Overview

The Department of Citywide Administrative Services (DCAS) is submitting this report on September 1, 2022 in compliance with Local Law 24 of 2016 (LL24). The LL24 report requires DCAS to assess all City-owned buildings for their “solar readiness”, or ability to host solar photovoltaic systems (solar PV) in their current condition. For a building to be deemed solar-ready, it must be 10,000 or more gross building square feet, have a roof that is ten years old or newer, and be in good structural condition.<sup>1</sup> DCAS then estimates the potential size in kilowatts (kW) of the solar PV systems that could be installed at these solar-ready sites.

For each solar PV system that has been completed or is in the process of development (“in-progress”), DCAS provides the final installed or estimated system sizes in kW; the percentage of the facilities’ maximum energy demand that can be served by the solar PV system; the estimated annual energy generation of the solar PV system in kilowatt-hours (kWh); the percentage of the facilities’ total annual energy consumption that can be generated by the solar PV systems; the installation date; the total system cost; how the system was paid for; the estimated annual energy cost savings from the system; and the estimated annual reduction of greenhouse gas emissions in metric tons of carbon dioxide equivalent (MTCO<sub>2e</sub>).

Progress

Over the past two years, in the face of unprecedented challenges, the City increased the size of its installed solar PV power capacity by nearly 40 percent from the capacity that was reported in the 2020 LL24 report (Table 1). This growth represented the single largest increase in an 18-month period since the City first began installing solar in the mid-1990’s. As of July 31st, 2022, the City has a total installed solar PV capacity of 16.7 MW across 115 municipal buildings. Approximately 64 percent of total installed solar capacity is located in Environmental Justice Areas (Figure 1). The City is currently developing 46.3 MW of solar capacity (“in-progress”), with the expectation that it will surpass 20 MW of installed capacity by the end of calendar year 2022 and 40 MW by the end of calendar year 2023. This LL24 Report finds that an additional 16.7 MW of capacity could be developed at 199 sites that are classified as solar-ready (Table 2). This progress puts DCAS closer than ever to achieving the goal of installing 100 MW of solar PV (Figure 2).

Challenges

As the City continues to emerge from the COVID-19 Pandemic, it is working to overcome numerous obstacles to reach the 100 MW by 2025 goal. Following a decade of productivity growth and innovation in the solar industry that led to a 70 percent reduction in installed costs between 2010 and 2019,<sup>4</sup> the onset of the pandemic in 2020 and the resulting ongoing disruptions to global supply chains have reversed those earlier gains in productivity and cost effectiveness.<sup>5</sup> Additional challenges have resulted from a shifting policy landscape at the State and Federal levels, as well as macroeconomic factors that have led to the highest rates of inflation in decades. Specific challenges include:

1. Commodity cost increases: The costs of materials used in the construction of solar PV systems have increased dramatically over the past year due to both inflation and the disruption of global supply chains. For example, the cost of copper used in wiring has increased approximately 40 percent;<sup>6</sup> the cost of steel used in racking and electrical components has increased as much as 200 percent;<sup>7</sup> and the cost of solar PV modules has nearly doubled, driven by rising polysilicon<sup>8</sup> costs and supply shortages.<sup>9</sup>

2. Labor cost increases: Growing demand and marketplace disruptions have led to a shortage in qualified labor in the solar industry. As a result, labor costs have increased as much as 70 percent for projects that are currently under development.
3. Shipping cost increases and delays: The disruption of global supply chains and freight logistics has increased the costs of shipping solar panels approximately 500 percent since the onset of the pandemic.<sup>10</sup>
4. International Tariffs: The potential expansion of solar tariffs beyond China to four Southeast Asian countries that account for approximately 80 percent of total solar module imports to the U.S. — Cambodia, Malaysia, Thailand and Vietnam — led to significant price spikes and marketplace disruption this spring.<sup>11</sup> In June 2022, President Joe Biden announced that new tariffs would not be instituted for at least two years and invoked the Defense Production Act to spur domestic manufacturing as the U.S. Department of Commerce review continues.<sup>12</sup> While this announcement led to marginal declines in pricing, this regulatory volatility led to market challenges and price impacts that are expected to last for months.

12 United States Department of Energy. 2022. “President Biden Invokes Defense Production Act to Accelerate Domestic Manufacturing of Clean Energy.” Press release.

5. Solar incentive restructuring: This spring, the New York State Public Service Commission issued its Order Expanding the NY-Sun Program, which significantly restructured incentive offerings for solar PV.<sup>13</sup> Incentives were increased for segments of the market that have generally been neglected, particularly small commercial and residential projects in low-and-moderate income (LMI) neighborhoods and Environmental Justice Areas. In tandem, the Order reduced incentives for larger projects, resulting in a net reduction in the total value of incentives that are available for projects that are under development at City-owned sites, and leading to higher direct costs to the City.

