COMMISSIONERS OF THE SINKING FUND OF THE CITY OF NEW YORK.

Proceedings of the Commissioners of the Sinking Fund at a Meeting Held in Room 16, City Hall, at 11 o'clock A. M., on Tuesday, May 23, 1905.

Present—George B. McClellan, Mayor; Edward M. Grout, Comptroller; Patrick Keenan, Chamberlain; Timothy P. Sullivan, Acting President, Board of Aldermen, and John T. McCall, Chairman Finance Committee, Board of Aldermen.

The minutes of the meeting held May 10, 1905, were approved as printed.

The Comptroller again offered for adoption the following resolution, relative to the Thirty-ninth Street Ferry (see pages 367 and —):

Resolved, by the unanimous vote of the Commissioners of the Sinking Fund, upon the recommendation of the Commissioner of Docks, That the interests of The City of New York will not be best promoted by leasing the franchise of the ferry from the foot of Whitehall street, Manhattan, to Thirty-ninth street, South Brooklyn, in the manner provided in the Greater New York Charter; and it is

Resolved, by the unanimous vote of the Commissioners of the Sinking Fund, To acquire the necessary real estate, property, plant or equipment for such ferry, including the necessary terminal facilities and approaches upon the water front in the Borough of Manhattan, and to provide for the maintenance and operation thereof, under the supervision of the Commissioner of Docks, in the name of and for the benefit of The City of New York, upon a plan to be devised by him and approved by the said Commissioners of the Sinking Fund.

Which received the following vote:

Ayes—The Mayor, Comptroller, Chamberlain and Acting President, Board of Aldermen.

Nays—The Chairman of the Finance Committee, Board of Aldermen.

The resolution, requiring an unanimous vote, was declared lost.

The Comptroller moved that the vote by which the foregoing resolution was lost be reconsidered.

Carried.

On motion, the matter was laid over.

The following communication was received from the Broadway Board of Trade (Brooklyn), relative to the acquisition by the City of a special water front in the Borough of Brooklyn, to provide additional docking facilities, more piers and warehouse shelter:

BROOKLYN, NEW YORK, May 16, 1905.

The Sinking Fund Commissioners, Manhattan, New York:

GENTLEMEN—I beg to submit herewith resolutions unanimously adopted by the Broadway Board of Trade at their regular meeting, held May 5, 1905.

We sincerely hope you will appreciate the urgent need, which is so imperatively demanded by the manufacturing and commercial interests of Brooklyn, for more adequate docking facilities, larger piers and additional warehouse shelter which the shores of Brooklyn amply afford.

If these docking facilities were established large revenues, which now go to New Jersey, would flow into the Treasury of New York City, as large shippers would at once avail themselves of the opportunities.

We sincerely hope you will use your best endeavor to bring about these docking facilities on the shores of Brooklyn.

Yours most respectfully,

GEO. M. TREIBER, Secretary.

Whereas, It has become apparent that there is an urgent need in the Borough of Brooklyn for adequate dock facilities, larger piers and additional warehouse shelter; and

Whereas, The great manufacturing and commercial interests of Brooklyn demand a means of easy access between the main land and our islands; therefore be it

Resolved, That the Broadway Board of Trade most heartily indorse Borough President Littleton's plan for more City docks, and the acquisition by the City of a special water front to provide additional docking facilities, more piers and warehouse shelter.

Resolved, That a copy of these resolutions be sent to his Honor the Mayor, Borough President Littleton, Comptroller Edward M. Grout, the Sinking Fund Commissioners and to the Board of Estimate and Apportionment.

Respectfully submitted,

(Signed) GEORGE M. TREIBER.

Laid over.

The following communication was received from the Commissioner of Docks relative to a lease of the bulkhead at the foot of Forty-eighth street, East river, to the New York City Milling Company:

NEW YORK, May 6, 1905.

N. TAYLOR PHILLIPS, Esq., Secretary, Commissioners of the Sinking Fund:

SIR—An application has been received from the New York City Milling Company for a lease of the bulkhead at the foot of Forty-eighth street, East river.

The bulkhead in question has been for many years occupied by said company, and its predecessors, the last lease at a rental of $640 per annum, having expired August 1, 1904, the company now holding over under the last lease.

I hereby recommend that a lease of the premises be granted for a term of two years from the first day of the month following the date of approval by the Commissioners of the Sinking Fund, rental to be at the rate of $700 per annum; the lease to contain the usual terms and conditions embodied in leases of wharf property now in use by this Department.

The following rentals are now being paid for bulkheads in the vicinity, occupied under lease or permit from this Department:

Foot of East Fortieth street, Brown & Fleming, $600 per annum.

Foot of East Forty-third street, Lehigh Valley Railroad Company, $400 per annum.

Foot of East Forty-fourth street, Lehigh Valley Railroad Company, $800 per annum.

Foot of East Forty-fifth street, Schwarzschild & Sulzberger Company, $600 per annum.

Foot of East Forty-seventh street, Owens & Co., $1,000 per annum. It should be noted, however, that this bulkhead has a return of 112 feet along the southerly line of Forty-seventh street, East river.

Yours respectfully,

MAURICE FEATHERSON, Commissioner.

I have no objections to offer to the approval of the lease as proposed.

HARRY P. NICHOLS,

Principal Assistant Engineer, Department of Finance.

May 15, 1905.

In connection therewith the Comptroller offered the following resolution:

Resolved, That the Commissioners of the Sinking Fund hereby approve of and consent to the execution, by the Commissioner of Docks, of a lease to the New York City Milling Company, of the bulkhead at the foot of Forty-eighth street, East river, for a term of two years, from June 1, 1905, at a rental of seven hundred dollars ($700) per annum; the lease to contain the usual terms and conditions embodied in leases of wharf property now in use by the Department of Docks and Ferries, and as recommended by the Commissioner of Docks in communication dated May 6, 1905.

Which was unanimously adopted.

The following communication was received from the Department of Health relative to a lease of premises at No. 963 Sixth avenue, Borough of Manhattan:

NEW YORK, May 5, 1905.

N. TAYLOR PHILLIPS, Esq., Secretary, Sinking Fund Commission:

DEAR SIR—I am directed by Thomas Darlington, M. D., President of the Board of Health, to respectfully request the Honorable Commissioners of the Sinking Fund to consent to the lease of the three floors above the store located in the premises No. 963 Sixth avenue, Borough of Manhattan, at a rental at the rate of $2,000 per annum, to date from the date of possession and terminating on May 1, 1909.

Such description of the premises as this Department is in possession of is contained in a communication received this day from William H. L. Lee, the representative of the owners of the premises, a copy of which is herewith inclosed for your information.

Respectfully yours,

EUGENE W. SCHEFFER, Secretary.

NEW YORK CITY, May 4, 1905.

F. D. BELL, Esq., Health Department:

DEAR SIR—On behalf of the owners of No. 963 Sixth avenue I beg to offer the three floors thereof above the store for rent at $2,000 a year, on lease beginning as soon as the work hereinafter stated is completed and terminating on May 1, 1909.

The owners are to do the following work with all reasonable promptness:

Scrape paper from walls and halls.

Paint the walls, including ceilings, three coats, woodwork two coats, and paint floors three coats and varnish.

Cut six windows on north side of rooms now lighted by air shaft only.

Wire the three floors in question for electric lighting, and furnish electric light fixtures, with necessary cut-out boxes, switches, etc.

Cut and trim an opening for a bridge from the present Health Department Building (bridge not included).

To furnish steam-heating pipes to basement for connection with present plant in Health Department Building, and furnish radiators in each room.

I understand that you will cause an inspection to be made of the plumbing, which I am confident is in good condition. If I am mistaken as to this I desire to know what defects are to be obviated and a reasonable opportunity to know the cost.

You previously stated that you desired the mantels in the large front and rear rooms on each floor to be removed, but I understand that this is waived.

Nos. 961 and 963 Sixth avenue are really one building, with a common hall. The owners will furnish electric light from fixtures already in the halls in said premises, to a reasonable amount, and will also care for such halls.

Please let me hear from you as promptly as possible. A reasonable notice must be given to the tenants occupying the portion of the premises that it is proposed to lease. It will probably take from three weeks to a month to complete the alterations. Until I hear something definite from you I can proceed no further.

I may add that it is also our intention in view of improving the property to throw the two front rooms one flight up into one, and make three windows in the front instead of two, as is shown in No. 957 Sixth avenue. But whether it is feasible to do this at a reasonable expense cannot be determined offhand. The owners, however, are desirous of doing it as a permanent benefit to the property.

(Signed) WILLIAM H. L. LEE.

A true copy.

EUGENE W. SCHEFFER, Secretary.

NEW YORK CITY, May 11, 1905.

M. J. BROWN, Esq., Real Estate Bureau, Comptroller's Office:

DEAR SIR—Mr. Flatto called this morning in regard to the proposed lease of the second, third and fourth floors of No. 963 Sixth avenue, for the use of the Health Department. The owners can probably get possession on June 1. It will probably take a month to make the required repairs.

Recurring to my letter to F. D. Bell, of the Health Department, dated May 4, I will agree, on behalf of the owners, to do everything therein stated, except what was specified in the last paragraph (this being my own suggestion and not Mr. Bell's), and give a lease from June 1, 1905, to May 1, 1909, at the rate of $1,800 per annum.

I stated to Mr. Flatto that the alterations would cost about $1,500. Since then I am reminded that the Fire Insurance Exchange would probably require iron shutters on the new windows and perhaps that the frames and surroundings of the new windows be made fireproof. I have no time to get an estimate of the cost of this, but will be surprised if it is less than $250. The insurance rates on the whole building, Nos. 961 and 963 Sixth avenue, will also be raised, without doubt.

Our present rentals are:

$40 a month for the second floor (the first floor above the store).

$35 a month for the third floor, to a tenant who has been there many years.

We have been offered $38 a month for the top floor, but pending negotiations with the Health Department, nothing has been done.

Rentals are increasing in this vicinity. Prior to May 1, 1905, the rental of the store and basement of No. 959 Sixth avenue was at the rate of $1,100 a year. For two years from May 1, 1905, it is $1,300 to the same tenant. The store of No. 963 is rented on a sliding scale, running from $1,200 to $1,350 per annum.

