food supplies is common. These foreign-speaking and untrained laborers early get a poor opinion of justice in the United States.

The employment agency law affords considerable protection to the immigrant laborer, but the abuses from which he suffers most are practiced on him in the labor camps and at the works, and here the employment agency law does not operate. The State law for the regulation of labor camps appears to have accomplished nothing. Federal regulation of labor camps should be effective, because the abuses which the laborers recruited in New York City complain of are even more prevalent in adjoining States than in our own.

More than a hundred thousand unskilled workers are hired in New York City during the year. The Commissioner of Licenses can offer protection only to those sent out of the City by licensed labor agents. The contract labor statements filed in this office from May 1, 1912, to May 1, 1913, show that these agents have sent upwards of 63,000 men in that period to jobs in different parts of the country. This is probably 35 per cent. of the total number hired. Many contractors hire their own men direct and not through agencies; firms that have strikes on their works get men through detective agencies and through professional strike-breakers; scores of contractors' foremen come to New York City in the spring and autumn and pick up men in Mulberry st. and along upper 1st and 2d aves.; others get them in Italian banks, where Italian workmen like to congregate; many are sent out by charitable societies, who take no fees and need no licenses.

Persons who take no fees, that is who make no direct profit, for putting men to work, require no licenses and are not employment agencies under the law. It is stipulated in the statute, however, that a person who gets a "valuable consideration" for putting men to work gets a fee. This might be construed to include detective agencies by holding them to be employment agencies, but it has been found impossible to get evidence sufficient to convict any of them in the criminal courts for violations of the employment agency law. Neither can convictions be obtained against the irresponsible persons who hire men in the streets and take them off in droves to works outside the City (to New Jersey and elsewhere) because no money is taken directly from the men. But in spite of the difficulties a few convictions have been obtained during the last license year, and these of the worst offenders.

What the employment agency law is accomplishing for the heretofore unprotected laborer is this: he no longer pays an illegal fee to the agent who sends him to the work; if he is sent out of the City on a false errand (where no work exists), his expenses are returned by the agent; the conditions of employment, such as hours of labor, wages, food and shanty rates, nature of work, distance from the City, etc., are clearly stated to him in a language which he can understand. These provisions of the law are satisfactorily enforced as far as licensed agents are concerned.

Licensed agents report that labor was never in greater demand than at present. The Balkan wars sent many men home to Europe who have not yet returned, but their numbers would have had no perceptible influence on the labor market were they here. Canal work, State road work, new aqueducts, new railroad terminals and railroad improvements in general demand many thousands of men. It is said that in the Pittsburgh district alone from 50,000 to 70,000 Slavs could get employment at once. There may be men out of work at the present time in New York, but they are not those who can do manual labor and who want to work.

Deceit Practiced on Laborers.

The commonest form of deceit practiced on the unskilled laborers by agents and others who collect men for contractors is the falsifying of conditions. Men are told that they are going to grading work, and when they are shipped fifty or a hundred miles outside of New York they find that they have to work standing up to their knees in water. Some are told they have to work on roads, and find that they must go into tunnels. Good sleeping quarters are promised to some who are then made to sleep on the floors of shanties without even straw to lie upon. Proper food and cheap board are described which turn out to be unfit food furnished at extortionate prices by the bordante. Men are led to believe they can earn $3 a day when frequently they cannot earn $1 a day, and must pay the greater part of it for food and sleeping accommodations. If there is a strike on the works and the new hands are sometimes in danger this fact is concealed. If they have no money they cannot get away and must bear with the conditions no matter how unfortunate they are.

Licensed labor agents are not now to blame for these abuses upon laborers to any considerable extent. The law regulates them and holds them responsible for false information. But the contractors themselves and those who hire the men direct for them have not changed their methods. Investigators of conditions in labor camps and sociologists like to blame these things on the labor agents because it is easy to reach them and hard to reach the real culprits. One plan proposed pretty frequently of late is to have a State department regulate labor agents. But the labor agents are already regulated in The City of New York. There are hardly any labor agencies outside The City of New York, and if there are they can be regulated in their respective cities under the employment agency law (which is a State law). The activities of the labor agencies are confined to their own offices or places of business. And, besides, the licensed labor agencies are not responsible for the conditions which exist. The labor camp conditions in nearby States are worse than in New York. It is also apparent that the State law in regard to labor camps either is not enforced or its enforcement is valueless.