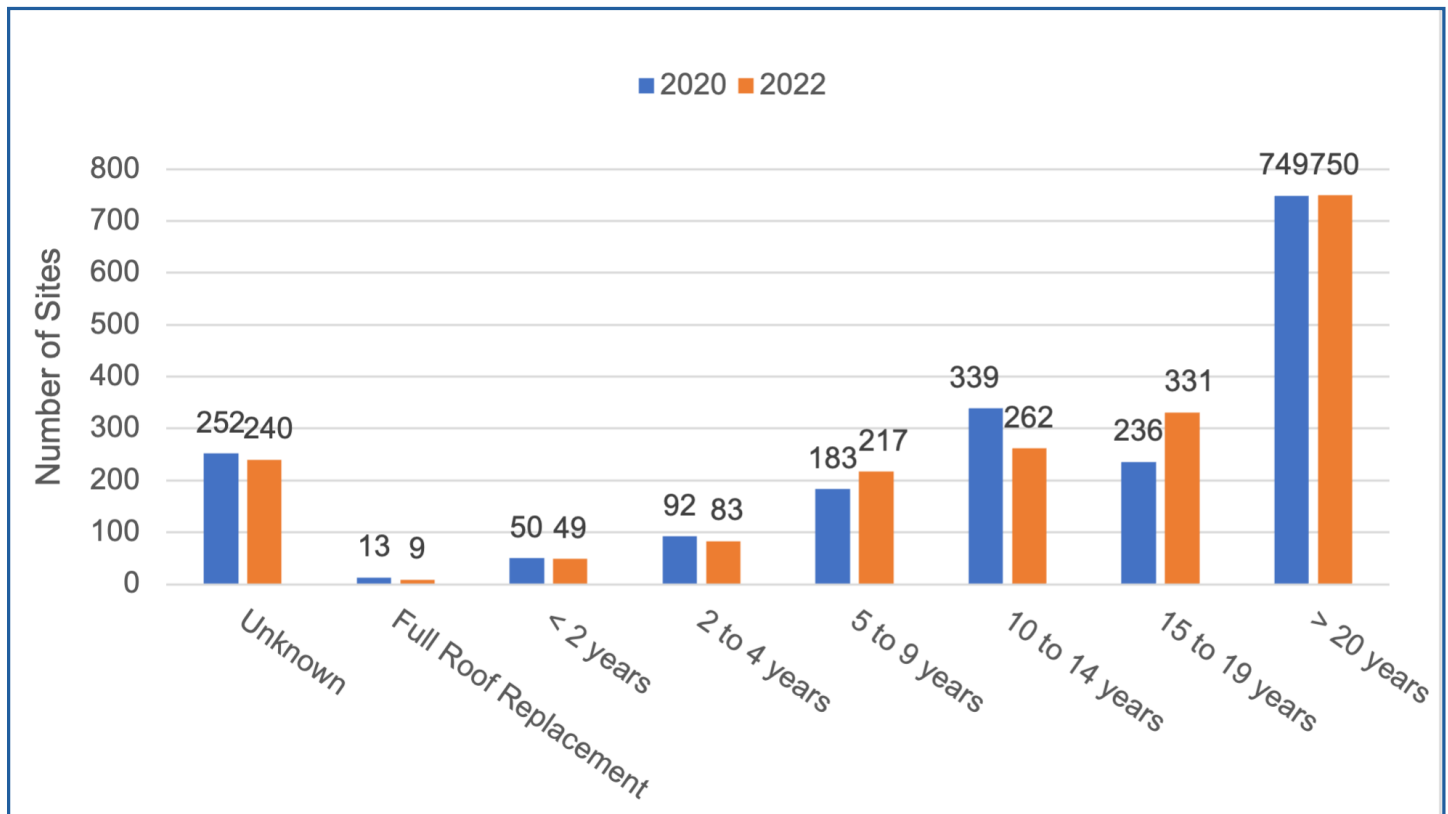

In addition to these market and policy factors, the City must overcome the limited availability of solar-ready sites to reach the 100 MW goal. As detailed in Table 2, of the nearly 2,000 sites surveyed in this report that currently do not have a completed or in-progress solar installation, only 10 percent were deemed to be solar-ready. The remaining 90 percent of sites were deemed not solar-ready due to roof age and/or condition. Figure 3 shows that the majority of all rooftops surveyed are either older than ten years or approaching the ten-year cutoff. The City avoids installing solar on roofs that are older than ten years or in poor condition to minimize the chance that a solar PV system will need to be removed to accommodate future roof repairs or replacement. Common roof deficiencies include water penetration, roof bubbling, parapet leaks, and structural challenges. Sometimes these challenges can be resolved, but not without significant delays and cost increases.