The owners of Nos. 959, 961 and 963 Sixth avenue also own Nos. 955 and 957 Sixth avenue, and Nos. 101, 103, 105 and 107 Fifty-fourth street. All of this property has been modernized, except Nos. 959, 961 and 963 Sixth avenue. The owners have not modernized the latter because of the expense, and because of the numerous vacancies in the block opposite. The new owner of the northern half of the block opposite improved it somewhat, and then asked rents which were out of the question, with, of course, many vacancies. This hurt us. I understand that he has now realized his mistake in asking extortionate rents. At all events there are comparatively few vacancies there. The owners deem the time ripe for improvement. If the City does not want the property we will improve on different lines.

To show you the effect upon rentals of the improvements, I send you herewith a table of actual rentals, as they appear from the April statement rendered by the agents, except as regards the top floor of No. 963, recently vacated and held vacant to await your action.

The effect upon rents of modernizing Nos. 955 and 957 Sixth avenue and Nos. 101, 103, 105 and 107 West Fifty-fourth street is no less striking. The agent's monthly statements for many years past are available and at your service.

The apartments in Nos. 957 and 963 have the same floor space: the corresponding apartments in Nos. 959 and 961 have a somewhat smaller floor space. No. 957 is a little better than No. 963, because nearer the corner. In other respects they were almost exactly the same before No. 957 was modernized.

Respectfully,

WILLIAM H. L. LEE.

NEW YORK, May 17, 1905.

Hon. EDWARD M. GROUT, Comptroller, The City of New York:

SIR—In explanation of our request for the lease of three floors in the building at No. 963 Sixth avenue, just south of our present office building, I beg to state that, primarily, we need this room for the Clerks who are to do the reindexing of our death records as provided for in a special appropriation of the Board of Estimate and Apportionment granted March 16, 1905. We shall also place the Clerks who are tabulating the census which is now being taken by the Department in this same building. Provision was made for this census by the Board of Estimate and Apportionment on March 31.

The work of the Department in the last three years has grown to a very large extent and our offices throughout the building are becoming very much overcrowded. In the office of the Assistant Registrar of Records for the Borough of Manhattan there are now working 23 employees. This room contains 1,496 square feet. The room is so crowded that it is difficult to carry on the work in a manner to obtain the best and quickest service. In the office of the Chief Clerk there are 19 employees in a room containing 1,040 square feet. This room is also very much overcrowded.

In both these offices there is a constant stream of people from different parts of the building and from outside the building, which makes the number of people actually in these rooms on an average considerably greater than the numbers given.

There are 58 Policemen attached to the Sanitary Squad who report to the Sergeant in the Borough of Manhattan. The room which we have assigned to the Sergeant, his Roundsman and the Policemen when they report is approximately 9 feet by 12 feet. At roll-call these men are required to line up in a dark hall, there not being sufficient space in any available room. It is intended to shift this office to the new quarters.

Other offices throughout the building are in a similar condition, and the space that will not be used for the census and indexing work in the three floors which we are asking you to lease for us will be used to relieve the congested conditions throughout the building.

Yours respectfully,

THOMAS DARLINGTON, Commissioner.

In connection therewith the Comptroller presented the following report and offered the following resolution:

MAY 12, 1905.

Hon. EDWARD M. GROUT, Comptroller:

SIR—Mr. Eugene W. Scheffer, Secretary of the Department of Health, in a communication to the Sinking Fund Commission under date of May 5, 1905, says:

"I am directed by Thomas Darlington, M. D., President of the Board of Health, to respectfully request the Honorable Commissioners of the Sinking Fund to consent to the lease of the three floors above the store located in the premises No. 963 Sixth avenue, Borough of Manhattan, at a rental at the rate of $2,000 per annum, to date from the date of possession and terminating on May 1, 1909."

The portion of the premises desired to be leased are the three upper floors of a four-story and cellar brick building, 20 by 75 feet, on a lot 20 by 89 feet 10 inches. The fair rental value of the three upper floors of a 20-foot building of this character in Sixth avenue would be about $1,400. Taking the present rental value into consideration, plus the additional expense which the owner will incur in putting the premises in a suitable condition for the use of the Department of Health, and also taking into consideration the proximity of these buildings to the other buildings now occupied by the Department of Health, while I think the rate of $1,800 per annum, now asked, is full value, I do not consider that it is, under the circumstances, excessive, and I would respectfully recommend that the Commissioners of the Sinking Fund adopt a resolution authorizing a lease of the three floors above the store located in the premises No. 963 Sixth avenue, Borough of Manhattan, at an annual rental of $1,800, payable quarterly, the lease to date from the date of occupation and to terminate on May 1, 1909, the time at which the leases of the other buildings expire. The owner is to scrape the paper from walls and halls, paint the walls, including the ceilings, three coats, woodwork two coats, and paint floors three coats and varnish; cut six windows on north side of rooms now lighted by air-shafts only; wire the three floors in question for electric lighting, and furnish electric light fixtures, with necessary cut-out boxes, switches, etc.; cut and trim an opening for a bridge from the present Health Department building to the building under lease, the bridge connecting the same, however, to be built by the Department of Health. The owner is also to furnish and put up steam-heating pipes to basement in workmanlike manner, for connection with the present plant in the Health Department building, and to furnish radiators in each room of the leased property; also to cut out and make good any and all plumbing and plumbing work, fixtures, etc., which the Board of Health, after inspection and under certificate, deems not in good condition. The owner is also to furnish electric light from fixtures already in the halls in said premises, and is to care for the halls. Lessors, Benjamin F. Lee and William H. L. Lee, individually and as executors of and trustees under the will of John Lawrence Lee and Alleine Lee.

Respectfully submitted for approval,

MORTIMER J. BROWN,

Appraiser of Real Estate in Charge of Bureau.

Approved:

N. TAYLOR PHILLIPS, Deputy Comptroller.

Resolved, That the Corporation Counsel be and is hereby requested to prepare a lease to the City from Benjamin F. Lee and William H. L. Lee individually, and as executors of and trustees under the will of John Lawrence Lee and Alleine Lee, of the three floors above the store located in premises No. 963 Sixth avenue, Borough of Manhattan, for the use of the Department of Health, for a term from the date of occupation to May 1, 1909, at an annual rental of eighteen hundred dollars ($1,800), payable quarterly; the owner to scrape the paper from walls and halls, paint the walls, including the ceilings, three coats, woodwork two coats, and paint floors three coats and varnish; cut six windows on north side of rooms now lighted by air-shafts only; wire the three floors in question for electric lighting, and furnish electric light fixtures with necessary cut-out boxes, switches, etc.; cut and trim an opening for a bridge from the present Health Department building to the building under lease, the bridge connecting the same, however, to be built by the Department of Health. The owner is also to furnish and put up steam-heating pipes to basement in workmanlike manner for connection with the present plant in the Health Department building, and to furnish radiators in each room of the leased property; also to cut out and make good any and all plumbing and plumbing work, fixtures, etc., which the Board of Health after inspection and under certificate deems not in good condition; the owner is also to furnish electric light from fixtures already in the halls in said premises and to care for the halls; and the Commissioners of the Sinking Fund deeming the said rent fair and reasonable and that it would be for the interests of the City that such lease be made, the Comptroller be and is hereby authorized and directed to execute the same, when prepared and approved by the Corporation Counsel, as provided by sections 149 and 217 of the Greater New York Charter.

The report was accepted and the resolution unanimously adopted.

The Comptroller presented the following report and offered the following resolution relative to a renewal of the lease of premises in the Long Island City Turn Verein Hall, Kouwenhoven street, near Jamaica avenue, Long Island City, for the use of the Board of Education:

MAY 17, 1905.

Hon. EDWARD M. GROUT, Comptroller:

SIR—The Board of Education at a meeting held March 10, 1905, adopted the following resolution:

"Resolved, That the Commissioners of the Sinking Fund be and they hereby are requested to authorize a renewal of the lease of the southwest room and the ante-room on the first floor, and the use of the basement in the Long Island City Turn Verein Hall, Kouwenhoven street, near Jamaica avenue, Long Island City, Borough of Queens, on a month to month basis, from August 1, 1905, at a rental at the rate of $400 per annum, otherwise on the same terms and conditions as contained in the existing lease. Owners, Long Island City Turn Verein, Incorporated."

The Bureau of Buildings and the Department of Health, having reported on its condition as being suitable for school purposes, I would respectfully recommend that the Commissioners of the Sinking Fund adopt a resolution authorizing a renewal of the lease of the southwest room and ante-room on the first floor and the basement of the premises on Kouwenhoven street, near Jamaica avenue, Long Island City, Borough of Queens, for a period from month to month from August 1, 1905, but that such period shall in no event exceed twelve months at a rental of $400 per annum, payable monthly, otherwise upon the same terms and conditions as contained in the existing lease. Lessor, Long Island City Turn Verein, Incorporated.

Respectfully submitted for approval,

MORTIMER J. BROWN,

Appraiser of Real Estate in Charge of Bureau.

Resolved, That the Commissioners of the Sinking Fund hereby approve of and consent to the execution, by the Board of Education, of a renewal of the lease to the City, from the Long Island City Turn Verein (Incorporated), of the southwest room and the ante-room on the first floor and the use of the basement in the Long Island City Turn Verein Hall, Kouwenhoven street, near Jamaica avenue, Long Island City, Borough of Queens, for a period, from month to month, commencing August 1, 1905, at a rental of thirty-three dollars and thirty-three cents ($33.33) per month, such period in no event to exceed twelve months, otherwise on the same terms and conditions as contained in the existing lease; the Commissioners of the Sinking Fund deeming the said rent fair and reasonable and that it would be for the interests of the City that such lease be made.

The report was accepted and the resolution unanimously adopted.

The following communication was received from the Police Department relative to an amendment to resolution authorizing a lease of premises, corner Second avenue and First street, College Point, Borough of Queens:

NEW YORK, May 11, 1905.

Respectfully submitted for approval,

MORTIMER J. BROWN,

Appraiser of Real Estate in Charge of Bureau.
Department of Finance.

May 17, 1905.

In connection therewith the Comptroller offered the following resolution:

Donnelly of the three-story and basement frame dwelling and stable, on the southeast corner of Second avenue and First street, College Point, Borough of Queens, for the use of the Police Department, for a term of five years from May 1, 1905, at an annual rental of nine hundred dollars ($900), payable quarterly; the lessor to put in a steam heating plant and make whatever repairs that may be required by the Police Department and to put the premises in first-class order for station-house purposes, and also to repair the stable, be and the same is hereby amended by adding after the words "and also to repair the stable," the words "the City to pay the water rent."