Italian laborers are easily deceived before being sent out to work. They like to have conditions pictured pleasantly, and their own countrymen, who alone can talk their language, take advantage of this characteristic.

The wages paid laborers on contract work are very little more than they were a year ago. The Government reports show an increase of only 3 per cent. over last year and 7 per cent. over two years ago. The average contract laborer earns about $1.60 a day and pays his maintenance out of it.

Nurses' Agencies Complain of Small Fees.

Employment agencies for trained nurses, of whom there are many licensed by this office, show by their registers that the trained nurse is becoming more and more a luxury of life, and therefore growing scarcer in proportion to the increase of population. During the last twelve months the average wages of graduate nurses in ordinary cases have been increased from $25 to $28 a week. In special cases the wages are higher. The maintenance of a nurse is also increasing.

Complaint is sometimes made that agencies send out undergraduate nurses as graduate nurses and charge the same fees as if they had qualified in the graduate nurses' class. The wages of undergraduate nurses run from $15 to $18 a week. "Practical" nurses get even less. The latter are self-trained or gain their experience by working with a physician in his private practice. "Practical" nurses are known as the poor people's nurses, and many of them who are furnished by agencies, help in household work in addition to acting as nurse.

The nurses' agencies are responsible for the specializing of nurses. Formerly they kept lists and filled their orders by sending each nurse out in turn. Now they pick the nurse according to the ailment of the patient. Agencies complain that the private sanitariums make all the profit from furnishing nurses without any legal restrictions. These sanitariums, the agents say, hire nurses for $30 a month and then charge patients $25 to $35 a week for their services, the patient sometimes requiring the services of the nurses after they leave the sanitariums. Under the employment agency law the nurses' registries may charge the nurses only ten per cent. of the wages received. Often, however, agencies who furnish board to nurses while they are waiting for engagements, make up for what they consider the smallness of the fees by heavier board bills.

Summary.

The following table gives a summary of the work of the office from May 1, 1912, to May 1, 1913:

Number of inspections made.....	6,775
Number of complaints involving refund of fees to applicants for employment.....	1,124
Number of complaints involving refund of fees to applicants for help.....	519

		During the quarter the actual work of reconstructing the subway connection for the Manhattan terminal of the Brooklyn Bridge was started.
		On October 23d and 24th a count was taken of the traffic over the bridge.

Williamsburg Bridge.

During the quarter the detailed account of progress on contracts at the Williamsburg Bridge is as follows:

Strengthening End Spans, Steelwork, Manhattan Towers—During the quarter completed the erection of the steelwork for the new towers under panel points No. 10 and No. 20. The tower under Panel Point No. 20 is about 50 per cent. riveted. The riveting of the tower will be finished when the final adjustment is made.

Steelwork, Manhattan Trusses—Continued the erection of steelwork for the reinforcement of the trusses. Completed erecting, drilling and riveting flange angles to diagonals between Panel Points Nos. 4 and 10 on both trusses. Completed the erection of wind brace laterals and bottom chord sections. Erecting and riveting up posts and connections at Panel Points 21, 23 and 29 on both trusses. Erecting and drilling flange angles to diagonals between Panel Points 21 and 24 on both trusses.

Steelwork, Brooklyn Trusses—Continued cutting out rivets, drilling new holes and driving rivets. Erected and riveted hangers to posts and top chord sections and splice plates. Erected new top laterals at Panel Point No. 20; cut floor beam to erect post at this point on the North Truss. Erected post at Panel Point No. 20 on the North Truss and fitted up and erected connections adjacent to same. Framing and erecting timbers to support floor beams at Panel Point 20 on the South Truss. Preparing to erect post at Panel Point No. 20 on the South Truss. The steelwork for this contract is practically all delivered at the site. The towers are about 92.4 per cent. erected in place and the steel added to trusses, approximately 50.4 per cent. complete.

Strengthening Main Span—The work on the re-enforcement of the main span consisted during the period of wiring, etc., in the compressor house, completing the pipe line from compressor house up to and along the structure, construction of fence about property adjacent to anchorage for storing material, erection of roadway curb angles, construction of derrick at anchorage and of working platform at centre of river span. About 62 tons of steel, curb angles and chord plates for re-enforcement, have been received and accepted.

On October 28 a test was made at the Kent ave. yards of the fire resisting qualities of various fireproof paints as compared with structural paint and unpainted timber. The paint which withstood the test the best will be used on the working platforms, etc., in connection with the work of re-enforcing the main spans.