Opportunities

Despite the challenges outlined above, the City sees significant opportunities to continue accelerating progress towards the 100 MW goal. These opportunities include:

- Roof replacements at large sites: DCAS is now allocating funding from its ten-year capital budget to replace roofs at high-priority sites that can yield over 200 kW of capacity. The City can dramatically increase solar PV installations through replacing roofs at some of the largest facilities in the five boroughs, including warehouses, garages, and parking decks. DCAS has categorized nearly 100 sites as high priority for roof replacements, with the potential to yield nearly 15 MW of solar capacity.
- Design-Build Project Delivery: This spring, DCAS received authorization from New York State to utilize the design-build project delivery method, which has been used successfully across the country to reduce the timeline and cost of delivering large capital construction projects. Unlike the traditional design-bid-build approach, which requires two separate procurements for the design and construction phases, the design-build method involves a single procurement for design and construction. As a result, designers and contractors partner early in the development process and their interests are aligned in delivering a project efficiently and cost-effectively. DCAS is currently developing a design-build strategy for both roof replacements and solar PV installation.

<sup>14</sup> The 2020 LL24 report categorized all roofs that were undergoing partial or full replacement as “Under Construction”, which implied that they were on the path to becoming solar-ready. The 2022 LL24 Report uses a more targeted categorization of “Full Roof Replacement” to identify sites that are on the path to becoming solar-ready. Figure 3 above applies this standard to both the 2020 and 2022 datasets to facilitate direct comparison.

- Increased Operational Efficiency: DCAS has significantly increased the operational efficiency of its solar program over the past two years through establishing clear technical guidelines, instituting effective project management procedures, and incorporating industry best practices for design and construction. DCAS has also worked closely with agency partners to increase their capacity and willingness to install solar at properties that they operate. Over the next two years, DCAS will continue to focus on improving its operational efficiency, overcoming bureaucratic and marketplace obstacles, and accelerating the pace of development.
- Federal Incentives: In August 2022, The United States Congress passed the Inflation Reduction Act which President Biden signed into law. The Act includes over $350 billion of investment in clean energy and climate change mitigation, including the extension of the federal Investment Tax Credit (ITC), which for the first time in history may be made available to municipal governments. Previously, the City and other not-for-profit entities were only able to benefit from the ITC indirectly through partnering with a for-profit entity that could access the incentive and pass along some of the savings in exchange for a long-term commitment to purchase the energy, known as a Power Purchase Agreement (PPA). The City will closely monitor how the federal government implements the provision of the law pertaining to municipalities accessing ITC payments and will evaluate new project delivery methods that would enable the City to access these payments if made available.

Conclusion

Over the past two years, in the face of unprecedented challenges, the City increased the size of its installed solar PV power capacity by nearly 40 percent, which represents the single largest increase in a two-year period since the City first began installing solar PV systems in the mid-1990's. The City expects to grow its solar portfolio to more than 20 MW by the end of calendar year and install an additional 20 MW in 2023, putting the City on the path to reaching 100 MW by 2025. The acceleration and growth of the City's clean energy development will not only help to mitigate climate change, but also create thousands of jobs and broaden New Yorkers' access to clean energy.

*Environmental Justice Area: As defined by Local Law 64 of 2017, a low-income community or minority community, as determined by U.S. Census Bureau, 2014 – 2018 American Community Survey.

**Percentage of Max Peak Demand: Estimated using a de-rate factor of 0.82 established by the National Renewable Energy Laboratory (NREL).

***Estimated Social Cost of Carbon Value: As defined in Local Law 6 of 2016, assigns a dollar value per metric ton (MT) of carbon dioxide equivalent (CO2e). As of 2022, the latest social cost of carbon value is from 2021, at $142 per MT of CO2e.

****Estimated Annual Energy Savings: Updated avoided cost of solar energy ($/kWh) estimated value per electricity rate Service Classifications, accounting for supply and demand values offset by solar. Analysis conducted by NREL.

*Environmental Justice Area: As defined by Local Law 64 of 2017, a low-income community or minority community, as determined by U.S. Census Bureau, 2014 – 2018 American Community Survey.

**Percentage of Max Peak Demand: Estimated using a de-rate factor of 0.82 established by the National Renewable Energy Laboratory (NREL).

***Estimated Social Cost of Carbon Value: As defined in Local Law 6 of 2016, assigns a dollar value per metric ton (MT) of carbon dioxide equivalent (CO2e). As of 2022, the latest social cost of carbon value is from 2021, at $142 per MT of CO2e.

****Estimated Annual Energy Savings: Updated avoided cost of solar energy ($/kWh) estimated value per electricity rate Service Classifications, accounting for supply and demand values offset by solar. Analysis conducted by NREL.