Which was referred to the Comptroller for investigation and report.

The following communication was received from the Department of Street Cleaning, relative to an amendment to resolution authorizing a lease of premises at No. 18 Burling slip, Borough of Manhattan:

NEW YORK, May 9, 1905.

Hon. GEORGE B. McCLELLAN, Mayor, Chairman Board of Commissioners of the Sinking Fund:

SIR—I request that your Board amend its resolution of February 28, 1905, approving of and consenting to a renewal of the lease from I. N. Phelps Stokes of the store or ground floor and basement beneath of the building known as No. 18 Burling slip, in the Borough of Manhattan, so as to make the term, instead of "five years from August 1, 1905," be for a term of four years and nine months, so that the lease will terminate May 1, 1910, instead of August 1, 1910.

Respectfully,

JOHN McG. WOODBURY, Commissioner.

I see no reason why the request of the Commissioner of the Department of Street Cleaning should not be approved by the Commissioners of the Sinking Fund, and the resolution adopted February 28, 1905, be amended, in accordance with his request.

Respectfully submitted for approval,

MORTIMER J. BROWN,

Appraiser of Real Estate in Charge of Bureau
Department of Finance.

Ordered printed.
EDWARD M. GROUT, Comptroller.

The Comptroller presented the following report and offered the following resolutions relative to the setting apart, out of the revenues and income of the Sinking Fund of The City of New York, for the Redemption of the City Debt, the sum of $219,941.15 for the Redemption of Bonds and Stock, and determining to invest $11,000,000 in General Fund Bonds of The City of New York:

MAY 22, 1905.

To the Commissioners of the Sinking Fund:

GENTLEMEN—Chapter 103 of the Laws of 1903, entitled "An act to amend the Greater New York Charter relative to the Sinking Fund of The City of New York, for the Redemption of the City Debt, by adding a new section to be known as section two hundred and twenty-two, providing for the issue of additional bonds of The City of New York, to be called General Fund Bonds, and by amending section one hundred and sixty-nine of said Charter," provides:

First—"The Board of Commissioners of the Sinking Fund, in the year 1903 and in each year thereafter until all of the bonds and stock which are redeemable from the fund known as the 'Sinking Fund of The City of New York for the Redemption of the City Debt' shall have matured, shall set apart out of the revenues and income of said Sinking Fund, except the income and accumulation thereof derived from assets held by said Sinking Fund on January 1, 1903, and except also the income and accumulation thereof derived from the amount to be thus annually set apart, a sum which, with the accumulation of interest thereon, together with the said assets of said Sinking Fund and the earnings and accumulations thereof, shall be sufficient to redeem at maturity all the bonds and stock of The City of New York which are redeemable from said 'Sinking Fund'."

Second—"At least five weeks before the annual meeting of the Board of Aldermen, in each and every year, for the purpose of receiving the assessment rolls required to be delivered by the Board of Taxes and Assessments to the Board of Aldermen, the Board of Commissioners of the Sinking Fund may, in its discretion, certify to the Board of Aldermen the amount as estimated by said Board of Commissioners of revenues or income, from all sources, of 'The Sinking Fund of The City of New York for the Redemption of the City Debt' during the then calendar year, and also the amount required by this section to be set apart for such calendar year out of such revenues and income for the Redemption of Bonds and Stock."

Third—"If in any year the said estimated amount of revenues or income of said Sinking Fund, excepting the income and accumulation thereof derived from the assets held by said Sinking Fund on January first, nineteen hundred and three, and from the amounts annually set apart for the Redemption of Bonds and Stock as by this section required, shall exceed the amount required to be set apart in such year as in this section provided, the Board of Commissioners of the Sinking Fund may, in its discretion, at the time of making said certificates to the Board of Aldermen, determine to invest the whole or any part of the amount of such excess in General Fund Bonds of The City of New York for the account of 'the Sinking Fund of The City of New York for the Redemption of the City Debt,' but such investments shall not be made in any year until the amount required by this section to be set apart for such year, as provided herein, shall have been so set apart."

Fourth—"The Board of Commissioners of the Sinking Fund shall then notify the Board of Aldermen and the Comptroller of the amount it has determined to invest in general fund bonds during the current year, and the Comptroller shall include said amount in the certificate of estimated revenues of the general fund required to be by him made to the Board of Aldermen pursuant to section nine hundred of this act."

Commissioners of the Sinking Fund.

The Comptroller presented the following report and offered the following resolution, relative to an amendment to section 1553 of the Charter, known as chapter 515 of the Laws of 1905:

MAY 22, 1905.

Hon. EDWARD M. GROUT, Comptroller:

SIR—The following act, amending the Greater New York Charter, which met with the approval of both Houses of the Legislature, of his Honor the Mayor, and of the Governor of the State, became a law on the 17th day of May, 1905. The new law amending section 1553 is known as chapter 515 of the Laws of 1905, and reads as follows:

"An Act to amend the Greater New York Charter, being chapter three hundred and seventy-eight of the laws of eighteen hundred and ninety-seven, as amended, relative to acquiring lands for public purposes.

"The people of the State of New York, represented in Senate and Assembly, do enact as follows:

"Section 1. Section one thousand five hundred and fifty-three, chapter four hundred and sixty-six of the laws of nineteen hundred and one, entitled 'An Act to amend the Greater New York Charter,' is hereby amended to read as follows:

"Sec. 1553. All property sold shall be sold at auction, after previous public notice, under the superintendence of the appropriate head of department, except real property, including buildings, fixtures and machinery therein, which shall be sold at public auction, after previous public notice, pursuant to a resolution adopted by the commissioners of the sinking fund, and such sale shall be under the supervision of said commissioners and not otherwise. The proceeds of all sales made under and by virtue of this act shall, except as herein otherwise specially provided, be by the officer receiving the same immediately deposited with the chamberlain, and the account of sales, verified by the officer making the sales, shall be immediately filed in the office of the comptroller.

"Sec. 2. This Act shall take effect immediately."

In accordance with the laws and ordinances of the City, the Comptroller is the custodian of all real estate belonging to the Corporation, and when property is acquired the Collector of City Revenue is directed to take charge thereof and rent the property monthly, until the department, board or officer for whom it was acquired notifies the Department of Finance that on a certain day the property should be turned over in order that the contractors may proceed with the improvements.

Inasmuch as the Collector of City Revenue rents the property from month to month, it has been the custom to turn the property over thirty days after the receipt of the communication requesting its transfer. Under this act this is not sufficient time properly to make a transfer, and I would respectfully request that a resolution be adopted, embodying in it the amended section 1553, and that all departments, boards and officers in requesting transfers of property should present a written request to the Commissioners of the Sinking Fund at least sixty days prior to the time the property is required for improvement, in order that the Commissioners may, by resolution, take such action as the amendment requires.

Respectfully submitted for approval,

MORTIMER J. BROWN,
Appraiser of Real Estate in Charge of Bureau.

Approved:

EDWARD M. GROUT, Comptroller.

Whereas, An Act, known as chapter 515 of the Laws of 1905, amending section 1553 of the Greater New York Charter, became a law on the 17th day of May, 1905, which said Act reads as follows:

"An Act to amend the Greater New York Charter, being chapter three hundred and seventy-eight of the laws of eighteen hundred and ninety-seven, as amended, relative to acquiring lands for public purposes.

"The people of the State of New York, represented in Senate and Assembly, do enact as follows:

"Section 1. Section one thousand five hundred and fifty-three, chapter four hundred and sixty-six of the laws of nineteen hundred and one, entitled 'An Act to amend the Greater New York Charter,' is hereby amended to read as follows:

"Sec. 1553. All property sold shall be sold at auction, after previous public notice, under the superintendence of the appropriate head of department, except real property, including buildings, fixtures and machinery therein, which shall be sold at public auction, after previous public notice, pursuant to a resolution adopted by the commissioners of the sinking fund, and such sale shall be under the supervision of said commissioners and not otherwise. The proceeds of all sales made under and by virtue of this act shall, except as herein otherwise specially provided, be by the officer receiving the same immediately deposited with the chamberlain, and the account of sales, verified by the officer making the sales, shall be immediately filed in the office of the comptroller.

Therefore be it

Resolved, That, in accordance therewith, all departments, boards and officers are hereby directed and required to present to the Commissioners of the Sinking Fund all requests for transfers or assignments of property acquired for their use and which they desire possession of for purposes of improvement. Such requests are to be in writing and must be transmitted at least sixty days prior to the time when such property is required; and be it further

Resolved, That all departments, boards and officers be notified that from and after May 18, 1905, in awarding contracts for construction of buildings the value of the improvements on the land must not be included in the specifications for bidders.

The report was accepted and the resolution unanimously adopted.

Adjourned.

N. TAYLOR PHILLIPS, Secretary.

The following reports and resolutions were also adopted:

The Committee on Lectures and Libraries respectfully reports that it has had under consideration a report from the Superintendent of Libraries, submitting tables apportioning $54,352.72 for public school libraries for 1905.

The annual reports of Principals show that we have increased the number of our class libraries from 7,981 last year to 9,175 in 1905. There are in these class libraries 316,563 books, or an average of 34 in each class room, a gain of 70,415 volumes over last year. There are in the Teachers' reference libraries 113,689 books, or a gain of 20,277 over last year, making a total of 450,252 books in the whole school library of Greater New York, a gain of 90,692 books over the previous year. The circulation of the class-room libraries for the term from September 12, 1904, to February 1, 1905, amounted to 2,553,075, showing that each book was drawn on an average eight times. From the Teachers' reference libraries 133,197 books were drawn, making the total circulation of the school libraries for the first five months of the school year 2,668,469. These figures do not include the reference use in school, of which no record is kept, but only the number of books which have been drawn and taken out by the pupils and Teachers.

Some idea of the extent and success of this work may be had by comparison. No public library in the country can show more satisfactory statistics. The last printed report of the circulating department of the New York Public Library shows that there are in the different circulating branches 384,399 books. The circulation reported for the twelve months July 1, 1903, to June, 1904, is 3,291,374, or the largest recorded circulation of any free public library of the United States.