Plans were prepared and have been approved by this Department for the construction of a shelter house on the Brooklyn Plaza, to be used in connection with the Bridge Local service. This service has been greatly improved since the investigation made last spring and the subsequent changes in loops and schedules.

On Saturday, November 30, 1912, at midnight, the cost of local car tickets was changed from two for five cents to three for five cents, and the latter is the rate at present.

The new roadway on the Plaza from the bridge entrance to Roebling st. was opened at 2.30 p. m., November 26.

All other maintenance requirements were met.

Queensboro Bridge.

On Wednesday, October 23, the elevator in the south shaft of the Queens Anchor Pier was opened to public service, and on Saturday, December 28, the elevators in both shafts were operated. One elevator is to be in service continuously from 6 a. m. to 10 p. m., the other from 6 to 10 a. m., and from 4 to 8 p. m., except Sunday, and with extra service on Saturday, from noon to 2 p. m. A count made on Tuesday, December 31, showed that 1,998 passengers were carried in the south elevator and 718 in the north elevator.

A traffic count was made on the roadway on November 23d, 24th and 25th, from 6 a. m. to 10 p. m. each day, to determine the probable hindrance to traffic from the proposed construction of a freight elevator on Blackwells Island, near Pier 3. A frame and railing was constructed approximately the size of the opening in the roadway for the proposed elevator and the effect on traffic carefully noted.

The Bradley Contracting Co. has completed about 28,500 cubic yards of filling between Ely and Vernon aves., under the Queens Approach, during the quarter.

A contract was made on November 13, 1912, with Kelley & Kelley, Inc., for the construction of a shelter house on the Queens Plaza. Work began on November 27, 1912, and the foundations have been completed.

A number of studies of the architectural design for passenger elevators connecting with Blackwells Island were made.

Manhattan Bridge.

On Wednesday, November 13, the first car of the Brooklyn and North River Railroad Co. was operated across the bridge. Cars of the 3d Ave. Railway Co. have been used for continuous operation since November 14.

In response to numerous complaints regarding the condition of the streets and areas under the jurisdiction of this Department, under the Manhattan Approach, the property has been patrolled from Canal st. to the river front, to prevent the dumping of refuse, and as much of this cleaned up as possible under present conditions.

The Fire Alarm Telegraph Bureau has installed fire alarm signal boxes and a signal cable over the bridge, but has not yet put this in operation.

The Three-Cent Line started operating cars between Manhattan Plaza and Fulton st., Brooklyn. The first car, No. 308, carrying passengers, left Manhattan Plaza on December 14, 1912, at 12.22 p. m.

The check estimate of quantities for the improvement of the Manhattan Plaza was completed.

Bids were received for the improvement of Manhattan Plaza on December 19, 1912, and the contract was awarded to W. E. Seaver, the lowest bidder.

Work on the contract drawings for the improvement of the Brooklyn Plaza was commenced and is being vigorously advanced. The plan for change of grade and curb lines of Flatbush Avenue Extension and Nassau st. were sent to the Board of Estimate for approval. The lighting and electrical details were approved by the Department of Water Supply, Gas and Electricity.

The regular maintenance, inspection, sweeping, repairs, etc., were done during the quarter.

Municipal Building.

The work under the contract between the City and Thompson-Starrett Co. for the superstructure of the building was advanced to 98 per cent. complete.

The contract for the interior finish was advanced 7 per cent. towards completion. Robt. Wetherill & Co., Inc., completed 14 per cent. of the work to be done under the contract for the elevators.

NOTICE TO BIDDERS AT SALES OF OLD BUILDINGS, ETC.

TERMS AND CONDITIONS UNDER WHICH BUILDINGS, ETC., WILL BE SOLD FOR REMOVAL FROM CITY PROPERTY.

THE BUILDINGS AND APPURTENANCES thereto will be sold to the highest bidder, who must pay cash or certified check, drawn to the order of the Comptroller of The City of New York, and must also give a certified check or cash in half the amount of the purchase price as security for the faithful performance of the terms and conditions of the sale. Where the amount of the purchase price does not equal or exceed the sum of $50, the sum of $50 shall be the amount of the security to be deposited. This security may at any time after the expiration of the contract period be applied by the City to the cost of completing any of the work required under the contract, but not at the expiration of the contract period.

