GLOBAL VISION | URBAN ACTION

A City with Global Goals
Part II

In September 2015 world leaders gathered at the United Nations to commit to a set of goals to end extreme poverty, fight inequality and injustice and mitigate climate change over the next 15 years. These global goals are universal and apply to all countries, including the United States. In March 2016, the United Nations unveiled the targets and roadmap to achieve these global goals. As attention turns to the question of how countries will achieve these ambitious targets, New York City's innovative long-term planning offers one example of how cities can contribute.

A City with Global Goals, produced by the Mayor's Office for International Affairs, illustrates the connections between the global Sustainable Development Goals and the visions, goals, initiatives and targets that form Mayor Bill de Blasio's One New York: The Plan for a Just and Strong City.

The first part, published in December 2015, uses NYC's local development strategy as a point of departure. The second part, published in April 2016, switches the focus and begins the comparison with the Sustainable Development Goals. We chose to provide perspectives from both angles so that no matter the reader's engagement, the synergies between the two groundbreaking plans are clear.

We hope these examples of the relationships between global and local planning, models and goals help to begin a conversation on local implementation of the global goals.

Note: Goal 17 and the global partnership is a critical component of the success of the Sustainable Development Goals. While cross-sectoral partnerships are the core of implementation, A City with Global Goals does not explicitly incorporate this analysis. Equally, A City with Global Goals includes only targets related to substantive goals, and does not include targets related to the "means of implementation".

14 LIFE BELOW WATER

CONSERVE AND SUSTAINABLY USE THE OCEANS, SEAS AND MARINE RESOURCES

Zero Waste   Brownfields   Water Management   Coastal Defense
14.1 By 2025, prevent and significantly reduce marine pollution of all kinds, in particular from land-based activities, including marine debris and nutrient pollution

14.2 By 2020, sustainably manage and protect marine and coastal ecosystems to avoid significant adverse impacts, including by strengthening their resilience, and take action for their restoration in order to achieve healthy and productive oceans

14.3 Minimize and address the impacts of ocean acidification, including through enhanced scientific cooperation at all levels

14.4 By 2020, effectively regulate harvesting and end overfishing, illegal, unreported and unregulated fishing and destructive fishing practices and implement science-based management plans, in order to restore fish stocks in the shortest time feasible, at least to levels that can produce maximum sustainable yield as determined by their biological characteristics

14.5 By 2020, conserve at least 10 per cent of coastal and marine areas, consistent with national and international law and based on the best available scientific information

14.6 By 2020, prohibit certain forms of fisheries subsidies which contribute to overcapacity and overfishing, eliminate subsidies that contribute to illegal, unreported and unregulated fishing and refrain from introducing new such subsidies, recognizing that appropriate and effective special and differential treatment for developing and least developed countries should be an integral part of the World Trade Organization fisheries subsidies negotiation

14.7 By 2030, increase the economic benefits to Small Island developing States and least developed countries from the sustainable use of marine resources, including through sustainable management of fisheries, aquaculture and tourism

"The New York City Department of Environmental Protection has invested billions of dollars in sewer and wastewater treatment plant upgrades to protect the city's watershed. But in those waterbodies that do not yet meet water quality standards for pathogens, the biggest remaining challenge is to further reduce combined sewer overflows that discharge a mixture of untreated sewage and stormwater runoff when it rains."

"Since the launch of OneNYC, New York City has completed 500 green infrastructure projects, and an additional 2,900 are in construction, which will help to divert water from the combined sewer system and reduce pollutants from entering the water system."

15.2 By 2020, promote the implementation of sustainable management of all types of forests, halt deforestation, restore degraded forests and substantially increase afforestation and reforestation globally

15.3 By 2030, combat desertification, restore degraded land and soil, including land affected by desertification, drought and floods, and strive to achieve a land degradation-neutral world

15.4 By 2030, ensure the conservation of mountain ecosystems, including their biodiversity, in order to enhance their capacity to provide benefits that are essential for sustainable development

15.5 Take urgent and significant action to reduce the degradation of natural habitats, halt the loss of biodiversity and, by 2020, protect and prevent the extinction of threatened species

15.6 Promote fair and equitable sharing of the benefits arising from the utilization of genetic resources and promote appropriate access to such resources, as internationally agreed

15.7 Take urgent action to end poaching and trafficking of protected species of flora and fauna and address both demand and supply of illegal wildlife products

15.8 By 2020, introduce measures to prevent the introduction and significantly reduce the impact of invasive alien species on land and water ecosystems and control or eradicate the priority species

15.9 By 2020, integrate ecosystem and biodiversity values into national and local planning, development processes, poverty reduction strategies and accounts

17 PARTNERSHIPS FOR THE GOALS

REVITALIZE THE GLOBAL PARTNERSHIP FOR SUSTAINABLE DEVELOPMENT

Objective: A successful sustainable development agenda requires partnerships between governments, the private sector and civil society. These inclusive partnerships built upon principles and values, a shared vision, and shared goals that place people and the planet at the center, are needed at the global, regional, national and local level.

Urgent action is needed to mobilize, redirect and unlock the transformative power of trillions of dollars of private resources to deliver on sustainable development objectives. Long-term investments, including foreign direct investment, are needed in critical sectors, especially in developing countries. These include sustainable energy, infrastructure and transport, as well as information and communications technologies. The public sector will need to set a clear direction. Review and monitoring frameworks, regulations and incentive structures that enable such investments must be retooled to attract investments and reinforce sustainable development. National oversight mechanisms such as supreme audit institutions and oversight functions by legislatures should be strengthened.

Note: While Goal 17 and the global partnership is a critical component of the success of the Sustainable Development Goals, A City with Global Goals does not incorporate an analysis of the connections between Goal 17 and OneNYC given the absence of a comparable vision contained within OneNYC. Equally, A City with Global Goals includes only targets related to substantive goals, and does not include targets related to the "means of implementation".