It is of interest to note that the largest number of books are used by the fourth grade, where the children range from ten to twelve years of age, and that the home use of library books begins to decrease at this point as the regular school work becomes more difficult, the total number of books drawn in the fourth year being 433,821, and the total number of books drawn in the eighth year being less than one-half, or 182,717.

Your Committee would recommend that each grammar school be allowed twenty cents for each book required, or one-third of the average cost; that each primary school be allowed fifteen cents, or one-quarter the average cost (books for the primary grades cost less than those for the grammar grades, but wear out much more rapidly); that each school be instructed to draw fifteen per cent. (15%) of its total apportionment for reference books, if needed, with the understanding that the whole amount may be spent for class libraries; that such schools as report complete class libraries, or fifty books per class, be allowed one dollar per class for any additional books needed, and that the special apportionment to eight Manhattan schools, three Bronx schools and twelve Brooklyn schools be increased (as per attached table) for the reason that they have applied for more funds on the ground that many books reported are old and not suited to their needs, and that allowance should be made for withdrawals; also that extra allowance should be made for reference books where the class-room libraries are nearly complete.

Two Manhattan schools, five Brooklyn schools and one Queens school have been allowed no library money for the reason that they have books enough, have no accommodations for more books or no satisfactory reports on libraries have been received, and that one school is to be abandoned.

Attached hereto will be found the apportionment on the basis given above.

Your Committee therefore submits for adoption the following resolution:

Resolved, That the recommendations presented herewith and the apportionment of $54,352.78 for public school libraries (as per attached tables) be and they are hereby approved.

Historical Note.

On February 19, 1805, there was held at the house of Mr. John Murray, Jr., No. 335 Pearl street, the meeting of citizens that led to the organization of the Free School Society, which, in 1826, became the Public School Society. The object was to establish free schools for poor children. De Witt Clinton and a noble band of co-workers were associated in the movement. Funds were raised by popular subscription and the first school was opened May 19, 1806. The society handled the public school moneys and had charge of public education in the city for nearly forty years. In 1842 the Board of Education was established, consisting of two Commissioners of Common Schools, elected for each of the seventeen wards. The Public School Society continued its work until 1853, when it was united with the Board of Education, then consisting of forty-four members. Fifteen Trustees of the Society served as members of the Board until 1855. In 1864 the membership was reduced to twenty-one, and in 1869 to twelve; in 1873 it again became twenty-one.

The Brooklyn Board of Education, consisting of three members from each of ten school districts, was organized in 1843. In 1850 the number of members was fixed at thirty-three, and in 1855, when Williamsburg and Bushwick were consolidated with Brooklyn, the membership was increased to forty-five.

Prior to 1898 there were in the present Borough of Queens (excepting Long Island City, which had its own Board of Education), thirty-five school districts, and in what is now the Borough of Richmond twenty-nine districts; each district had a Board of Education or a Board of Trustees.

Under the original Greater New York Charter, the New York Board of Education in 1898 became the School Board for Manhattan and The Bronx; the Brooklyn Board of Education became the School Board for Brooklyn, and School Boards of nine members each were created for the other boroughs. The Board of Education for the Greater City was composed of nineteen members—the Presidents of the four School Boards, ten delegates from the Manhattan-Bronx School Board and five delegates from the Brooklyn School Board.

The revised Charter of 1901 provided a Board of Education for the entire city, composed of forty-six members appointed by the Mayor—twenty-two for Manhattan, fourteen for Brooklyn, four for The Bronx, four for Queens and two for Richmond. There are forty-six Local School Boards, each composed of five members appointed by the Borough President, a member of the Board of Education, and a District Superintendent.

The first City Superintendent of Schools in the former City of New York was appointed in 1851; in Brooklyn there was a City Superintendent in 1848. Associated with the City Superintendent at present are eight Associate City Superintendents; together they constitute the Board of Superintendents, which nominates Teachers, subject to confirmation by the Board of Education, and recommends courses of study, text-books, scholastic supplies, etc. There are twenty-six District Superintendents; twenty-three are assigned to the work of school supervision, one to evening schools, one to assist in supervision of high schools, and one to vacation schools, etc. All examinations of persons seeking appointment as Teachers are conducted by a Board of Examiners, consisting of the City Superintendent and four Examiners.

The public school system comprises two training schools, fourteen high schools, five high school departments, four hundred and eighty-one elementary schools, two truant schools, and one nautical school. There are 13,444 regular Teachers, and the average monthly registration of pupils for 1904 was 540,389.

Hon. Henry N. Tift, President of the Board of Education, presided, and introduced the speakers.

Unfortunately, his Honor the Mayor was unable to be present; a letter written by him was read by President Tift. The Mayor's letter and the addresses delivered are given in full herewith.

Letter from Mayor McClellan.

City of New York—Office of the Mayor, }
February 18, 1905. }

Hon. M. DWIGHT COLLIER, Board of Education, City of New York:

Sir—I deeply regret the circumstance which denies to me the privilege of taking part in the celebration of the one hundredth anniversary of the founding of the public schools.

Here in New York we take a share of the responsibility of public education larger than is put upon other localities, for as the gate of the western hemisphere we receive the children of many countries ignorant of our speech and our institutions, and capable of being made into good Americans by a school course which teaches devotion to our institutions.

The education of our children is the most costly part of the work of the municipality. Almost a quarter of our Annual Budget goes to that cause, and New York pays, in fact, a per capita tax of $50 per annum on every school child; but this is an investment that will bring returns greater than we can estimate in figures.

Free education is inseparable from free speech and a free ballot, and while we have these three we need have no apprehension for the perpetuity of the Republic.

Yours very truly,

GEORGE B. McCLELLAN, Mayor.

Hon. Edward M. Shepard.

It is always fit to commemorate the faith and wise foresight of those who have served mankind. Surely among them were the twelve citizens—it were hardly irrelevant to call them an apostolic body—who met at the dwelling of John Murray, Jr., in Pearl street, on Monday evening, yesterday a century ago. Even this unique and splendid celebration gives their memory no more than is their due. It was in 1876 that the love which Americans bore their country, their just pride in its past, their deep and strong belief in its future, celebrated the centenary of the Declaration of Independence. In 1889 it was that the same love of country and pride and faith celebrated the centenary of the definite making of our nation by the inauguration of our Federal Constitution and of its first President, who was and is first in the hearts of his countrymen. The event whose centenary we honor to-night is truly comparable in essential dignity, in deep, far-reaching, beneficent result, with those famous and shining events of our national career. The crowns which, a hundred years ago, Napoleon I. set upon his own head in Notre Dame and the Cathedral of Milan with magnificence which amazed the world in truth signified nothing when compared with the cause of public and free education, for which, at the very same time—a hundred years ago—those citizens were making their humble plan. The Napoleonic crowns have gone to that junkshop which divine justice keeps for the bankrupt sales of selfish and ambitious glory. The marvelous history which began at that Pearl street meeting has, on the other hand, grown more and more in glory, so that we know that the bicentenary and tercentenary will find the glory as fresh as it is to-night, and far enlarged beyond our present imagination.

The proposal of the twelve men gathered in that downtown dwelling was of one free school for the "children of the poor"—for children—so they wrote it down—who were "miserable and almost friendless . . . inheriting those vices which idleness and the bad example of their parents naturally produce," and who were "not provided for by any religious society." The first small school-house of the Free School Society was opened on Madison street, near Pearl, in May, 1806; and by 1820, fourteen years later, the society had four schools with twelve hundred children. No children of parents able to pay were admitted; education was given as mere charity to the destitute. The society had to seek aid from the State, but got it meagrely. A proposed tax for free education of one-thirtieth of 1 per cent. on the assessed valuation of the City was rejected. Those first schools were hardly more than the old-fashioned dame schools. Only the simplest elements of English education were taught. In 1812 the State definitely established a public system of free common schools. Then arose the weather-beaten school-house at the cross-roads, famous in its red paint or unpainted dilapidation and for the "spelling bees"—the school-house which spread to the western and northern boundaries of the State with its settlement—the school-house from which graduated most of the statesmen and orators and merchant princes of this first of American commonwealths.

But until 1842 our City itself did not support or control free schools. The Free School Society owned and supported all the non-sectarian free schools within the limits of the old City. They were, as I have said, "charity schools," like those of several religious denominations, to whose high-minded activity the American metropolis owes so great a part of its success. It is sixty-three years ago that in 1842 the common school system, which thirty years before in 1812—and doubtless then to some extent under the inspiration of the Free School Society—had been established in the State, was extended to the City, and that to administer this new and public system the Board of Education was created. Free public schools, correctly speaking, then began in the Borough of Manhattan. There had already been common schools in the other boroughs under the law of 1812 and later laws of the State. But it was in 1842 that in this borough was first and plainly affirmed that relation of the City itself, as the political representative of the entire body of citizens to the cause of education—that relation which to-night makes up the greater part of our glad retrospect and of our glad forecast. The City was served for eleven years after 1842 by both the schools of the Free School Society and the public schools under the Board of Education. In 1853, and after a beneficent career of forty-eight years, and the labors almost sacred of DeWitt Clinton and Thomas Eddy and John Murray, Jr., and Stephen Allen and Peter Cooper and others of equal rank, but too many for me now to mention, the Society surrendered its schools to the City. Then it was that the sum of free public education in this City—not as charity work for the poor and distressed, but as a primary and noble function of the municipality—had climbed far above the horizon and was there without a rival luminary in the sky to be compared with it in power and promise.

Six years before, in 1847, the people of the City by a great majority had voted to crown their free educational system with a free academy or college—intended to co-ordinate and dignify the common schools, whether of the primary or grammar grades. In the admirable work on our public schools which Mr. Palmer, the Secretary of the Board, has just published, he quotes with seeming approval the declaration of an earlier historian—our dear old friend, Thomas Boese—that, after the opening in 1849 of the Free Academy (now the College of the City of New York), "those who had theretofore held aloof from all public schools now sent their children." Between 1840 and 1850 it was that the City resolved that its public schools should be the very best of schools—public or private—so that all citizens, whether rich or poor, might be glad to send their children there—not as objects of charity, but after the noble fashion of a true democracy, already practiced in New England, and practically recognize the truth that the scholar knows no pedigree or rank except those of his scholarship.