The purchaser shall not lease, occupy, cause or permit the building or buildings, etc., purchased by him to be used or occupied for any purpose other than that of their speedy removal, nor shall he collect any rental or other revenue for the use of either the land or the buildings, etc., situated thereon. The breach of either or any of these conditions shall forthwith void the sale and cause immediate forfeiture of the purchase money and the security deposited for the faithful performance of the conditions of the sale. The placing therein or permitting the occupancy of any such building by any tenant free, for rent or otherwise, excepting the necessary watchmen or the workmen engaged in the actual demolition thereof, shall of itself be a breach of the above conditions of sale.

The sale will be as of the condition of the property on date of delivery thereof to the purchaser. The City of New York will not be responsible for any change or loss which may occur in the condition of the buildings, or their appurtenances between the time of the sale thereof and the time of delivering possession to the purchaser, after being properly vacated of all tenants. The sale and delivery to purchaser will be made as nearly together as the circumstance of vacating the structures of their tenants will permit.

All the material of the buildings, sheds, walks, structures and cellars of whatsoever nature, with their exterior and interior fixtures, appurtenances and foundations of all kinds, except the exterior walls of the buildings and their foundations and the sidewalks and curb in front of said buildings, extending within the described area shall be torn down and removed from the premises. None of the dirt, debris or waste resulting from demolition shall be allowed to remain on the premises, except old mortar or plaster only, which may be left, but not higher at any point than two feet below the curb opposite that point. The exterior walls and their foundations shall be taken down only to a plane whose elevation shall be the level of the curb in front of the building. Where there is no curb the elevation of the surrounding ground shall be considered curb level. All wells, cesspools, sinks, etc., existing on the property must be filled to the level of the surrounding ground with clean earth.

The purchaser at the sale shall also withdraw and remove all abandoned water taps and old service mains, and in place thereof cause to be inserted a brass plug in the main water pipe in the street, in compliance with the rules and regulations of the Department of Water Supply, Gas and Electricity, and furnish the Department of Finance with a certificate from the Department of Water Supply, Gas and Electricity that this has been performed.

The purchaser at the sale shall also remove all house sewer connections to the main sewer in the street, and the opening of the main sewer in street shall be properly closed in compliance with the directions of the Bureau of Sewers in the Borough in which the buildings are situated, and furnish the Department of Finance with a certificate from the Bureau of Sewers that the work has been properly performed.

The permit for all opening in the street to be obtained by and at the expense of the purchaser of the building.

Failure to remove said buildings, appurtenances, or any part thereof, within thirty days from the day of possession will work forfeiture of ownership of such buildings, appurtenances or portion as shall then be left standing, together with all moneys paid by said purchaser on account thereof at the time of the sale, and the bidder's assent to the above conditions being understood to be implied by the act of bidding and The City of New York will, without notice to the purchaser, cause the same to be removed and the cost and expense thereof charged against the security above mentioned.

The work of removal must be carried on in every respect in a thorough and workmanlike manner, and must be completed within thirty days from the day of possession, and the successful bidder will provide and furnish all materials of labor and machinery necessary thereto, and will place proper and sufficient guards and fences and warning signs by day and night for the prevention of accidents, and will indemnify and save harmless The City of New York, its officers, agents and servants, and each of them, against any and all suits and actions, claims and demands of every name and description brought against it, them or any of them, and against and from all damage and costs to which it, they or any of them be put by reason of injury to the person or property of another, resulting from negligence or carelessness in the performance of the work, or in guarding the same, or from any improper or defective materials or machinery, implements or appliances used in the removal of said buildings.

Where party walls are found to exist between buildings purchased by different bidders, the materials of said party walls shall be understood to be equally divided between the separate purchasers.

Party walls and fences, when existing against adjacent property not sold, shall not be taken down. All furrings, plaster, chimneys, projecting brick, etc., on the faces of such party walls are to be taken down and removed. The walls shall be made permanently self-supporting, beam-holes, etc., bricked up, and the wall painted and made to exclude wind and rain and present a clean exterior. The roofs and adjacent buildings shall be properly flashed and painted and made watertight where they have been disturbed by the operations of the contractor.

The Comptroller of The City of New York reserves the right on the day of sale to withdraw from sale any of the buildings, parts of buildings and machinery included therein, or to reject any and all bids, and it is further

Resolved, That, while the said sale is held under the supervision of the Commissioners of the Sinking Fund, the Comptroller is authorized to cause the sale to be advertised and to direct the sale thereof as financial officer of the City.
