By order of the Board.

EMMONS CLARK,
Secretary.

HEALTH DEPARTMENT OF THE
CITY OF NEW YORK,
BUREAU OF VITAL STATISTICS,
February 16, 1875.

To the Secretary of the Board of Health:

SIR—There were 594 deaths reported in this City during the week ending on Saturday the 13th inst., being six less than the number reported in the previous week, and forty less than the average weekly number of deaths during the month of January. The decrease occurred chiefly in diseases of the respiratory organs.

The following statement shows how excessive the mortality from these diseases was during the past month of January:

	Number of Deaths in Five Weeks Ending—
	Feb. 7, 1874.	Feb. 6, 1875.
Pneumonia.....	280	443
Bronchitis.....	130	156
Phthisis Pulmonalis.....	372	438
Membranous Croup.....	75	93
Total from all causes....	2,475	3,114

The decrease in mortality from small-pox, diphtheria, and scarlatina continues. No deaths from measles, and only 8 from typhoid fever have been reported during the past fortnight.

The death-rate in the first week of February was equal to 28.90 per 1,000. The rate reported in the twenty-one chief cities of Great Britain for the week ending January 23, was 27 per 1,000. But Dublin and Liverpool reported their death-rate as 33 per 1,000; Edinburgh reported 34, and London 24 per 1,000. The excessive mortality which prevailed in all the cities of Northern Europe, and in the chief American cities north of the latitude of Savannah, has followed the excessive fluctuations and unusually long continued depression of temperature. This excessive cold appears to have ruled the death-rates in most of the cities of America and Europe.

Respectfully submitted.

ELISHA HARRIS, M. D.,
Registrar of Vital Statistics.