Once the City had well laid hold of the true doctrine of public education—once the children of bankers and mechanics, of lawyers and day laborers, had found in the public schools the finest education to be found anywhere—the growth of the system was swift and steady and massive. The new school buildings erected between 1850 and 1860 were as far superior to the earlier buildings of the Free School Society as they were inferior to the superb buildings which our City, in this Twentieth Century, rejoices to give every one of its boroughs. The courses of study were enlarged and ordered according to the best wisdom and experience which, in Western Europe and in the United States, wealth and power had invited to the education of the so-called "upper classes." The "Three Rs," instead of the end of a free education, were to be but the beginning. Language and science and art came to help—at first timidly and experimentally, and then more and more surely and largely. In 1847 night schools, which the old Society had attempted, became as definite a part of the system as were the day schools. In 1854 music was made a delightful and invaluable part of the authorized course. The barbarism of corporal punishment was prohibited in 1870. In 1873 the Board of Education opened a nautical school at this greatest of American seaports. The standard of qualification for teachers—and, with a corresponding justice, the rates of their salaries—were raised again and again. The normal classes, begun by the old Society, became normal schools, not a matter of rule-of-thumb, but because more and more it was seen that teaching was a great profession like the law or medicine or theology, and required its own training, its own university courses. Later, and in our day—for they began only twenty years ago—manual training classes and schools were set up. In these later years, indeed, how accelerated and wonderful the momentum of the work. The establishment of free lectures in 1888 and of kindergartens in 1893—the creation in 1894 of the retirement or pension fund for teachers—the systematic display over every schoolhouse of the flag which, for Americans, means liberty and law and love of country—the enormous stride forward upon the creation in 1897 of the high school system, in which we adopted and bettered the example of Massachusetts and other States—the still greater stride forward, when in 1899, the appointment and promotion of teachers were given the full safeguards of civil service reform—it being at last clearly seen that favoritism, whether political or social, or personal, in the choice of teachers, is a crime against the rising generation and a true treason to our commonwealth. In 1898 vacation schools were definitely and permanently opened. The complete organization in 1902 and 1903 of the High School of Commerce and of the Girls' Technical High School, and in 1904 of the Stuyvesant High School for manual training—these illustrate the present high tide of the educational activity of Greater New York. I am not yet clear—though less doubtful than I used to be—that the beneficence of all-day playgrounds and afternoon playgrounds and evening play classes and recreation piers and swimming baths, ought to be part of the work of the Board, over which Mr. Tift presides. Perhaps they ought to be in another jurisdiction. But whether so or not, they illustrate the untiring and affluent genius which now inspires the work of the Board. Nor would the hours until midnight and the sma' wee hours until morning be enough fitly to recite the other principal items of the present work of the Board.

Perhaps figures will help some to better realize this right royal progress of the sovereign people of New York. To know that our City population (including Brooklyn) increased from 64,000 in 1800 to 615,000 in 1850; and that free and unsectarian schools, of which there were none in 1800, in 1850 came to educate 38,000 children, at an annual cost of less than $300,000; to know that the population from 1850 to 1900 increased from 615,000 to 3,400,000, or to five fold, but that public school attendance in the same half century increased from 38,000 to 378,000, or to ten fold, and that the annual cost increased from less than $300,000 to $22,000,000, or to seventy fold; to know that the maintenance of free schools was not an item in the municipal budget of 1805, but that in 1905, the City College and Normal College being included, the $22,500,000 appropriated represents by far the largest expense of The City of New York in any of its departments, and more than one-fourth part of its entire current expenses; to know of the stately buildings of the City College now rising and already so fair to see on St. Nicholas Heights, and of the new buildings—hardly less magnificent—of the newly built high schools and grammar schools; to remember that until less than ten years ago the public school teacher, venerable in service and disabled in his performance of duty, which had been precious to the City, was to be turned out, perhaps, to beggary, by those she or he had served, and to know to-night that more than a half million dollars is shared for annual pensions by more than seven hundred Teachers, who find that New York has learned both the duty and delight of gratitude—all these things, and many other like things are impressive.

But as we read or hear so wonderful a history, its wealth of color and vivid interest must not make us lose sight of the underlying and dynamic growth of the great idea it represents. Here is a lesson in democracy to be studied, not only by statesmen and philosophers, but by every good citizen. In ancient and mediæval days and the greater part of modern times, education was something for the very small number of the higher and governing classes. If a slave turned out to be an Epictetus, it was his prime duty to teach his master the use of the philosophical gift unfitted to his humble station. The mass of men were thought of by their rulers as a great unthinking beast to be curbed and beaten. The grove in which Plato taught, the colleges of William of Wykeham, or the schools lighted up by the romance of Abelard and Eloise, were for aristocracies or their humble dependents. Even then there were poor scholars—many of them. Even then scholarship insisted upon ripening in its own soil; but poor scholars were on sufferance. If kings and nobles and prelates aided education, it was that the church and themselves might be better served. Elementary education of the masses was not thought of. When the idea entered the minds of men, as it did in Pearl street a hundred years ago last night, it was, as I have said, strictly of a charity, as De Witt Clinton and his associates expressed it, "for poor children," "unfortunate children." A chief purpose of free education in this City was, as Governor Seward said, "to gather the young from the streets and wharves." Therefore it was that public education needed to be elementary, to extend only until the boys and girls were old enough to work with their hands; and in those days there was no Child Labor Law.

Truly it was a glorious change which came between 1840 and 1850. If the State and City helped education to carry its blessings to the poor, the poor brought no less a blessing to education. The children of the rich, even in their own schools, now enjoy a standard of education which would never have been reached, had not the masses, who accepted the invitation of the State to a free education, made of education what it never could have been under private auspices or confined to the well-to-do—a great business which required great income, great plants, great leaders, great statesmanship. The change from the old to the new theory sixty years ago meant that the citizenship of New York clearly saw that intellectual gifts were the prerogative of no class, and that the Republic would take harm if the intellectual gifts of any boy should be stifled or fail of their just fruition. Perhaps this ought to have been known before; the record of philosophers, bishops, statesmen, generals without number, and even emperors, who came from the peasantry, might have taught the truth, which, to-night, we find so obvious. The plainest things are often the longest hidden. Our common schools forever exploded the aristocratic or esoteric assumption that fit capacity for any education, whether in the spelling book or in Celestial Mechanics, dwells only among favored classes. This triumph of democracy accompanied universal suffrage and helped to establish it.

While free public education is to-day by far the largest and most important of all the duties of the government of Greater New York, the dominance of that duty will become relatively greater and greater as men further grow out of barbarism. The time will come when, instead of another battleship, the American people will build another college, when instead of another torpedo boat they will found another kindergarten.

Much as I rejoice at this enlargement of our educational system, I venture humbly upon one note of caution. Organization and discipline in this system are necessary. They have done great things for education, and especially of late years under men with us to-night. But do not over-organize. Do not let educational activity—that offspring of a free and joyous spirit—be moulded upon a law of Medes and Persians, which altereth not. A true teacher is a leader, not a martinet. Do not compel him or her, when his station is in Little Italy, or on the East Side, to fear to think or even to practice some new thing not laid down in the manual, or, perhaps not suitable to pupils in some Brooklyn district, who have inherited New England blood and Calvinistic theology.

For, after all, ladies and gentlemen, the whole fabric of our educational system must at last be resolved into the individual man or woman who stands before the class, and who, whether in the kindergarten or the normal college or the free college, must truly be, for them who sit before him or her, their "guide, philosopher and friend."

It is difficult to wish a school boy, whatever his own career or achievements shall be, a better gift than the lifelong continuance of his veneration and affection for his teacher. Spite of all the grandeur of the growth of the free schools of the City since I was a pupil in them, it is difficult for me to believe that any class could be more wisely or more effectively taught than that Senior A in old No. 13, Degraw street, Brooklyn, when it was taught by Miss Julia Nicholas, or that highest class in old No. 40 in East Twentieth street, Manhattan, when it was taught by George Harrison; or that any school could be a better school than old No. 35, in Thirteenth street, when President Hunter was its Principal, or that any welcome to a college could be more impressive and exhilarating than that which Professor Barton and Professor Werner and Professor Compton gave to the students who went up to the Free Academy. Because the personal equation is so great, I beg you, gentlemen of the Board of Education, to respect the teacher's freedom. It is out of the ungrudging personal respect in which he or she is held, out of his energy, his buoyancy, his love of his work, his satisfaction in the promise of his career, his generous access to the air and sunshine and hope of life—it is out of all these there must come the abiding usefulness of the public school. Splendid buildings and books and apparatus are only tools for the Teacher—good for nothing save as he uses them. He is the most powerful citizen of us all. His work far less written in water than that of most men. May he, may she, realize the power, the opportunity, the responsibility. May you, Mayors and Presidents, Members of Boards, Superintendents and others in authority, and may we, your loyal fellow citizens, no less realize our debt of gratitude to this noblest of all callings.

Dr. Thomas Hunter.

I may claim to be the Nestor of the public schools of this City; if not, I must be very near that honor. The King of Pylos lived three ages; that is to say, ninety years. I have lived only two ages and a half, but hope, if God please, to finish the other half before I join the majority. Fifty-five of these years have been devoted to the service of this City solely in the Education Department; six years as Assistant Teacher, twelve as Principal, and more than thirty-five as President of the Normal College. I helped to organize the first evening high school in New York and, as far as I can learn, the first in the United States. I helped to organize the first kindergarten at public expense in this City. And I was the executive officer in organizing the institution of which I have the honor to be the head.

The Past, the Present and the Future.

You will pardon these personal remarks for the reason that I took part in some of the improvements in the system of public education in this City. Also for another reason I may be excused, and that is it is the recognized privilege of the old to be reminiscent; to tell how much better everything was when they were young; how superior were the preaching, the acting, the oratory, the statesmanship and the schools and colleges in the olden time. The fact is, this pessimistic view of present conditions as compared with the past only proves that the old, in most cases, have not kept step with the march toward better and higher things. Realizing this danger, remembering that it is the habit of youth to live in the future, of middle age to live in the present and of old age to live in the past, I have endeavored to keep young even in my seventy-fourth year; and instead of feeling pessimistic I feel thoroughly optimistic, believing with all my heart that the future will be much better than the past or present. History shows that civilization progresses in a peculiarly uneven and desultory manner; at one time it advances with great rapidity; at another it stands still, and again moves backward. Civilization is like an incoming tide, with its receding as well as advancing waves, but the latter are always longer and stronger than the former.

Reminiscences.

Assuming then, my privilege of being reminiscent on an occasion like the present, the centenary of the public free school system, I may be excused for being a little personal in describing some of the important events, changes and revolutions which have occurred during the fifty-five years of my service. In the middle of the last century Fourteenth street was the northern boundary of New York. There were clusters of houses, here and there, named Yorkville, Bloomingdale, Harlem, Manhattanville, etc., etc. The College of The City of New York, then the Free Academy, recently erected, was nearly half a mile out of town. It was then a very rough building, constructed of the poorest material, with nothing to commend it except the beauty of its architecture. Perhaps nothing will show better the vast progress of the City in half a century than a comparison of the little edifice on Twenty-third street with the magnificent cluster of buildings on Harlem Heights. The population of The City of New York was at that time in round numbers one-eighth what it is to-day. In the thickly populated territory lying between Sixth avenue and the East river and between Fourteenth and Forty-second streets, containing at the present time at least 300,000 inhabitants, there were, in 1850, a little less than ten thousand people.

The Two School Systems.

At the time of which I speak there were in this City two systems of public free schools, one managed and governed by a corporation known as the Public School Society and the other by school officers elected by the people. It is not necessary to enter into the bitter and protracted controversy which, in 1842, led to the establishment of the ward schools. Suffice it to say that at this period the public schools of New York were nearly evenly divided between the two systems as to numbers. Sometimes a public school and a ward school existed in the same street within a stone's throw of each other. The ward schools, partly on account of their popular government and partly on account of obtaining more money, and offering better salaries to the teachers, increased greatly in attendance and efficiency; while, on the other hand, the public schools not only stood still in numbers, but declined in popularity, because for lack of funds the Public School Society was unable to retain its best teachers, who obtained employment under the new system at larger salaries.

The Public School Society.

Far be it from me to find the least fault with the grand and noble work performed by the Public School Society. A more philanthropic body of men never existed. For fifty years it toiled with limited means to furnish a good common school education to a large and growing class of the community which, but for the society, might never have received any instruction whatever. Its labors in behalf of the poor and neglected children were of vast moral importance. The work of the society was the best preventive of vice and crime. It needs no stretch of the imagination to realize what would have been the condition of New York, the most rapidly growing city of the world, with its hordes of ignorant immigrants, had not the Public School Society stepped forward in 1805, to save the youth of the city destined to the greatest in the world. Having done a good work in its day and generation, the society in 1853 went out of existence, being merged into the popular ward school system.

With the best intention, and perhaps as a matter of necessity, the Public School Society, in introducing the system of teaching by means of "indentured apprentices," called monitors, injured the profession of teaching by reducing it to a trade. The monitorial system—that is, the using the older and brighter children to teach the younger and duller—was the almost simultaneous invention of Dr. Bell and Mr. Lancaster. Perhaps neither was aware that the practice of using children to teach children had prevailed for generations in the Orient, in Turkey, Egypt, Persia and Hindostan. One can readily form an idea of the result of placing raw and immature boys and girls, thirteen or fourteen years old, to govern and teach young and timid children in the days of the vigorous application of corporal punishment. Nevertheless, for a few years, this system became quite popular in England and America, chiefly because it was so cheap. George III. was so favorably impressed with the monitorial system that he contributed the munificent sum of 100 pounds sterling toward its support.

The Ward Schools.

In most respects the government of the ward schools was admirable, democratic and popular. The law provided for two Commissioners, two Inspectors and five Trustees in each ward. There were twenty-two wards; and hence for the City there were forty-four Commissioners, forty-four Inspectors and one hundred and ten Trustees. The Commissioners formed the Board of Education, but each Commissioner was a Trustee, ex-officio, in his own ward, with the right to vote on all questions. As Trustee, the Commissioner could learn the wants of his ward in the way of new schools and the repairs of old ones. The law was so arranged that one Commissioner, one Inspector and one Trustee went out of office each year. This brought the schools very near the people. If one of these officers neglected his duty he failed of re-election; if he thoroughly performed it he was chosen again and again. In a great measure party spirit was suppressed in the election of school officers under the ward school system. In government with its two legislative bodies, it resembled the Senate and House of Representatives.

Changes in School Government.

It was claimed that a Board of Education consisting of forty-four members was too large and unwieldy and that a smaller board could do the work more efficiently. It was also claimed that some of the lower wards elected Commissioners who had only a primary school to represent, while other Commissioners represented eight or nine schools. Yet the former had the right to vote on all questions affecting the uptown wards. In fact, the First, Second and Third Wards resembled very much the rotten boroughs abolished in England by the Reform Act of 1832. The citizens of New York clamored for a change. The Legislature passed a law dividing the City into seven school districts as nearly equal in school population as possible, providing for the election by the people of the district of three Commissioners, three Inspectors and eight Trustees. The law also provided that one Commissioner, one Inspector and two Trustees should retire every year. This plan of government continued to keep the schools very near the people and worked admirably up to 1869, when suddenly another revolution occurred.

The Board of 1869.

The revolution which took all the power from the people and centralized it in the Mayor was caused by the dismissal of a woman Principal for neglect of duty by the Board of Education. The great political leader of that day ordered the Board to restore her under the threat that in case of refusal the Board of Education would be legislated out of existence. To the honor of the twenty-one members, they indignantly refused to obey this arbitrary command. Then this Board elected by the people was wiped out of existence, and a law passed giving the Mayor power to appoint a new Board of Education consisting of twelve members, facetiously called "Mayor Hall's Twelve Apostles." This great leader, who was not the Mayor, took care that the majority of his new Board should be men of high character, and this he could afford to do, because the position of Commissioner was non-salaried. He could say to the public behold the manner of men I have appointed to administer your school system. He could point to William Wood, Wilson G. Hunt, John Sherwood, Dr. Holland (the poet), Samuel A. Lewis, Isaac Bell and others of like character.

The first movement of these honest and able men was to examine into the working of the school system. Mr. Wood was especially active and conscientious in the performance of his duty, and very soon discovered that a normal school was indispensable. Having arrived at this conclusion, he was prompt and quick to carry it into execution.

Another Revolution, 1873.

Scarcely had the Board of Twelve commenced work to give a good reason for its existence than another revolution took place in the government of the public schools. By an act of the Legislature the Board of 1869 was legislated out of office, and a new Board of twenty-one—not elected by the people but—appointed by the Mayor. However, the old school districts were restored, but the election of school officers by the people passed away, never perhaps to return.

The Last Revolution.

The last revolution is so well known of all men that it needs no comment from me.

As I have been in a reminiscent mood, I think it only right that I should mention the names of some of the distinguished men who have rendered excellent service in the cause of public school education. Erastus C. Benedict, afterwards Chancellor of the Board of Regents, was the first President of the Board of Education whom I remember. He was one of the founders of the Free Academy, now the College of The City of New York, which has done such splendid service for the young men of this City. He was followed soon afterwards by Andrew H. Green, who even then was remarkable for his good judgment and great ability. Then came William E. Curtis, afterwards Judge of the Superior Court. He made one of the greatest speeches I have ever heard against punishing certain Principals of schools for not reading the Bible. William Wood, President of the Board for several years, is honored for his efforts to establish and extend the Normal College. Stephen A. Walker was elected President seven times and managed the educational system with marked ability. J. Edward Simmons succeeded Mr. Walker and proved himself a most efficient officer. He was mainly instrumental in raising the Normal College to collegiate rank. I might name also Richard Warren, S. Weir Roosevelt (uncle of the President of the United States), James W. Gerard (the great Inspector), and Charles Bulkley Hubbell, who accomplished so much toward the establishment of high schools in this City, and many others. But many of them are too recent and are therefore well known to the present generation.

Conclusion.

During the period covering these five changes and revolutions in the public school system, misfeasance and malfeasance had occurred in some of the great departments of the City Government; but the Board of Education, like Caesar's wife, was above suspicion. Not a single charge of misuse of the vast sums expended annually was ever made against the Board as a body or against a single member of it. This is a glorious record, of which the people of this City have a right to feel proud. It only proves that the best of all service is gratuitous service. Had the Commissioners been political salaried officers, probably there might have been a different story to tell. Long may the present system prevail, by which good men, without compensation, undertake the arduous labor in the holy cause of extending the blessings of free education to rich and poor, high and low, without regard to race or color or creed. The prosperity, nay the very life of the nation depends on the free public school system of America, with its vast army of Teachers to instruct the rising generation in self-government and in the great truth that republican government is a government by majorities.

Dr. William T. Harris.

Mr. President and Members of the School Board of New York City: I have come from a great distance to bring a word of congratulation on the successful completion of a struggle to establish a system of free public schools. Next I describe the attitude of interest and expectation on the part of the people of a nation in relation to the greatest City. Lastly, I ask your attention to the school problems which only a great city can solve and for the solution of which the country anxiously waits, with eyes fixed especially on Greater New York.

The Free School Society that did so brave and noble a work a century ago in laying the foundations for free education in this City enrolled some five hundred pupils all told in its first year. To-night we celebrate its memory, rejoicing in the fact that your City school system enrolls now in 1905 one thousand pupils for every one of that five hundred. Meantime the nation has grown to a hundred times its population as reported in the census year 1810.

A great city unites in itself widely differing varieties of the human race. A stream of immigration pours into it people from all parts of the world. Its problems are correspondingly difficult of solution. It has combinations to make that are not possible to make in country towns and rural districts. But the City is bound to solve its Sphinx riddle or, like the Sphinx, be precipitated from its rock.

The city must establish a rule of order that reduces the antagonistic elements of its population to harmony. Each class must turn its energies to the re-enforcement of all other classes and thus conserve the power of the whole rather than annul it by mutual opposition.

It is the problem of the city to make a social whole out of discordant groups of individuals and so to organize them that each group is helped by all to achieve its own rational aims.

Only a great city may accomplish such a combination of men into a social whole that contains within it differences unfolded to their utmost normal extent, and yet all subordinated to the rational purpose of the grade of civilization which the nation represents. Saint Augustine, perhaps the most influential of all the Christian Fathers, could find no other symbol of a divine civilization on earth so fitting as a city. He wrote of the ideal church as The City of God, being inspired to do this by the sublime conceptions of Saint John's Revelations in which he read of the New Jerusalem, coming down out of heaven.

The rural sections of this nation possess different individuals, but do not unfold their differences and at the same time unite and harmonize them into a greater individuality, the social whole.

The particular individual standing aloof from his fellows is a small affair. But when he is united to his fellows by ties of social dependence, such as are found in urban life, he becomes a part of a giant, a "grand man" as Swedenborgians call human society.

It is well to look after this combination that can make mere individuals into co-operative citizens. The children combined in the large schools of New York are already learning their first lessons of subordinating their mere idiosyncrasies to the interest of the work of the school. It is a lesson that cannot be taught to such perfection in the small one-room school of the country district.

We do not realize how powerful a unit a great city is in the world's civilization—London, New York, Paris, Berlin, St. Petersburg, Rome—how the city reveals all the different traits of the national character, and that, too, on their positive side! Their self-contradictions have been eliminated and their strengths increased and preserved. It is a thought that comes to the American citizen many times in the day, that he and his country possess a great city, the second city in size on the planet!

But it is not common to find this thought realized in the mind by accurate quantities and adequate measurement. For instance, people do not realize that Greater New York has within its limits more than one-seventh of all the taxable wealth, real and personal, of the entire United States. Its population is only one-twenty-second of the seventy-six millions of people, but its assessed wealth is more than one-seventh of the thirty-four billions of assessed wealth of the whole country. And if we were to substitute true value for assessed value, New York would still hold its rank. Besides this, enormous amounts of real and personal property in all sections of the country are really owned and controlled in New York.

The clearing house of New York City balances accounts of interstate and international trade of the United States to the amount of seventy billions of dollars per annum—nearly the sum total that represents the true value of all the wealth of the United States. Meanwhile, Chicago balances in its great clearing house less than nine billions and Boston less than seven billions; Philadelphia less than six billions.

Commerce unites the producer and the consumer and makes industry possible on a large scale. For this reason it commands in a certain sense the nation's industry. Away from London and Paris and New York the raw materials of production bring less prices than at those financial centres. And, on the other hand, the manufactured products bring higher prices the greater the distance from those cities.

Transportation, and time, and risk, and interest on investment, all tend to increase the cost of the manufactured goods to the distant consumer, and, on the other hand, his productions in raw material have to sell at a lower price so as to make up for the cost of transportation, and time, and risk, and interest on investment. No wonder that the great cities command the wealth of the world. Nor that the land of New York is worth one-seventh of all the land in the United States.

But New York furnishes the ablest directive power of the nation, and all the wheels of industry in the nation are more or less impelled and directed from New York.

Great things like these are threatened with great evils, and New York has many classes of dangers to guard against.

There are three weakling classes of society that collect in the slums of cities and are most numerous and dangerous in great cities. The whole country looks to New York to solve the problem of the slum. The weakling classes are, first, the unthrifty who are always poor and improvident. They bring up large families to the same wasteful and unthrifty habits as themselves. Worse than this—the family influence often tends towards crime, and the criminal class is recruited from youth brought up in poverty.

It is, therefore, one of the most important functions of the school management in large cities to discover means of securing early attendance of the children of poverty in schools fitted for their special needs. Even the question of hunger has to be considered in some cities.

The second weakling class includes the insane, defective and feeble-minded. These were at first taken charge of by private charity, and their wants of food, clothing and shelter supplied without considering the important requirement of active exercise and development of such rudiments of faculties as remained to them, with a view to increase their self-activity and enable them to participate with their fellow men through work of their own.

Continual experiment on educational methods and devices is necessary to improve our methods of dealing with these two weakling classes, for our results are at present very meagre, although they are better, far better, than they were a generation ago, or even ten years ago.

Of the greatest importance is the provision in the educational system for the prevention and cure of youthful criminality. The criminals that come from the slums are more to be pitied than severely condemned. They are ground under the wheels of a social fate. The reform school, the infant school, the kindergarten, are not so much at present the complete solution of the problem of juvenile criminality as index fingers that point towards the solution.

It is to the educational systems of large cities, and to them alone, that we look for the invention of more powerful and effective means to break the chain of heredity between the adult criminal and the criminal offspring, so as to eradicate the slum in the future and move forward our civilization many degrees nearer to that City of God that Saint Augustine conceived.

Dr. Andrew S. Draper.

Mr. President—The scene, the music, the addresses, and the manifest feeling of this radiant audience have formed a celebration, but not more a celebration than an inspiration. The outlook is quite as fascinating as the retrospect.

The Free School Society was a philanthropic organization of citizens whom New York must always honor, but I suspect it delayed the growth of true public school sentiment, of civic self-responsibility for suitable schools, in this City for more than a generation.

The American system of common schools has, for obvious reasons, had a more crucial test in this City than anywhere else in the land. It is no reflection upon the men and women gone before, who did what they could according to their lights and in hard circumstances, to say that New York has never had a balanced school system, with any fair chance for its life, until well within a decade. In brief seven years you have made more true progress towards a comprehensive and efficient system of public schools than you made in any seventy years before, or than has been made in any single generation in any other large city in the country. There has doubtless been a greater public educational advance in Greater New York since the new charter than in any other large city of the world.

You do not need to be told, but it may be well to nail on the wall, the means and methods by which this has been accomplished.

By public munificence, which has impressed the masses through the finest, the most architecturally perfect, school buildings ever erected.

By developing a system of advanced schools, which are necessary in order to balance the system and give life to it.

By beginning the evolution of a teaching force beyond the control of politics and on the exclusive basis of learning and of teaching power.

By commencing to adapt the instruction to the complexities of life in the swiftest city in the world.

Of course, the effort to do this has started opposition and criticism, but this in turn has aroused wider and deeper and more intelligent interest on the part of the people. Of course, the purging and upbuilding of a competent teaching force begets chagrin and bitterness—in the force and out of it. Of course, the introduction of new features stirs objections. But that is not the crux of the matter. The American Common School System is coming to its own in the first city of the land. The greatest city in our democratic republic is showing that it has the power to make a system of schools broad enough and good enough to support democratic institutions.

My brief word to-night shall be one of appreciation of all the men and women, in and out of the schools, who are doing this. They are many, and they are strong. Some of them have had to bear much obloquy; they have had need of learning and experience which knew their ground, of a determination which would not back down, and of a courage which never faltered; and they have had them.

In all this splendid company of deserving men and women, there is one who has had the keenest discrimination and the most determination—and perhaps the most criticism and censure—and who is therefore entitled to the greatest commendation. I, perhaps above others, am warranted in saying this. It is just seven years now since the organization of the new City, when the Board of Education of The City of New York did me the great honor of electing me City Superintendent of Schools, and a Committee of the Board journeyed to the centre of the country to convince me that personal interest and public duty required my acceptance. They knew many things much better than I did, but I knew the measure of my competency and courage better than they did. If I lacked in courage, I did not in discretion or in outlook. I told them that if they, being Manhattan men, would go back and vote for the man whom the Brooklyn members would like to elect, they would render the school interests of America a very great service, for they would give to the greatest city of the nation a Superintendent with better knowledge of her life, and stronger qualities for her supreme necessities than was possible with me, or with any other man of whom I knew. I am not vain enough to think that my word settled it, but the proposition did become a fact, and the prophecy has found realization in the administration of William Henry Maxwell.

There are others, and many others, entitled to share in the City's commendation: Mayors who have given capable and independent men to the Board of Education; the members of the Board who have rationally assured the manifest purposes of the City's best thought as contemplated in the Charter; Professional Assistants and Teachers who have appreciated the difficulties and given a hand to the herculean task. Every voice which has encouraged, and every organ of public opinion which has aided the right in a crisis, may well join in the congratulations and share in all the glad promises of enduring triumph which encompass this anniversary celebration.

No one of all these has favored all that has been done, or is likely to favor all that will be done; but, waiving minor differences, forgetting personal doubts, listening to fair criticism, but trusting the combined judgment of the mass and the consolidated educational tendencies of the country, and gaining added confidence through the evident ability to do things in spite of the forces of evil, and in spite also of decent people who cannot see, we will sustain officers who can neither be cajoled nor coerced; and now and hereafter we will seek the co-operation of men and women of every race, creed, political theory and situation in life who will help to assure this City an educational and intellectual primacy, which must be yet more splendid than that which it holds in the commercial and industrial activities of the world.

This celebration has, from first to last, had a patriotic flavor and fervor about it. Well it may! There is something even beyond the primacy of this City to be thought of; something which comes close to the throbbing heart of the nation. You display the flag and sing the songs of the Republic. Well you may. They celebrate and they inspire. This City has half the people of the greatest State of the Union. The difficulties of making public schools, sufficient in quality and number, justly common to all the people, are greater here than anywhere else in the whole land. Yet they must be overcome—not only for the sake of the City, but for the sake of the nation as well. If it can be done here, it may be done anywhere. If it can be done here, there is assurance enough that a great people, gathered from the four quarters of the globe, can govern itself.

It is time for some of the best of us to be a little more uniformly and staunchly on the Lord's side. The masses are going to rule more freely in this country before they do less freely. Democracy is freer beyond the Alleghenies than here and it is safer also. It will be freer and it must be made safer here than it is now. It can only be done through a system of schools good enough for all and broad enough for all and open to all. It is of course well to have caution, but one who would limit the work of modern schools to the mere elementary subjects of other days has dropped far behind, and out of sight of, the educational procession. Three-quarters of the States of the Union are providing the very best instruction in all grades, inclusive of the university, free of cost to all who will prepare for it and come and take it. In this the continued primacy of New York lies and in it the highest hopes of the nation rest.

The hopes and perils of the country are neither in the palaces of the rich nor in the hovels of the very poor; not in legislation about corporations and tariffs and finance; but in the great, overwhelming middle millions of boys and girls, who under the genius of our institutions, are entitled to the best instruction in any study, from teachers of solid worth. These boys and girls are going to do all they can—whether they do it rationally and wisely or not—to see to it that every one has a fair chance, and that there is a square deal all around. Association and sound teaching, and plenty of it, in common schools worthy of the common respect, is all that can give the assurance that it will be well done.

It often happens that a community has but a poor understanding of the real qualities of its schools. The people intend well enough but they do not know about the technique of the schools. Often they think they have the best schools because their own educational leaders tell them so, when in fact their schools are really very inferior. It would be idle to tell the people of this City that they have the best public schools in the country. That must be an evolution which must come of careful and rational guidance and be many long years in the making. It would be the truth to tell them that at last they have got the lines set correctly and that every good school man in the country envies them the advance of recent years. It is the proudest product of the munificence and determination of a mighty City, and educationally it rings truly.

And if the people of the City will stand by the law and the Board of Education and the Superintendent and his assistants and the self-respecting teachers, we may easily have a City and a State educational system which will be the guarantee of primacy, and still better we may feel assured that with all that is going on beyond our borders, the stability of the government will not be a dangerous or a difficult matter.

Dr. William H. Maxwell.

The pleasant duty remains to me of expressing on behalf of the educational authorities of this City our appreciation of the honor done us by the presence of the two gentlemen from outside our City—Dr. Harris and Dr. Draper—who have spoken so graciously of what has been accomplished in the cause of education in this City. Dr. Harris's visits to our schools have been all too few. And yet though he has seen little of us and though we have seen far too little of him, his influence has been strongly felt in our schools. As the leader of a noble band of scholars who made St. Louis in the early seventies the centre of educational thought in America, Dr. Harris prepared a series of reports which contain the promise and potency of nearly every improvement in public education that has since been accomplished. Not only so, but he has the unique distinction of having established in St. Louis the first public school kindergarten in America. That experiment, made over thirty years ago, convinced his countrymen that the kindergarten performs an indispensable function in the right training of children. In every department of education, however, he has been the American teacher's guide. In the ancient arsenals of science and philosophy he has sought the weapons with which to equip the teacher for the never-ending strife with the powers of ignorance and vice. Long, Dr. Harris, may you be spared to fill the great office which you have adorned.

To you, Commissioner Draper, I present the cordial greetings of our City teachers on your return to educational administration in this State. In Ohio, as the Superintendent of Schools in a great city; in Illinois, as the president of a great university, you carried to the West whatever of high endeavor and of noble educational ideals the East has to bestow. And now when New York has need of you, you have returned.

With the election of Dr. Draper as our first State Commissioner of Education, the disastrous warfare of half a century between the Regents of the University and the State Department of Public Instruction has terminated. A leader of men, wise through ample experience, and clothed by law with all necessary authority, Commissioner Draper will execute our educational laws and re-enforce local authority through the sovereign power of the State.

And never was there greater need for such re-enforcement, for never were the difficulties greater. We are to-day in this City confronted with the largest and most complex educational problem ever presented to any municipality—the problem of assimilating the vast hordes of people from the shores of the Black and Mediterranean Seas who daily land at our wharves. These people, or rather peoples, the offspring of peoples oppressed and enslaved for centuries, are alien in language, alien in habits of life, in trend of thought and in social and political experience. The grave danger is that, delivered from the political and industrial bondage which was their heritage at home, they may fall into some other bondage not less soul-blighting or body-destroying—the bondage of poverty, for instance, that comes from lack of manual skill and excess of competition; the bondage of vice and disease that comes from overcrowding in swarming tenements; the bondage of anarchy which is the rebound from tyranny and which means the fateful substitution of license for liberty; or the bondage of the political boss which means the atrophy of the liberties of the citizen. To anticipate and to prevent these various forms of bondage which menace not only our foreign-born, but our native-born children, and to equalize the opportunities of all, what must be our chief reliance? Obviously, the public school. It is one of the glories of our City educational system that we are doing much for the enlightenment of our adult population; but the great work must be with the children. If they are to become independent, duty-respecting, industrious, intelligent, patriotic American citizens, they must be subjected in that artificial environment we call the school to a training which will fit them for the natural environment of life. To give such education in our schools we must by precept and by practice teach in our schools the American ideal of simple living—temperance, frugality, industry and a decent regard for the social and individual proprieties of life; we must lead the mind to reason justly, the lips to speak the English language and to speak it clearly and accurately; we must train the hand to execute the designs of the brain with precision and with skill; and we must inculcate devotion to duty and persistence in well-doing—the virtues that conserve all other virtues. In the accomplishment of these colossal tasks, the Teachers are the chief agents. To obtain an adequate supply of highly-trained Teachers is always our most difficult problem. Compared with this, every other problem, even that of housing, difficult and expensive as that is, sinks into insignificance. To exclude from our schools the ignorant, the untrained and the vulgar Teacher; to place in charge of our children only those Teachers who have the learning, the natural ability and the special training for their great task; and then to surround them with those conditions which will enable them to do their best work, is the be-all and end-all of school administration.

In the performance of this administrative work, there have been many temporary halts and even still there are occasional retrogressions. But such halts and retrogressions are but temporary. The progress of the past forbids despondency about the present or the future. As we review the history of the public schools of this City, we may well be of good cheer. That history shows us a series of successful struggles for right principles of administration. When the century opened, all schools in the City were under the control of the various religious sects, and the Teachers were little more than drudges for the clergy. The great significance and the great merit of the Public School Society is that it was a movement, and a successful movement, to emancipate the schools and to emancipate the Teachers from the control of the churches. But the society was unfortunately a self-appointed and self-perpetuating body, and not responsible to the City or to the State. The next great struggle was to place the schools under the control of the people. That struggle was long and bitter, but ended by the complete triumph of the popular principle. The system of administration, both under the society and under its successor, the Board of Education, was, however, so faulty, that the teaching force, though emancipated from the control of the churches, soon fell, despite the efforts of many of New York's noblest men, under the tyranny of the politician.

The successive changes in administration by which the Teachers were gradually emancipated from this new thralldom, were similar in character to those which mark the evolution of every efficient organism, living or social. An organism in its primitive state, as Herbert Spencer has demonstrated, performs all the functions necessary for its existence and performs none of them well. In the course of time it develops many organs, each of which through special adaptation to function, performs that function better. Such has been the history of school administration in this City. The body originally entrusted with public school administration performed all administrative duties—built school houses, selected text-books, made the course of study, and licensed and appointed Teachers—and performed none of these functions well. Gradually special departments were evolved, as, for instance, for the building of school houses, the licensing, the training and the appointing of Teachers, each of which, through special adaptation and through being held to strict responsibility, has come to perform its particular function better. The result has been greater efficiency in every department and the almost complete emancipation of the Teachers from political tyranny. Upon the continuance of this specialization of function in the administrative bodies, depends the success with which the schools of this City shall accomplish their colossal task. These tasks will be accomplished only by a highly efficient and enthusiastic teaching force. A teaching force is organized for efficiency and inspired with enthusiasm only when the administrative system is such that licenses are issued and appointments are made upon merit and merit alone.

The year 1805 witnessed the establishment, under an unorganized system, of schools that had no administrative ties with either City or State. The year 1905 sees a highly-organized system, its various parts sharply differentiated in structure and closely specialized in function, embodying and elevating the educational aspirations of the people, but held to a strict accountability by the State. With such an organization and under such protection, we enter upon our second century in the sure confidence that whatever in our system is badly adapted to its purpose, the system is sufficiently vigorous to slough off; that whatever obstacles are presented to progress, our schools are strong enough to overcome; and that whatever work their hands find to do, our Teachers have the will, the intelligence and the zeal to accomplish.

Resolved, That the addresses delivered at the public meeting held in Carnegie Hall on February 20, 1905, be printed in full in the minutes, and that the Special Committee on the Public School Centenary be and it is hereby discharged.

GENERAL INSTRUCTIONS TO BIDDERS.

The person or persons making a bid or estimate for any services, work, materials or supplies for The City of New York, or for any of its departments, bureaus or offices, shall furnish the same in a sealed envelope, indorsed with the title of the supplies, materials, work or services for which the bid or estimate is made, with his or their name or names and the date of presentation to the President or Board or to the head of the Department at his or its office, on or before the date and hour named in the advertisement for the same, at which time and place the estimates received will be publicly opened by the President or Board or head of said Department and read, and the award of the contract made according to law as soon thereafter as practicable.

Each bid or estimate shall contain the name and place of residence of the person making the same, the names of all persons interested with him therein, and, if no other person be so interested, it shall distinctly state that fact; also, that it is made without any connection with any other person making an estimate for the same purpose, and is in all respects fair and without collusion or fraud, and that no member of the Board of Aldermen, head of a department, chief of a bureau, deputy thereof, or clerk therein, or other officer of The City of New York is, shall be or become interested, directly or indirectly, as contracting party, partner, stockholder, surety or otherwise in or in the performance of the contract, or in the supplies, work or business to which it relates, or in any portion of the profits thereof. The bid or estimate must be verified by the oath, in writing, of the party or parties making the estimate that the several matters stated herein are in all respects true.

Each bid or estimate shall be accompanied by the consent, in writing, of two householders or freeholders in The City of New York, or of a guaranty or surety company duly authorized by law to act as surety, and shall contain the matters set forth in the blank forms mentioned below.

No bid or estimate will be considered unless, as a condition precedent to the reception or consideration of any proposal, it be accompanied by a certified check upon one of the State or National banks of The City of New York, drawn to the order of the Comptroller, or money to the amount of five per centum of the amount of the bond required, as provided in section 420 of the Greater New York Charter.

The certified check or money should not be inclosed in the envelope containing the bid or estimate, but should be either inclosed in a separate envelope addressed to the head of the Department, President or Board, or submitted personally upon the presentation of the bid or estimate.

For particulars as to the quantity and quality of the supplies, or the nature and extent of the work, reference must be made to the specifications, schedules, plans, etc., on file in the said office of the President, Board or Department.

No bid shall be accepted from or contract awarded to any person who is in arrears to The City of New York upon debt or contract, or who is a defaulter, as surety or otherwise, upon any obligation to the City.

The contract must be bid for separately. The right is reserved in each case to reject all bids or estimates if it is deemed to be for the interest of the City so to do.

Bidders will write out the amount of their bids or estimates in addition to inserting the same in figures.

Bidders are requested to make their bids or estimates upon the blank forms prepared and furnished by the City, a copy of which, with the proper envelope in which to inclose the bid, together with a copy of the contract, including the specifications, in the form approved by the Corporation Counsel, can be obtained upon application therefor at the office of the Department for which the work is to be done. Plans and drawings of construction work may also be seen there.
